

Such are the qualities of the squadron, and such the experience, skill, and enterprise of the commanders and officers, that little doubt ought to be entertained of their punishing severely any aggressions on the part of the Barbary powers against the United States.

A paper printed at Chilicothe, in the N. W. Territory, on the 30th ult. contains the following:—

"A report has been current, for several days, and which we fear is too well founded, that a small squadron of British frigates had blockaded the port of Orleans; that the price of flour had fallen from 15 dollars a barrel to 5 dollars; and that those who had taken down large quantities in expectation of an immediate sale, had been obliged to store it.

"A new brig, built at Marietta, having on board 800 barrels of flour, &c. &c. left that place last week, and is now going down the Ohio, bound for the West-Indies, but, in consequence of the blockade, will be detained at Orleans."
