Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, Feb. 13, 1768.

5 I.R.

HE House of Representatives of this his Majesty's Province, have this his Majesty's Province, have the signal and successful Exertions you were pleased to make for them, when the Liberties of the Colonies were in Danger. And although they do not fall immediately under your Care, in that Department to which his Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint you; yet your known Attachment to the Rights of Subjects, in their jul Extent, the constitutional Authority of the Supreme Legislative, and the Prerogative of the Sovereign, is a strong Inducement to the House, when new Grievances happen, to implore your repeated Aid.

Conscious of their own Disposition, they rely upon that Candour hich is a distinguished Mark of your Character. And however they may have been represented to his Majesty Ministers as undutiful, turbulent and factious, your Sentiments are too generous, to impute the Expressions of Uncasiness, under the Operation of any particular Acts of the British Parliament, to a peevish or discontented Habit, much less to the want of a due Veneration for that angust Assembly.

This House is at all Times ready to recognize his Majesty's High Court of Parliament, the Supreme Legislative Power over the whole Emisire. Its superintending Authority, in all Cases, connuent with the fundamental Rules of the Constitution, is as clearly admitted by his Majesty's Subjects in this Province, as by stose within the Realm: Since the Constitution of the State, as it ought to be, is fixed, it is humbly presumed that the Sul Sts, in every Part of the Empire, however remote, have an equitable Claim to all the Advantages of it.

It is the Glory of the British Prince, and the Happines of all his Subjects; that their Constitution hath its Evendation in the immurable Lawred Nature: And as

It is the Glory of the British Pringe, and the Happiness of all his Subjects, that their Constitution hath its Foundation in the immutable Laws of Nature: And as the Supreme Legislative, as well as the Supreme Executive, derives its Authority from that Constitution, it should seem that no Laws can be made or executed, that are repugnant to any essential Law in Nature. Hence a British Subject is happily distinguished from the Subjects of many other States, in a just and well grounded Opinion of his own Safety, which is the Perfection of Political Liberty.

It is acknowledged to be an unalterable Law in Nature, that a Man should have the free Use and sole Disposal of the Fruit of his honest Industry, subject to no Controul. The Equity of this Principle seems to have been too obvious to be misunderstood, by those who framed the Constitution, into which it is ingrasted as an established Law. It is conceived that this Principle gave Rise, in early Time, to Representation in Parliament; where every Individual in the Realm has since been, and is still considered by Acts of Parliament, as present, by himself or by his Representative, of his own free Election: Consequently, the Act associated there to the Sovereign, is not of the Nature of a Tribute, but the free and voluntary Gift of All.

The House subjects of this Province, or any of them, the free and voluntary Gift of All.

The House submit to your Consideration, whether his Majesty's Subjects of this Province, or any of them, can be considered as having been present in Parliament, when an Ast of the Fourth of his present Majesty's Reign, and another passed the last Session, were made. If not, it seems to be conclusive, that as those Acts were made with the fole and express Purpose of raising a Revenue out of America, the Subjects here are in those Instances unfortunately deprived of the sole Disposal of their Property, and the Honour and Privilege of contributing to the Aid of their Sovereign, by a free and voluntary Gift.

The People of this Province would by no Means be

The People of this Province would by no Means be inclined to betition the Parliament for a Representation. Separated from the Mother-Country by a mighty Ocean, and at the Diffance of Three Thousand unn. Separated from the Mother-Country by a mighty Ocean, and at the Diffame of Three Thousand Miles, they appreciend it is, and ever will be, utterly impracticable, that they mould be equally represented there. They have always been confidered, by the Nation, as Subjects remote. And his Majefty's Royal Predecessors were graciously pleased to conditiate, by Charter, a subordinate Legislative in the Province, as it is conceived, with a View of preserving to their remote Subjects, the unalignable Right of a Representation. By this Charter, the Lands therein described, are granted to the Inhabitants, in free and common Sociage; and the General-Assembly is invested with the Power of imposing and levying proportionable and reasonable Assembners, Rates and Tares upon the Estates and Persons of the Inhabitants, for his Majesty's Service, in the necessary Defence and Support of his Government of the Province, and the Protection and Preservation of the Inhabitants; and of ordaining and chabilising all Manner of wholesome and reasonable Orders, Laws, Statutes and Ordinances, Directions and Instructions, either with, of without Penalties, as they shall judge to be for the Good and Welfare of the Province. And as a sufficient Check upon this subordince Power, which secures its Dependence on the Supreme Legislative, no Law can be made repugnant to the Lawe of England; and all Laws that are made, are laid before his Majesty, who, at any Time, during Three Years after, disanulls them at his Royal Pleasure. All that is desired by the People of this Province, it, that they may be restored to their original Standing: They may venture to appeal to the Nation, that they have never failed to afford their utmost Aid to his Majesty, whenever he had required it, and they may say it, without Vanity, that in many Instances, from their Settlement, they have given striking Proofs of their Zeal for the Honour of their Sovereign; and their Affection for the Mother-State. Must it not then be grievous to free and loyal Subjects, to be called upon in a Manner which appears to them, to divest them of their Freedom, and so far to impeach their Loyalty, as to imply a Mistrust of their chearful Compliance with his Majesty's Royal Requisitions?

