settled. It is agreed, however, on all Hands, that they are to share their Territorial Revenues with the State, but how this will be liquidated no Body yet knows. It is a Question, indeed, which, the more it is canvassed, appears the more difficult to discuss. Lord Chatham's Opinion, if he has really formed any, has not yet transpired. Perhaps he may soon declare himself, and at once make a Demand upon the Company for such a Sum Yearly, as will make a splendid Addition to the public Revenue, once more raise his own Reputation, and facilitate whatever other Schemes he may now have in Contemplation, if, in his present debilitated State, he is able to meditate any Thing for the public Good. In a little Time we must know.

The King's Brothers have got 8000 l. a Year each voted them, to which Grenville made some Opposition, upon this Ground, that the Act which gave the King 800,000 l. a Year, in place of his Civil List, expresses, that it was given to enable him to provide for all the Royal Family.

Lord R-----, and his Party, have lately, I find, made some Advances to George Grenville, and offered to put themselves under his Direction; so that you may expect soon to hear that they are actually agreed.—It is also whispered by some, that the Parliament will be dissolved at the Close of this Session; but this I think by no Means likely.

Yesterday I was present at a long Debate in the House of Lords, which lasted Five Hours, upon a Motion made by the Duke of B-----, concerning North-America.—The Case was this; among the Papers laid before the House from that Quarter, was an Act passed by the Assembly of Massachusetts-Bay (at the Requisition of the Secretaries of State here) for raising Money to make Compensation to the Sufferers by the Riots occasioned by the late Stamp-Act, in which was likewise inserted a Clause, containing a full Pardon to the Rioters; which is considered here as a Piece of great Presumption in them, and altogether unprecedented. For, according to the British Constitution, all general Acts of Pardon, Indemnity and Oblivion, never take their Rise in either House of Parliament, but are sent from the King, are read only once in each House, and are immediately accepted, and passed precisely as they come from his Majesty.—Governor Bernard's Letter, accompanying this Act, was read; upon which the Duke of B----- moved that the House should Address his Majesty, to take the Validity of that Act into his Royal Consideration, and if it should be found to be null and void, that he would be pleased to take such Measures as he should think proper, to support the Dignity of his own Prerogative, and the legislative Authority of this Kingdom over the Colonies, or Words to this Effect.—In the Debate which ensued the Lords appeared to be all of one Opinion, in regard to the Impropriety and Absurdity of the Act in Question; nor do I remember any Thing urged in Exteruation of the Conduct of the Massachusetts Assembly, but by one Lord, who said, he imagined they meant nothing insolent in this Procedure.—Some objected to the Words of the Motion, as recommending to His Majesty to take into Consideration the Validity of a Bill which was obviously illegal; the Lords in the Ministry alledged there was no occasion for this Address, as the Bill was before the Attorney and Solicitor General, and would be rejected by the Privy Council of course. The Method of proceeding with American Bills is briefly this; they come over to the Secretary of State, and are by him laid before the Board of Trade, who generally refer them to the Attorney and Solicitor General; and they report their Opinion to the King in Council, who either approve or reject them.—Some were inclined to censure the Governor who passed the Bill; but the Generality were of Opinion, that he had acted with great Propriety and Spirit during the whole Contest about the Stamp-Act.—Some Reflections were thrown upon the Ministry, as if they had been dilatory in this Matter, which they, on their Part, endeavoured to wipe off.—All seemed disposed to do every Thing that could conduce to bringing the Colonies back to their Duty; and a Hint was thrown out, as if some Plan for that Purpose was in Agitation with the Ministry, which would be laid before the House in due Time.—Lord M-----, in a very pathetic Speech, set forth the Necessity of a strict Union between this Country and her Colonies; that he was for supporting the legislative Authority of Great-Britain over them, by all possible Methods, under every Administration; that Unanimity among ourselves; and Vigour in the Ministry, were never more wanted; that if ever so many independent Governments should shake themselves loose from their Mother-Country, the Consequence
