Congress having received the report of the convention lately assembled in Philadelphia,

Resolved unanimously, THAT the said report, with the resolutions and letter accompanying the same, be transmitted to the several legislatures, in order to be submitted to a convention of delegates, chosen in each flate by the five months. prople thereof, in conformity to the resolves of the convention, made and provided in that case.

CHARLES THOMSON, Jecretary. ANNAPOLIS, Ocher 11.

The tollowing gentlemen are elected members of the house of delegates in the ensuing general assembly, viz.

For Charles county, George Dent, John Parnham, William Hanson McPherson and Henry Henley Chapman, Eiguires.

For Baltimore county, Harry Dorsey Gough, Edward Cockey, Thomas Cockey Deye, and Charles Ridgely, Esquires.

On Friday last arrived here the brig Britannia Yacht, captain Hunter from Jamaica, and on Sunday, the ship Patewmack, captain White, from London, by whom we have received prints to the 16th of August, from which the following is extracted, viz.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 15.

The great victory gained by the captain pacha over the troops of Machmed pacha is confirmed; however, it has not been considerable enough to reduce that rebel to the danger of falling into the power of his enemies; on the contrary, his forces become every day more formidable on the fide of Albania, and it will be necessary to attack him by

There is not much appearance that the war will be of long duration in these countries; but on the contrary, that all the differences will be terminated agreably by the intervention of some respectable courts. The internuncio from the court of Vienna, returned here the 14th of this month from Cherson. That miniter remained fix days with the emperor his master; and it is believed that he is charged with a commission, rending to terminate the differences which have taken place; but as he has not yet said any thing on the subject, it is most probable that he is waiting the return of the minister from the court of Russia, who is daily expected. In the mean time the Porte does not appear to be disposed to relax in the least thing, but still continues absolutely to exact of Rullia, the independence of the Georgians. The echief of that nation, the prince Heraclius, reduced to despair by the continual invasions of the Tartars, Leighis and Abasas, is reduced to the necessity in consequence of not having been supported by Russia, conformable to the treaty, of addresting himself to Pacha of Achilka, to demand his mediation, which has been granted him on condition that he instantly declares the Georgians independent of Russia, and dependent on the Porte, and that he gives up two of his tons, and some persons of distinction as private letter written on the occasion by a canon of St. Omer, and dated from that place. July 24:--I had the pleasure last night to notice a moon rainbow. As this phænomenon is rather scarce, and has not, to my knowledge, been hitherto observed when the moon is not in its full, I have been more particular in my remarks. I was croffing the plain of Agincourt, so much renowned in history by the total defeat of the French army in the year 1415. and from the untold number of the killed on that fatal day, justly denominated Le Cimetiere des François. It was then about ten at night. The silent darkness county. then reigning all around, the approaches of a florm which threatened me with a fudden eruption, together with some reflections arising in my mind, from the very spot, on the evils brought at all times, and likely to disturb, in every age, the happiness of the verie; it rained then but gently, and foon the fky cleared up to the S. W the moon appeared, and towards the N. E. I observed a rainbow, not indeed in a complete form; its basis seemed to rest on the ground, but could not boast of that variety of colours peculiar to a fun-rainbow. Extrast of a tetter from Naples, July 12. The armed Fellucca, which was cruifing against the Barbary vessels at the expence of the owners of the Feluccas, destined to fish for coral, commanded by captain Michael Accardo of this city, has taken a Tunisian merchant galley, richly laden with leather, filk, &c. and several fums of money belonging to some rich Algerine merchants, who were going to Bona on their own private bufiness. Such a rich capture may be looked upon as a good reprifal upon the regency of Algiers, as the merchants taken are of the first families, and some of them relations been tended for several years; there is on the lands of the dey. The prize has been sent to Messina with the most rigorous orders for the security of the flaves, who are left at the disposal of government, and are to perform the usual quarantine. These slaves declare, that they lest Tunis at the solicitation of some Aigerine merchants, who, although they had some considerable sums of money owing them there, thought proper to go to Bona, in Africa, to put themselves in safety, as it was the general opinion of Tunis, that the Algerine army was only two days march from the capital, and notwithstanding the mediation of the French consul, they foresaw an open rupture between the regencies."

August 16. By letters from Weissenberg we learn, that in the night of the 2d or third of July, a dreadful fire happened in that little city, which reduced 36 houses to ashes, besides other buildings belonging to them. The unhappy sufferers were not able to fave any of their effects.

Our letters from Paris, bring dreadful accounts of a storm which happened on the 13th of July, in Chestrain, particularly at Saumery, Bowville, Vitray and Andeville, where it was to extremely violent, that in less than a quarter of an hour, the earth was covered a foot deep with the hail -Men, horses, I in Calvert county, to the chancellor, praying birds, and in short every thing has suffered from this dreadful visitation; the harvest is entirely destroyed and the face of the country desolated. The hail stones were of an angular form, and as large as pullet's eggs.