The House also beg Leave to submit, whether the People cur continue free, while the Crown in Addition to its uncontroverted Right of appointing a Governor, may appoint him such Supends as it shall judge fit, at the Expence of the People, and without their Consent: And whether, while the Judges of the Land, at so great a Distance from the Thrope, the Fountain of Justice, may be altogether independent on the People for their Support, it may not probably happen, that in some future Time, the Principles of Equity may be subverted, even on the Bench of Justice, and the People deprived of their Happines and Security.

The House could add, that by the Restraints laid

The House could add, that by the Restraints laid upon the American Trade, by Acts of Parliament, which operate equally to the Advantage of Great-Britain, and the Taxes which the Inhabitants here eventually pay, as the Consumers of the British Manufactures; it should seem to be beyond all the Rules of Equity, that these additional Burdens should be laid on them. But they would not trespais upon your on them. But they would not trespals upon your Time and Attention to the great Affairs of the Nation. They beg your candid Confideration of the unhappy Circumstances of the Province, and hope that your great Interest in the National Councils, so far as shall appear to you to be just, will be employed on their Behalf.

Signed by the SPEAKER.

Copy of a LETTER from the House of Representatives to the Light Honourable the Earl of CAMBDEN, Lord High Chancellor of GREAT-BRITAIN.

Province of the Maffachusetts-Bay, Jan. 29, 1768.

My LORD,

OUR great Knowledge of the Conflictution and Laws of the Nation, of the just's Extent of Parliamentary Authority, and the Rights of British abjects, is a prevailing Inducement to the House of Representatives of this his Majesty's Province, to addryour Lordship at a Time when your Attention to the British Colonies, their Connection with, and Dependence upon the Mother-State; and their Rights, as Subjects, seems to be necessary and important, hot to them alone, but to the whole Empire.

This House can speak only for the People of one Province: But no Assembly on this Continent, it is presumed, can long be filent, under an Apprehension, that without the Aid of some powerful Advocate, the Liberties of America will be no more:

It is a Cause which the House is assured your Lord-

It is a Caufe which the House is assured your Lord-ship has at Heart; and the past Experience of your ship has at Heart; and the past Experience of your Parronage, and the noble Exertions you were pleased to make for the it in a late Time of Distress, affords the strongest Reason to hope that your happy Insuence will still be employed in their Behalf, as far as your Lardship will judge to be right.

If, in all free States, the Constitution is fixed, and the Supreme legislative Power of the Nation, from thence derives its Authority; can that Power overleap the Bounds of the Constitution, without subverting its own Foundation? If the remotest Subjects are bound by the Ties of Allegiance, which this People, and their Forefarhers, have ever acknowledged; are they not, by the Rules of Equity, entitled to all the Rights of that Constitution which ascertains and limits both Sovereignty and Allegiance. If it is an effential unalterable Right in Nature, ingrasted into the British Constitution as a fundamental Law, and ever held saunalterable Right in Nature, ingrafted into the British Conflitution as a fundamental Law, and even field facred and irrevocable by the Subjects within the Realm, that subat is a Man's own, is ablantis his own; and that no Man has a Right to take it from him without his Confent: May not the Subjects of this Province, with decent Firmnels, which has always diffinguished the happy Subjects of Britain, plead and maintain this natural conflitutional Right?

