

present season, has exceeded all calculation. Thirty buildings will be added to this flourishing village, and it appears that arrangements are making for the erection of a greater number the ensuing season—indeed the charming beauties of its situation, the delightful view of the limpid waters of Lake Otsego, which open its fair bosom to the windows of every house in town, the unparalleled salubrity of its air, and the industry and wealth of its surrounding inhabitants, are attractions which irresistibly arrest the attention of all foreign and domestic emigrants. But two adults have died in Cooperstown since its settlement, one of which died of the small-pox, the other was drowned.
