HAMILTON, of Montgomery county, it appears, that the faid Gaither afterwards, in conversation with him, acknowledged the facts set forth in the deposition above mentioned, except the firing of the gun, and declared that he did discharge the faid pistols with a delign to kill the faid Hammond, and did then turther declare that it was still his settled determination to kill the faid Hammond whenever as opportuity should offer: And whireas it is obviously the duty of the executive to guard as much as may be against the commission of such enormities, and to bring fuch offenders again it the laws and peace of fociety to justice-I have therefore thought proper, by and with the advice of the council, to issue this my proclamation, authorifing and enjoining all sheriffs, and other officers of the peace, to apprehend and convey before tome one of the judges or justices within this state, the said Elijah Gaither, in order that he may be dealt with according to law; and I do hereby exhort and require the good people of this state to be aiding and assitting the faid officers in the execution of their duty.

June 7, 1791.

Messrs. GREEN.

IN order fully to disclose the wicked and premeditated intent of Elijah Gaither, in his attack on me, be pleased to publish in your paper the deposition of John G. Hamilton, which is as follows:

REZIN HAMMOND.

MARYLAND, II.

N the second day of June, one thousand seven it. hundred and ninety-one, came before me, the subscriber, one of the judges of the general court, JOHN G. HAMILTON, and made oath, that on and had conversation with Elijah Gaither, son of Edward, and that, in the course of the faid conversation, the fied Gaither informed this deponent as follows :---That he had had a round with colonel Rezin Ham-of Anne-Arundel county; that the said Ham. mond had injured his reputation, and that, in confe. quence thereot, he, the faid Gaither, for several months before, had premeditated and determined to kill him. and that he came down from New-York for that purpole, that having discovered in Baltimore-town that colonel Hammond had brought fuits against him, he immediately hired horses, provided himself with thre loaded, with three builets and two buck fhot each, and a gun, which was loaded with three bullets and quantity of shot, after which (viz. on Easter Monday before day-light) he, the said Gaither, started with his servant from Elk-Ridge for colonel Hammond's place of residence with a full determination to kill him. and arrived at the tarm just after day-break; that he placed and concealed himself in a certain field belong. ing to the said farm, where it was usual for colenel Hammond to pais every morning, and so concealed. together with his faid tervant, waited for some time in expectation of the faid Hammond coming along, during which time he, the said Gaither, and his servant. watched for him alternately; that some time after funrife he, the said Gaither, finding that the said Ham-T) AN AWAY from the subscriber. mond did not pais through the faid field as he expect. a NEGRO MAN named HARed, sent his servant up to the house to inquire if the faid Hammond was at home, and if possible to discover and give him information whether the faid Hammond intended to come out, and which way he intended to go, who was at the house with him, and whether he was still in bed or not; that his servant returned and intormed him that Mr. Hammond was at home and in bed, and no body with him; whereupon the faid Gait her tormed the design of going up to the house, enter, ing Mr. Hammond's room (with which the faid Gat. her was well acquainted) and affailinating him waite in bed, but that he changed this resolution from an ap. prehension that he might be discovered before he could carry his views into execution; that he remained in his first situation until about eight o'clock, when he and his servant rode up to the house with the gun and piltols aforelaid; that when he arrived there, he fent one of Mr. Hammond's negroes into the house to inform Mr. Hammond that he wanted to speak with him; that Mr. Hammond came into the yard and invited him to alight and walk in, which he refused; that Gaither then asked Mr. Hammond to come up to him, as he wished to speak with him; whereupon Mr. Ham. mond faid, I see you are armed, and if I come to you, you will shoot me; that Gaither then promised upon his honour he would not, and that he made use of this promite as an artifice to get Mr. Hammond in his power; that Mr. Han mond then went within seven steps or thereabouts of him, and Gaither ordered him to stop, gave his gun to his servant, and alighted from his horse, at which time two of his pittols fell from his be t; that he thereupon offered Mr. Hammond a pil tol, and infifted upon fighting, which Mr. Hammond declined, because there were no witnesses by, but of. fered to fight at any subsequent day if he was bent up. on it; that Gaitster would not defer it, and said Mr. Hammond should either fight him that moment, or he would kill him; that, on hearing a noise behind him, proceeding from the approach of a negro or regroes, he, the said Gaither, turned in order to keep the said negro or negroes off, and that then colonel Hammond run from him towards the house; that he turned about, and before he had run many steps, he the said Gaither levelled one of his pistols at him, and fired the same, and was aftonished that he missed him, as he never took a more cool and deliberate aim in his life; that as foon as he found he had missed him, he drew another pistol, and before Mr. Hammond had run above fifteen sters, he fired that also at him, and thought he saw the wadding burning on his back; that thereupon, although Mr. Hammond did not fall, he the faid Gaither concluded he had killed him; but finding that he continued to run until he got into the house, and supposing that Mr. Hammond intended to get a gun, and return with it, he the faid Gaither took his gun from the tervant, and got behind the pales of the yard, and to velled his gun over the pales, with his finger upon the trigger ready to fire as foon as Mr. Hammond should come out; that Mr. Hammond did come out of the house with a gun in his hand, and fired at him, and struck him in the left hand; that thereupon, under an apprehension that Mr. Hammond's negroes were c ming to attack him, one of which had a gun, and fearing Mr Hammond would also get another gun, he mounted his horse, and as he was mounting the lad negro fired and struck him on the neck and left shoulder; that then the said Gaither went off; that the said Gaither, at the time of the above conversation, surther declared, that he was not yet satisfied, and would always go prepared for the faid Hammond, and would kill him wherever he met him, and expressed his regret and complained that he was unfortunate in not having killied him before; that this deponent endera voured to dissuade the said Gaither from the further profecution of his revenge, but that such diffusions, instead of having any salutary effect upon him, only seemed to make him the more determined; and that the said Gaither further declared, that he could reconcile it to his conscience to hire assassins to take away the life of the said Hammond; and that the debt for which Mr. Hammond had brought suit against him was a just debt, but that he never would pay it, and would kill him, or any one elfe, if he ever affect for

Sworn before me on this 2d June, 1791.