The superintending Authority of his Majesty's high Court of Parliament ever the whole Empire, in all Cases which can conflit with the fundamental Rights of the Constitution, was never questioned in this Pro-

Cafes which can confilt with the fundamental Rights of the Conflitution, was never questioned in this Province, nor, as this House conceive, in any other: But they intreat your Lordship's Restection one Moment, on an Act of Parliament pass'd in the last Session; and another in the Fourth of his present Majethy's Reign; both imposing Duties on his Subjects in America, which as they are imposed with the fole and express Purposes of raising a Revenue, are, in Essect, Taxes, The Hostion, that Taxation and Representation are inseparable, is sounded on the immutable Laws of Nature. But the Americans had no Representation in the Patilament, when they were taxed. Are they not then unfortunate in these Instances, in having that separated, which GOD and Nature had loined? Such are the local Circumstances of the Colonies, at the Distance of a Thousand Leagues from the Metropolis, and separated by a wide Ocean, as will for ever render a just and equal Representation in the Supreme Legislative, utterly impracticable. Upon this Consideration, it is conceived, that his Majesty's royal Predecessors thought it equitable to form legislative Bodies in America, as perfectly free as a Subordination to the Supreme Legislative, would admit of, that the inestimable Right of being taxed only by Representatives of their own free Election, might be preserved and sectured to their Subjects here. The Americans have ever been considered by the Nation, as Subjects remote; and succeeding Kings, even to the present happy Reign, and until these Acts were made, have always directed their Requisitions to be laid before the Representatives of their People in America, with which this Province, and it is presumed, all the other Colonies, have with the utmost Charafulness complied. Must it not then be grievous to Subjects, who have in many repeated Instances, afforded the strongest Marks of Loyalty and Zeal for the Honour and Service of their Sovereign, to be now called upon in a manner which implies a Distrust of a free and willing Compliance? Such is the Missortune of the Colonists, not only in the Instances before-mentioned, but also in the Case of the Act for preventing Mutiny and Desertion; which requires the Governor and Council to provide enumerated Articles for the King's marching Troops, and the People to pay the Expence.

This is a great Change; and in its Nature delicates

King's marching Troops, and the People to pay une Expence.

This is a great Change; and in its Nature delicate and important. Your Lordship will form your own Judgment, of the Wildom of making such a Change, without the most pressing Reason, or an absolute Recessive. There can be no Necessity, my Lord, as this House humbly conceive. The Subjects of this Province, and undoubtedly in all the Colonies, however they have been otherwise represented to his Majesty's Ministers, are loyal: They are firmly attached to the Mother-State: They always consider her Interest and their own as inseperably interwoven, and it is their fer-Mother-State: They always confider her Interest and their own as inseperably interwoven, and it is their ferent Wish that it may ever so remain: All they defire, is to be restored to the Standing upon which they were originally put; to have the Honour and Privilege of voluntarily contributing to the Aid of their Sovereign, when required. They are free Subjects; and it is hoped the Nation will never consider them as in a tributant State.

ry State.

It is humbly submitted to your Lordship, whether Subjects can be said to enjoy any Degree of Freedom, if the Crown, in Addition to its unbounded Authority of apif the Crown, in Addition to its unbounded Authority of conflicting Governors, should be authorized to appoint such Stipends for them, as it shall judge proper, at their Expence, and without their Consent. This is the unhappy State to which his Majesty's Subjects in the Colonies are reduced, by the Act for granting tertain Duties on Paper, and other Articles. A Power without a Check, is always unsafe; and in some stuture Time may introduce an absolute Government into America. The Judges of the Land here do not hold their Commissions during good Behaviour: Is it not then justly to be apprehended, that at so great a Distance from the Throne, the Fountain of National Justice, with Salaries altogether independent of the People, an arbitrary Rule may take Effect, which shall deprive a Bench of Justice of its Glory, and the People of their Security?

When a Question arises on the Public Administration, the Nation will judge and determine in Confor-mity to its Political Confliction: The great End of the Conflitution is universal Liberty; and this House refts affured, that your Lordship's great Interest in the National Councils, will always be engaged on the Side of Liberty and Truth. Signed by the SPEAKER.

Meffrs. BRADFORDS,

THE Intelligence transmitted to you from London, and published in your Journal of the sath of March, relative to the Transactions in which Lord B. March, relative to the Transactions in which Lord B. is unfortunately engaged, feems to be dictated by the Spirit of Resentment and popular Prejudice, which prevailed at that Time. One Side of the Question is painted with ever aggravated Circumstance, displayed in the blackest Colours; and the whole Recital being admitted for Fast, the Public will readily join in the Inference of your Correspondent, "that it is a most andacious Insult upon Humanity, and the Laws of the Country." But Men of sound Jadgment, cool Reselving, and a Knowledge of the World, do not give implicit Credit to the Lie of the Day, or will they pronounce Sentence til the Accused is heard in his Defence. News is the Rattle of the Public, as much as a Bauble is of a Child. It serves indeed sometimes to keep them out of Mischief, and sometimes to lead them into it. They delight especially in the Marvellous.
