

lately made by Mr. Schluden, a general in the Prussian service, of a cartel, by virtue of which the generals belonging to the two powers, and also the generals of the Batavian troops, shall reciprocally surrender their deserters.

NEW-YORK, February 15.

The ship Tanner, capt. O'Brian, arrived here yesterday from London.

The advices by the Tanner are to the 23d December, at which date the ship sailed from Gravesend: she passed the Downs on the 25th.

The articles of verbal news are, that no event of consequence has occurred at Paris, since the 9th and 10th November, except that Buonaparte and Sieyès continue to absorb all power, legislative as well as executive; that the Irish parliament had been prorogued; and the prevailing opinion was that they would not meet again; that the coalition were resolved upon another campaign; and though the Russians had left the field, their return was determined upon on the opening of the campaign and that Denmark had joined the coalition.

There was no intelligence in London of the arrival of our commissioners at Paris.

An article under the Turin head, of November 12, states the loss of the French, in the actions which took place in Italy from the 5th to the 8th, at 13,000 men, in killed, wounded and prisoners.

[From another paper.]

We understand, from the best information which can be collected, that the late revolution at Paris, affords no prospect of peace in Europe. On the contrary, another campaign is expected; and it is believed the Danes and Swedes will also come into the coalition against France.

The retreat of the Russians into Bavaria, is supposed only to be a temporary arrangement to pass the winter in a plentiful country; and that with the opening of the campaign, they will march to join the Austrians on the Rhine.

Switzerland, it is supposed, will be declared neutral, and in consequence, the offensive operations of the next year directed to the countries on the banks of the Rhine—to the Low Countries—and to Italy.

By the latest accounts from Paris, every thing was quiet in that city. A plan of a new constitution has been proposed: but nothing yet decided on. Every exertion was making to raise money, and to recruit the armies.

The consuls were pursuing a moderate system of government; several odious decrees of the late directory had been done away, and many emigrants permitted to return.

The combined French and Spanish fleet lay in Brest harbour, off which port an English fleet of 20 sail of the line, under admiral Gardner, was cruising to observe them.

The harvest in England has not turned out to be so bad as was expected, and the prices of grain had declined considerably.

PHILADELPHIA, February 17.

The frigate Philadelphia, capt. Decatur, now in this port, will be ready for sea, and we understand, has received orders to sail on the first Monday in March, wind and weather permitting.

A letter from capt. Truxton, dated on board the Constellation, Basseterre Roads, 22d Jan. mentions that a 44 gun French ship, and a corvette of 28 guns were at Guadaloupe. The Constellation was then preparing to sail from Basseterre to watch the movements of the Frenchmen.

Annapolis, February 27.

Saturday last, the 22d instant, being the day appointed by the proclamations of the President of the United States, and of the Governor of this State, "as a day of mourning, humiliation and prayer," the same was observed in this city in the most public and solemn manner, as a just tribute to the memory of our beloved citizen, and venerated chief, general GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The dawn of day was announced by a morning gun; and the colours were suspended from the dome of the state-house, in mourning.

At half past ten o'clock the procession, which had been previously formed, proceeded from the state-house, in the following order:

- The Governor,
- Ministers of the Gospel.
- Executive,
- Clerks and Judges of the General Court.
- Officers of Government.
- Professors of the College.
- Mayor and Corporation of the City.
- Officers of Militia.
- Infantry.
- Citizens.

During the procession minute guns were fired—the bell tolling.

As soon as the citizens were assembled, the service for the day was performed. The rev. Mr. Higginbotham delivered a discourse from the following words: It is appointed for all men, once to die. In which the eminent virtues and distinguished services of the deceased were portrayed in strong and elegant language. He recommended to the imitation of the rising generation an example so conspicuously set before them—and implored the Most High God, to supply his place by inspiring us with a love of true liberty and religion, and by dispensing the blessings of peace and knowledge throughout the land; and that he would grant to the people of this and the United States that the wisdom and virtues of a WASHINGTON might never cease to influence and direct our public councils."

In the afternoon the rev. Mr. Roberts officiated in the same church. The service commenced by a hymn suitable to the occasion. A pious and pertinent prayer was then addressed to the Supreme Being—After which he delivered an eloquent and masterly discourse from the following text: Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel.

Never did we witness such a numerous or respectable assemblage in this church (both in the morning and evening,) than on the above melancholy occasion. Every heart attested the truth of the expression, That take him all in all we never shall look upon his like again.

From The AMERICAN, (Baltimore) of the 25th inst. INTERESTING.

Extract of a letter from an officer on board the Enterprise cutter, captain Shaw, to a gentleman of the first respectability in this city, dated

PORT PENN, (Del.) Feb. 22

"We yesterday arrived here with dispatches for government, from captain Truxton, who has had an engagement with a 54 gun French ship; the Constellation fought five hours, had 19 men killed, and 20 wounded, lost all her masts, and was reduced almost to a wreck. The guns of the Frenchmen were silenced, and the ship would have been taken, had not the Constellation loit her main-mast, at the time she was about to give the Frenchman a finishing blow. By this means the enemy got off, or sunk, for she was not to be seen on the morning. Truxton has gone to Jamaica to refit.

"The Enterprise has taken two prizes on this, her first cruise."
