The Count de la Grand Maison, charged with the Attack of Orletta, having received a Reinforcement of 2400 Men, which the Marquis de Chauvelin had sent over the Mountains, pushed that Place, and the other Posts of the Corscans, so closely, that the latter yielding to Superiority of Numbers, retired, and the French sacked that Town, and all the Country round it. After this they marched to Olmet-Country round it. After this they marched to Olmetta, Rutali, and other Parts of the Province of Nebbio, towards the Gulf, which they took Possession of, withcut meeting any Obstacles, and remained quietly there Two Days; but were then surrounded by the Cossi-Two Days; but were then furrounded by the Corficans, who poured in from all Sides, and made upon them fuch a terrible Fire, that they had no other Step to take than to attempt a Retreat, which they could but very imperfectly effect; for the Corficans (who were greatly enraged at the facking Oletta) fluck for leafer to them, that very few Frenchmen have affected. close to them, that very few Frenchmen have escaped either Death or Imprisonment. B O S T O N, December 12.

Our late Advices from England import, that frequent Councils are held at St. James's, on American Affairs, and the Isand of Corfica, which seem now to take up the Attention of the Ministry, and indeed the whole Nation.—That the last Dispatches from Commodore Spry, were of such a Nature, that a Brush with modore Spry, were of such a Nature, that a Brush with the French is looked upon as unavoidable.—That there have been several obstinate Rencounters between the French and Corsicans, with various Success; but attended with a great Slaughter, some of the Corsicans resusing to take Quarter.—That the French seem determined to subdue those brave People, and there is too much Reason to fear their Success, tho they are contending for Liberty and their Country, with a Zeal bordering on Despair.—That the very Women enter the Field, and act with amazing Fortitude.—That the Friends of Liberty hope Great-Britain will not remain a tame Spectator of the Ruin of that magnanimous little Nation.—That the Dutch seem disposed to support them, and a War between Holland and France, is already talked of, as being very near at Hand.—That great military Preparations are making in France, where their Navy is very formidable.—
