

From the (New-York) Daily Advertiser, March 30.

SERIOUS QUARREL.
Captain Noyes, of the Revenue, arrived here yesterday in four days from Norfolk, informs, that a very serious dispute took place there yesterday week, between part of the crew of the French frigate Secillante, and a number of British and American sailors on shore, in which between 20 and 30 of the former were killed and wounded. Captain N. saw two of the French killed.

[The Norfolk Herald of the 24th March gives no account of such an event having occurred.]

It is extraordinary that the Christian name of Buonaparte is Destroyer. The Greek word is Apolon, which Mrs. Piozzi, in her Retrospect, says, is pronounced Napollione in the Corsican tongue.

A very curious and interesting scene passed, on the 23d of January last, at the sitting of the London Royal Society:—Some valuable books, magnificently bound, were presented to the society from the National Institute of France. A letter of compliment accompanied the present, signed Buonaparte, President of the National Institute, and first consul of France; and on the letter was a finely executed vignette, representing Liberty sailing on the open ocean in a scollop shell, with the following motto: Liberty de Mer. Sir Joseph Banks read the letter, and put the question, that a letter of thanks be returned to Buonaparte, which was unanimously carried.

From the Sun, of February 10.

To many it will be a consolation, that in all probability, the same system upon which we have hitherto gone, is to be pursued! A new attempt is to be made to negotiate with Buonaparte, and a passport is to be asked for lord St. Helens to go to Paris. It is proper to shew a disposition to treat—it may help to conciliate the people to the new arrangements!

The British frigates Dædalus, of 32 guns, Brave, of 44, Sybill, of 44, and Centurion, of 50, have been spoken bound upon an expedition against Batavia.

It is reported that Benjamin Rittenhouse, of Montgomery county, brother of the late celebrated David Rittenhouse, is to succeed to the direction of the Mint; Mr. Elias Boudinot being about to retire from that situation.

The various substitutes for rags in the manufacture of paper, says a late London paper, afford some curious speculation to philologists. If they continue to increase, it may not be difficult to prove that all nature is impregnated with this principle, and that the elements are earth, air, fire, water, and foolscap! April 3.

It appears by the census recently taken in Portsmouth, N. H. that it contains 5511 inhabitants—In 1791 it contained 4728.

Arrangements are making in Philadelphia to publish a weekly paper, to be entitled, "The Christian Monitor;" the object of which is to counteract the pernicious tendency of immoral and deistical publications, by disseminating, at a cheap rate, literary, moral, and religious knowledge.

The French government are about to take measures to effect a canal navigation between the Scheldt and Paris. They have advertised for proposals to carry the plan into execution, and the best mode of doing it.
