Messrs. GREEN.

IN order fully to disclose the wicked and premeditated intent of Elijah Gaither, in his attack on me, be pleased to publish in your paper the deposition of John G. Hamilton, which is as follows:

REZIN HAMMOND.

MARYLAND, A. N the second day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-one, came before me, the ubscriber, one of the judges of the general court, JOHN G. HAMILTON, and made oath, that on or about the thirteenth of May last he was in company and had conversation with Elijah Gaither, son of Edward, and that, in the course of the faid conversation, the said Gaither informed this deponent as follows:-That he had had a round with colonel Rezin Hammond, of Anne-Arundel county; that the laid Ham. mond had injured his reputation, and that, in confequence thereof, he, the faid Gaither, for several months before, had premeditated and determined to kill him, and that he came down from New-York for that purpose, that having discovered in Baltimore-town that colonel Hammond had brought fuits against him, he immediately hired horses, provided himself with three braces of pistols, all which he loaded, or caused to be loaded, with three bullets and two buck shot each, and gun which was loaded with three bullets and a quantity of shot, after which (viz. on Easter Monday before day-light) he, the faid Gaither, started with his servant from Elk-Ridge for colonel Hammond's place of residence with a full determination to kill him, and arrived at the farm just after day-break; that placed and concealed himself in a certain field belongto the faid farm, where it was usual for colonel Hammond to pais every morning, and so concealed, together with his said servant, waited for some time in expectation of the faid Hammond coming along, during which time he, the said Gaither, and his servant, watched for him alternately; that some time after sunrife he, the faid Gaither, finding that the faid Hammond did not pass through the said field as he expected, sent his fervant up to the house to inquire if the faid Hammond was at home, and if possible to discover and give him information whether the faid Hammond intended to come out, and which way he intended to go, who was at the house with him, and whether he was still in bed or not; that his fervant returned and informed him that Mr. Hammond was at home and in bed, and no body with him; whereupon the faid Galther formed the defign of going up to the house, enter. I the next general affembly of ing Mr. Hammond's room (with which the said Gait- for an act of insolvency in her was well acquainted) and affaffinating him while to pay my debts. in bed, but that he changed this resolution from an apprehension that he might be discovered before he could carry his views into execution; that he remained in his fiest situation until about eight o'clock, when he and his fervant rode up to the boufe with the gun and pifsols aforefaid; that when he arrived there, he fent one of Mr. Hammond's negroes into the house to inform Mr. Hammond that he wanted to speak with him; that Mr. Hammond came into the yard and invited him to alight and walk in, which he refused; that Gaither then asked Mr. Hammond to come up to him, as he wished to speak with him; whereupon Mr. Ham. mond said, I see you are armed, and if I come to you, you will shoot me; that Gaither then promised upon ty, his honour he would not, and that he made use of this Reps or thereabouts of him, and Gaither ordered him to stop, gave his gun to his fervant, and alighted from his horse, at which time two of his pistols fell from his belt; that he thereupon offered Mr. Hammond a piltol, and infifted upon fighting, which Mr. Hammond declined, because there were no witnesses by, but offered to fight at any subsequent day if he was bent upon it; that Gaither would not defer it, and faid Mr. Hammond should either fight him that moment, or he would kill him; that, on hearing a noise behind him, proceeding from the approach of a negro or regroes, he, the said Gaither, turned in order to keep the said negro or negroes off, and that then colonel Hammond run from him towards the house; that he turned about and before he had run many steps, he the said Gaither levelled one of his pistols at him, and fired the same, and was aftonished that he missed him, as he never took a more cool and deliberate aim in his life; that as foor as he found he had missed him, he drew another pistol. and before Mr. Hammond had run above fifteen stepi he fired that also at him, and thought he saw the wad. ding burning on his back; that thereupon, although Mr. Hammond did not fall, he the said Gaither con. cluded he had killed him; but finding that he continued to run until he got into the house, and supposing that Mr. Hammond intended to get a gun, and return with it, he the said Gaither took his gun from the ser. vant, and got behind the pales of the yard, and le. velled his gun over the pales, with his finger upon the trigger ready to fire as soon as Mr. Hammond should come out; that Mr. Hammond did come out of the house with a gun in his hand, and fired at him, and struck him in the left hand; that thereupon, under an apprehension that Mr. Hammond's negroes were c ming to attack him, one of which had a gun, and fearing Mr Hammond would also get another gun, he mounted his horse, and as he was mounting the said negro fired and struck him on the neck and left shoulder; that then the said Gaither went off; that the said Gaither, at the time of the above conversation, further declared, that he was not yet satisfied, and would always go prepared for the said Hammond, and would kill him wherever he met him, and expressed his regret and complained that he was unfortunate in not having killed him before; that this deponent endea. voured to dissuade the said Gaither from the further prosecution of his revenge, but that such dissuasions, instead of having any salutary effect upon him, only seemed to make him the more determined; and that the said Gaither further declared, that he could reconcile it to his conscience to hire assassins to take away the life of the said Hammond; and that the debt for which Mr. Hammond had brought suit against him was a just debt, but that he never would pay it; and would kill him, or any one else, if he ever asked for Sworn before me on this 2d June, 1791.
