Bright people have from England for the treasure. June 18. Letters from England say, that the French declaration of war has given the greatest satisfaction to all ranks of citizens; and bids fair to reconcile all differences and enable the nation to direct its united force against their common object. The present circumstances of continental Europe render (it is said) the situation of Great-Britain peculiarly critical at this time, and the minister, it was feared, might be forced into a war directly contrary to his own opinion. "The English funds have almady felt a very confiderable depression, and threaten whe still lower until the impending cloud disperses." According to letters from Bourdeaux, three hundred housand men have voluntarily enlisted in France, upon finding there was a deficiency of little more than 50,000 in the line of the army. A million of men, it is said, are preparing to follow their example, if found necessary. It is mentioned in London papers, that so dreadful has been the plague in F.gypt that three handred thousand houses have been depopulated, and thut up by the order of the government. " What is very extraordinary this awful visitation, which carned off nearly half a million of people, latted but
