ANNAPOLIS, May 16. The following is a letter from general Dumourier, dated at Tirlemont, March 19.

" It is with great pain, citizen minufer, that communicate to you an account of the check which I have received. You must have seen, by my letters of velterday, that my presentiments are but too truly justified, on account of the news which I have received of the danger of Namur, in the approach of a corps of about 10,000 men, who directed themselves towards Bruxelles and Louvain. I had doubts that it would not have been in my power to preferve the publingood, without dislodging the enemy from the camp of Nervengen: I have made, in confequence, an attack on the left wing of the enemy; my centre division made their actack on Nervengon, and my left, commanded by Miranda and Champmorin, attacked on the village ----; the right and centre of the army, had some success, although the infantry was twice repulsed, and driven from the village of Nervengen. The left wing proving unfortunate, their retreat was made with confusion till behind Tirlemont, or perhaps a little further. The marshal de Camp Mielen was killed, who commanded the artillery, and two general officers were wounded in this flight, and fundry pieces of cannon taken, amongst which there were three twelve pounders.

" I am ignorant of this derangement, and I had prepared an attack for to-morrow, to complete victory. And uneasy at not hearing from Miranda, and hearing. murmurs that he had retired, I quitted the victorious part of the field in the evening, to learn the fituation of the left wing, and was altonished not to find one dead body on my way to Tirlemont. I gave orders to Miranda to resume his post on the heights of St.

Margarita to cover the retreat. " I send you, citizen minister, a letter from Valence, who was wounded, and who is now on his way to Bruxelles. I am going back to the camp of Louvain to cover Bruxelles and Malines. I cannot dissimulate that the evil of disorganization is at its heighth. I fear for the event of this retreat, in a country where we have aggravated the inhabitants by pillage, and the indiscipline of the troops. I will do all I can to save the army, who place in me the utmost considence, and I swill abide by their judgment. I will submit myself to the most severe examination, and I will demand a court-martial to judge of my conduct. Too happy if the facrifice of my life can be of utility to the glorious cause of liberty! and I shall fight till I die, or am condemned by the patriots. I fear not the judgment of my fellaw-citizens, or the reproach of potterity.— You will fee that our loss has been considerable, about ing the thief, so that he be brought to punishment. 2000 men. I must pass the utmost praise on the bravest soldiers of the universe, but we are in want of experienced officers. I propose a suppression of the mode of electing them. This mode gives neither talents nor confidence, and will never produce subordination.

(Signed) On the 21st of March, the commissioners at Guadaloupe, issued a provisional decree, opening the ports of Basseterre and Point-a-Petre, to vessels belonging to the United States of America, with all kinds of provisions, paying the local duties.
