[XXIII. YEAR] M A

LETTERS from a FA to the Inhabitants of L E T T MY DEAR COUNTRYMEN, I have the honor to receive from you a Letter, which is full of good Sense, and contains many valuable Observations, which I have the pleasure to see are the result of your own Reflections, and not of the Instructions of any Man. I am glad to see that you are sensible of the Importance of the Cause, and that you are determined to support it with all your Power. I am, Sir, your most Obedient Servant, JOHN DUCKER.

There, for us, and for our Posterity, we must create our own Wealth, and we must create it by the sweat of our own brows. We must not depend on the Charity of others, nor on the Favors of Men. We must be industrious, and we must be frugal. We must be temperate, and we must be virtuous. We must be brave, and we must be just. We must be honest, and we must be true. We must be loyal, and we must be patriotic. We must be good, and we must be wise. We must be happy, and we must be content. We must be free, and we must be independent. We must be strong, and we must be united. We must be brave, and we must be just. We must be honest, and we must be true. We must be loyal, and we must be patriotic. We must be good, and we must be wise. We must be happy, and we must be content. We must be free, and we must be independent. We must be strong, and we must be united.

It is not intended, by this Paper, to give any account of the private Affairs of any individual, or to disclose the Secrets of any Man. It is only intended to give a general View of the State of the Colonies, and to point out the Errors and Inconveniences which they are laboring under.
