Toevery description, indeed, of citizens let praise be given. But let them persevere in their affectionate vigilance over that precious depository of American happiness, the constitution of the United States. Let them cherish it too, for the sake of those, who from very clime, are daily seeking a dwelling in our land. And when in the calm moments of reflection, they shall have retracted the origin and progress of the insurrection, let them determine whether it has not been fomented by combinations of men, who, eareless of consequences, and disregarding the unerring truth, that those who rouse, cannot always appeale, a civil convulsion,—have disseminated, from an ignorance or perversion of facts, suspicions, jealosies, and accusations of the whole government.

Having thus fulfilled the engagement, which I took, when I entered into office, "to the best of my ability to preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States," on you, Gentlemen, and the people by whom you are deputed, I rely for support.

In the arrangements, to which the possibility of a similar contingency will naturally draw your attention, it ought not to be forgotten, that the militia laws have exhibited such striking desects, as could not have been supplied but by the zeal of our citizens. Besides the extraordinary expence and waste, which are not the least of the defects, every appeal to those laws is attended with a doubt on its success.

The devising and establishing of a well regulated militia, would be a genuine source of legislative honour, and a perfect title to public gratitude. I therefore entertain a hope, that the present session will not pals, without carrying to its full energy the power of organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia; and thus providing, in the language of the constitution, for calling them forth to execute the laws of the union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions.

As auxiliary to the state of our defence, to which congress can never too frequently recur, they will not omit to inquire, whether the fortifications which have been already licenced by law, be commensurate with HREE NEGROES, one a healthy promising our exigencies.

And yet, even at this late hour, when our power to punish them cannot be questioned, we shall not be unwilling to cement a lasting peace, upon terms of candour, equity, and good neighbourhood .-Towards none of the Indian tribes have overtures of friendship been spared. The Creeks in particular, are covered from encroachment by the interpolition of the general government and that of Georgia. From a defire also to remove the discontents of the Six Nations, gun, a settlement, meditated at Presque Isse on Lake Erie, has been suspended; and an agent is now endeavouring to rectify any misconception, into which they may have fallen. But I cannot refrain from again pressing upon your deliberations, the plan which I recomfixing and conducting of trading houses, upon the

Indeed whatsoever is unfinished of our syftem of public credit, cannot be benefited by procrastination; and as far as may be practicable, we ought to piace that credit on grounds which cannot be disturbed, and to prevent that progressive accumulation of debt which must ultimately endanger all governments. An estimate of the necessary appropriations, including the expenditures into which we have been drivenby the insurrection, will'be submitted to Congreis.
