L O N D O N, March 20.

FXX HURSDAY laft, at St. James's, Clerk-HURSDAY last, at St. James's, Clerkenwell, a remarkable wedding was iolemnifed: A woman about forty years of age, who has been totally blind many years, heard a young man, whole apprenticing to a shoemaker had lateiy expired, at work in her net libourhood from very early in the morning
unit late every night: conceiving a favourable opinion of him from tiefe proofs of air industrious disposition, de mate him a present of a fliver watch and a suit of costing and besides lent him ten pounds, the better to easile him to carry on his business. Latt week he costns; and nefides lent him ten pounds, the better to etable him to carry on his business. Last week he writed on his beneractiefs, and informed her, that having received offers or great encouragement, he was prepaing to fet cut for Leicestersfaire; to settle there arrong his friends; adding, that he would exert his utened indeavours, speeding to differange the unfolicited frices she had heaped upon him. She commenced his recorden, but next day iffued out a writ, which being tened upon him, he was tiken to a lock up-house. therfiten bim in his confinement, and informed him that the must immediately pay the money, go to prilon, or many her. He agreed to the latter offer, and a likend was procured, but he was detained in custody un in Thursday morning, when the parties proceeded from the order up house to church, who is the officer who had made the writ upon the orde groom, acted as saberto the price, who is possessed of about a thousand

It is not improper to remark, that the consent of me to this exchange, was supposed to have been obtied by the reversion by cession of Flanders, upon the of the elector of Bavaria. This we still think with of the elector of Bavaria. This we fittl think their flaves, in all more than the part the French take in denote the Dutch will be the touchstone. May 14. Bath porter is become very fastionable: the brownous of Mellieurs Wairen and clark, vying with the London breweries, have got the decided opinion or Barba ios, and the Leeward and French islands, in their favour, St. Lucia, Martinique, and Guadaloupe, taking it in giret quantities from our merchants at Barbados, st Vincents and Dominique; and if their figure exportations to this illong though he rough to the furuse exportations to this iffent fround be equal to the said imported, they will outvie shone and Ben Kenton, as it is confessed by those who have tasted it, to be of a good quirty, of a fine colour and flavour, and as oright as ameer.

ecounts from the leeward parishes mention, that the finan-pox has begun to make its appearance—in quot caput excudetut jaba?

The late exports from America to this idand of corn, has reduced the price of that commodity to leven shillings and fix pence per the fingle bushe; and from appearances in the different parish s, the price of that article will be I. flened confiderably in a flort space of time—And it is with pleasure we add, that commercial houses in fown hoursy attend the arrival of vessels from our infant fettiements to the northward, with iumber, the price of which article is now on the rite

May 18. Although no accounts have been formally received, which could be entirely depended on, from the Mulqu'to thore, respecting the progress of the dispute with the Spaniards, but fuch as involved us in thick crows and darkness, yet we have now the tatifiastion to affure the public, from indisputable authority, that a kind of treaty has been attendity brought to perfection, between the English and Spanish commandance of the same who had a meeting for that any pole in the ing officers, who had a meeting for that purpole in the city of Truxillo; which thipwates that English settiers shall remain in quiet and peaceable possition of the country for the term of two years to come, and that in the mean time proper measures shall be used, by noth parties, to accelerate the conclusion of a special treaty between the courts of London and Madrid, for the final adjustment of every difference respecting the ciaims of either power to the territory in that quarter of the world.

Late advices from America give no very favourable representation of the actual state of trade there. "Want of punctuality" lay they in the performance of engagements, has ruined our credit abroad; while at home, fearcity of money, low prices of dry goods, enhanced value of produce, heavy taxes, and a general but too well founded diffrust, soggest the most gloomy and dis ouraging prospects to every honest man, who has the missortune to be engaged in commerce."

He had lately contracted matrimeny with a symph of bad character, and it was supposed that remarks occasioned him to commit the horid catastrophe.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.

By the thip Alexander, we learn, that owing to the great importation of delians into Glafgow, the bankers of that city had advertised that they would receive them at no lingher value than four fliffings; and that tingy were current at that price; and at 4/2. The value or a do far usually was four failings and fix pence fleiling.

We also learn, that the new taxes in Britain coure the greatest alarm, and meet with the greatest oppositi-on; particularly the tax on windows, saddle hories and cottons. A petition from the manufacturers of Giargow had been preiented, which gave great offence to mi-niters, on account or the forested manner it remon-thated against their measures. The tixes however must thatest against their measures. The trives however must be paid; for at pie ent, according to their own accounts, their expenditures exceed their incomes two millions of unde Geiling or unwarde ner aunum

The proposed commercial regulations with Ireland, are another fource of disquietu.'s in the British dominions:—If the demands of Ireland are compiled with, the merchants and manufacturers of Britain win be in an uproar; if they are not complied with, the people will be in arms, and endeavour to procure by force what they cannot obtain by treaty...

Though the British aff drs are in this difference flate, and though the nations of Europe feem to neglect and and though the nations of Europe teem to neglect and contenn them, yet it is furpriling to tee the haughty airs they affume, particularly with respect to merica. We sufficiently know their endeavours to defroy our trade. Their political publications are replets with the most ridiculous effections respecting France and America. In a late periodical work of confiderable repute, they say, "If Great-Britzin would but kee aboot, and leave the United States to their own weekly among a trade. leave the United States to their own weight among the powers of the earth, without intermedding or courting the aliance, they would took fee and feel what they have loft in the friendship and protection of Great Bristain; and most enrietly implose that they might be teinstated in her favour, and again entitled to her pro-tection." Is this the language of intolene, or identifin? These Britains may be compared to a Bedianite, who, though confined to his cell, and fitting on his thaw bed, yet conceits he is a mighty monarch, iw you; a fleptre, giving law to furrounding tributary nations.
