

heretofore find no inconvenience from the change. They appear no longer in breast and back plates. That armour with which the Turkish lady thought the chastity of European females was preserved, when the lady Mary Wortley Montague dript for the bath, is now entirely removed, and, in the language of uncle Toby, it may be said, all is made level with the fosse, except the breast work!

From there having scarcely been any spring, we suppose is the reason why every body wears yellow. The dutchess first put it on, then the countess, then the viscountess, then the baroness, then the city knights wives, then the city dames, the shop keepers wives, then the tradesmens wives, then the whole sisterhood of Marybone, then the Whitechapel ladies, then the Wapping girls as far as Ratcliff's cross, and from that to the beauties of salt-petre-bank, Duke's place, and the delightful avenues at the western rear of Whitechapel. Every orange wench has yellow ribands, and even the lady at the dogs meat stall in Fleet-market, has her cap yellowed. Nay, this fashionable colour is now so extensively worn, that every woman in Newgate and the new prison and Clerkenwell, and the Poultry compter, wears yellow ribands. The very remnant of the noper pickers who were left as a legacy by the Welsh emigrants of last summer, wear yellow ribands as they cut alparagus in the Deptford gardens.—What a bewitching colour this yellow must be, thus to invade the fancy and catch the good opinion of all ranks of people? Above twenty millions of yards of this article have been sold within a month, and wagon loads are every day packing up for the country. Blue indeed is now the fashion among people of rank, who as soon as my lady's own woman hands the fashion down to the cobweb destroying sisterhood, always look upon it to be vulgar. There was not a yellow riband in the neighbourhood of St. James's yesterday. The vulgarity have it all to themselves, and it may justly be remarked, they are yellow all over.

On Friday night last, two gentlemen going from the duke of Port and's at Chiswick, to Harrow, were stopped by a highwayman, who very civilly demanded their money; the gentleman nearest him gave him some money, and advised him to quit such a profession, warning him of the ill consequence that must attend it; the man expressed himself to be very distressed, and that the desperation of his affairs on y had driven him to it. The gentleman generously offered, that if his story was true, and he would give him his direction, he would endeavour to provide for him. The man was in a doubt whether to trust to him, and the gentleman taking a direction from a letter to give him, when some carriages unluckily coming up, the man made off; or this poor wretch would probably have been saved from the gallows.

August 9. General Ogelthorpe can say more than can be said by the subject of a young prince in Europe, or perhaps that ever reigned. He founded the province of Georgia, in America; he has lived to see it flourish and become of consequence to the commerce of Great-Britain; he has seen it in a state of rebellion, and he now beholds it independent of its mother country, and of great political importance in one quarter of the globe.

The following curious hand bill, we are assured, by a gentleman just arrived from Dublin, was stuck up in several parts of that city on Saturday last. This is to certify, that I, Daniel O'Flannaghan, am not the person that was tarred and feathered by the liberty mob on Tuesday last; and I am ready to give twenty guineas to any one that will bet me fifty that I am the other man, who goes by my name.

Witness my hand this 30th of July,
DAN. O'FLANNAGHAN.

Last week the inhabitants of Bristol were thrown into the great inquietude, by a fellow's prediction of the general dissolution of the world, and all worldly things, on a certain day now past. The magistrates committed him to Bridewell.

Extract of a letter from the Orient, July 30.
"Monteleuante de Gasse is gone home to the place of his exile. The captains of de Suffren's fleet have not yet received sentence for their conduct in the East Indies; they are yet on board the Amphion of fifty guns, where they have been already imprisoned near twelve months."

MONTEGO-BAY, (Jamaica) August 7.
On Friday night, the 30th ult. between 9 and 10 o'clock, it came on to blow hard, attended with rain, from the N. E. but the wind soon after shifted to the S. E. at which point it continued, with violent squalls, till three the next morning. Happily the shipping in this harbour, or the adjacent ports on the north side, sustained no accident, nor, by our information from the country, do we learn, that any material damage has been the consequence.

While Divine Providence has been mercifully pleased to preserve us from shipwreck, devastation and ruin, we feel ourselves under the greatest concern and anxiety for the distress and calamities that were produced that night by a violent hurricane, which pervaded the harbours of Kingston, Port-Royal, and all the eastern parts of the island.

Plantain Garden River, on Saturday morning, was wholly under water.

Our accounts from Westmoreland, we are happy to inform our readers, are more favourable than the preceding. The country has sustained but little damage; but we have to regret the misfortune of the ship Mary, captain Hoare, being drove on shore; she will, however be got off.

The following letter is the substance of our intelligence from Black river:

Extract of a letter from Black-river, dated August 3.
"There was a very severe gale of wind here, on Friday night the 30th ult. it began about nine, and blew with great violence, till near three in the morning. The brig Lucy, belonging to captain Lawless, was drove out to sea, when she overset, and all on board, to the number of eight, perished, except one white boy. Amongst the unfortunate were Mess. Dixon and Bennet, pilots of this harbour. There has been little damage done to the bay; but all the plantain walks, &c. up the parish are blown down. The ship Apollo, captain Craig, the schooner Adventure, captain Young, and a small sloop, rode it out without any damage."

NEW-HAVEN, September 21.

Extra of a letter from Jamaica, dated August 1, 1784.
"On account of the apprehensions of the inhabitants, from the late dreadful hurricane, the governor and council have given permission for the space of four months from the date hereof, to vessels of all nations, and all sizes, to bring in lumber and provisions—but not permitted to carry the smallest quantity of produce from the island."

NEW-YORK, October 1.

The public are requested to be very cautious in receiving guineas; a number of persons have lately been detected in the country counterfeiting them; they are somewhat larger than the good ones, otherwise they are extremely well executed.

PHILADELPHIA, October 5.

On unday last about 11 o'clock, as a young man was helping a young woman into a barge at the end of a wharf in Chester, the boat, not being fastened, parted from the wharf, by which means they both fell into the river and were unfortunately drowned. The inhabitants, after searching for the bodies till all hopes of recovering them to life were lost, sent off a boat to give notice to their friends, who, it is said, live on an island near the Jersey shore, opposite to Chester. Our informant, a stranger to them and their connections, is of opinion they were lovers, and hopes they deserve the same good character given to John Hewitt and Sarah Drew, who were killed by a flash of lightning, in England, about 50 years ago. It is, the pains of death must have been mitigated by the pleasure of expiring in each others arms.

THE subscriber having just returned to this state, after a seven years service in the American army, finds himself under the disagreeable necessity of applying to the next general assembly, for a law to enable him, in a summary way, to compel payment of the balances due him as sheriff of Cecil county, which office he held at the commencement of the late war, and by which he was prevented from making his collections.
