AS the Spanish Dress made to distinguish one Person from another; and as the Author Disorders lately committed daily in the Night, the Discovery; the King, to prevent the issued an Ordinance, forbidding the Hats and long Cloaks, &c. and Lamps to be used up for lighting the Persons charged by the Ministry with the discovery of this Ordinance, having acted with great Rigour, the Populace rose on the 23<sup>d</sup>, about Four in the Troop of Mutineers appeared in the flapped Hats and long Cloaks; and forced the Guard, which attempted they attacked the House of the Pre Council, and that of the Marquis Minister of Finances: They broke and obliged every Person they met with Foot or in Carriages, to let down their Hats. Towards Nine in the Patroles of Horse and Foot were in the Palace, who dispersed the Mutineers. Tranquility was entirely in all the Quarters of the City; Day, at Seven in the Morning, the Mutineers appeared again, armed with bladed again, and upwards of Thirty them, both Men and Women, marched to the Palace, crying, Long live the Sieur O'Reilly, Field-Marshal, to whom had given the Command of all the Mutineers at Madrid, proposed to his Majesty the Means of Force and gainst them the Means of Force and his Majesty expressed the greatest Resentment at the shedding the Blood of his Subjects; where, however, fired; which killed several Persons. The King thought proper to send out a Troop of the Regiment of the Balcony, in the Middle of the Palace, the Mutineers ran in Shoals, still live the King! They demanded, that the Mutineers alter their Dress, and lessening the Price of Bread and the Suppression of the Company which taken to furnish Madrid with Provision, they deigned to grant what they desired retired with the most lively Delight and Submission. All being thus settled, the King thought proper to set out for Morning for Aranjuez. As soon as he heard of this, they mutinied again, and demanded that their Fidelity was suspended, and that the King should return to his Majesty sent Answer that he desired the Fidelity of his Subjects; but that return to Madrid till Order and Tranquility were perfectly re-established. This Answer having been communicated to the King in the Morning, by the Secretary of State, all the Mutineers separated, after delivering up the Arms they had seized, and from that Moment all was settled.

April 1. The King, and all the Mutineers are still at Aranjuez. The City of Madrid sent Deputies to the King, to offer him with the Sum of 300,000 Reals, the sum of the Cathedral of the same City, a Deputation to his Majesty; and the King answered them with 360,000 Reals. It appears that several Cities of the Kingdom intend to do the same. Several have already nominated Deputies for this Purpose; and the whole Kingdom is in a great Zeal, Love, and Respect.
