The following is the King of Swiden's Speech, at the Open-ing of the Dyet, In Wednesday the 25th of June 3 and is looked upon as a Master-piece of Eloquence.

MOST noble, most reverend, trusty and well be-loved, the Mea who compose the Four Orders of the Swedish People.

Every Thing at this prefent Moment, even the very Every Thing at this present Moment, even the very Place I occupy, calls to my Mind, as it does to yours, our great and common Loss. When the States of the Kingdom terminated their last Assembly, they beheld in this Place a King, respected and beloved, surrounded by affectionate Subjects, and Three Sons, who disputed with them the Advantage of giving him the arongest Proofs of their Veneration and their Love. In the stead of a Sight so affecting, you now behold only Three Osphans, overwhelmed with Grief, who mingle their Tears with yours, and whose Wounds bleed afresh at the Sight of those which seem to rend your Hearts. your Hearts.

The Tears of Subjects are the most glorious Monuments that can be raifed to the Memory of a good King. Those which you fied this Day, are a Spur to me that animates me to Virtue, and an Encouragement to merit, after the Example of a Father to fince tely regretted, your Attachment and Confidence, by Clemency and Goodness.

I shall say nothing here about the Transactions of Government these works had been about the Transactions of Government.

Government, fince your last Meeting. You will be informed of them by the Pieces that shall be commuinformed of them by the Pieces that shall be communicated to you. My Absence did not permit me to effect any Thing for the publick Good's however, if we have the Happiness now to see Peace reign at home and abread, Friendship preserved, and Confidence lecurely established with the Neighbours and oldest Allies of this Kingdom, these are the Fraits of the Prudence and Wildom of Administration, to which I am glad to testify publickly here my Acknowledgment.

As to the Object of the present Assembly, I think I need not say any Thing about it. You know what need not say any Thing about it. You know what the great Change that has happened in this State requires of you; you know your Rights, and it is to exert them that you are here convoked. For that End, I wish you the Blessing of Heaven, that Peace and Unity may preside in all your Counsels, and lead them to a happy Issue.

Born and educated among you, I learnt from my earliest Youth to love the Country, to consider it as the greatest Happiness to be a Swede, and as the greatest Glory to be the first Citizen of a free Country. All my Defigns will be fulfilled, if the Resolutions you are going to pass, contribute to strengthen the Felicity, Glory, and Independence of this Nation; to see it happy, is the first Object of my Wishes; to govern it free and independent, is the last End of my

Do not think, my dear Swedes, that thefe are empty Professions, belied, perhaps, by the secret Motions of my Heart; they are the faithful Expressions of what that Heart feels; too upright not to be incere; too haughty to be ever falle to its Engagements.

I have feed feveral Countries; I have endeavoured to agtain a Knowledge of their Morals, their Form of Government; the Situation more or less advantageous of their People. I have founds that it is neither are of their People. I have found, that it is neither arbitrary Power in the Hands of the Prince; nor Luxury and Magnificence; nor Treafures amaded by Occinomy, that can render the Subjects happy; that can become for daily by Conceded and the Love of the become so only by Concord, and the Love of the Country. It then depends solely on yourselves to be the happiest Nation on Earth. Let this Dyet be distinguished for ever in our Annals by the Sacrifice of every private Views of Avery Rancour of personal every private View; of every Rancour of personal Jealousy, to the grand Interest of the publick Weal. I shall, on my Side, contribute to the utmost of my Power to conciliate your divided Minds; to retunite your Hearts alignated from each other than the off your Hearts alienated from each other, that this Afa fembly may become, with the Bleffing of the Most High, the Æra of a permanent Felicity to this Kinga

I affure you all, and every one in particular, of my Royal Good-will and Protection.

_ As to the Ccremonial, you knew as much of it before it took Place as we do now; you will perhaps wish to hear a few of the Occurrences of the Day.

"After Dinner the new Regulation of the Lord Steward took Place about the Scramble; as it was thought a better Plan of Occomony to carry the Victuals to the Mob, than to let the Mob come to the Victuals. Accordingly the Windows of the Castle were thrown open, and the Provisions tossed out to the gaping Croud below. A Cloud of Hams, Chickens, Pasties, Croud below. A Cloud of Hams, Chickens, Pasties, Haunches, and Delicacies of every Kind, with Knives, Forks, Plates, Table-Cloths and Napkins, their Companions, darkened the Air. This was succeeded by Showers of Liquor; some conveyed in Bottles properly corked, but the greater Part in Rain. The Scramble was more diverting than any Part of the preceding Farce. You would see one stooping for a Fowl, and a great Ham falling plump on his Back; against the Back of Lord —, and made an Impression on it to like a Gridiron, that all the Mob, after they ceafed their Laughter, cried out, Smoke after they eeafed their Laughter, cried out, Smoke the Merry Andrew.

60 Our Inn-keepers and Inhabitants are more difappointed than any, for they alked fo extravagantly before the Day for Ledgings, Provisions, and Accommodations; that you have a Bed, Stabling, and every Convenience where you please, and for what you please. I must inform you, that Two or Three Days before the Initallation, it was almost impossible for any of the Inhabitants to get Provisions at any Rate, as every Thing was kept for this Day; so that we had like to have starved in the Midst of Plenty, but fortulately for us, the Melancholy News arrived that it is nately for us, the Melancholy News arrived that it is the Cuten was dead, and the Installation would be postponed. Immediately the Price of Provisions sunk almost to nothing; and had the Report continued for many Hours, the Ceremony of throwing, Provisions out of Window would have begun
