The LAWS of MARYLAND,
Passed November session, 1803.

Poet's Corner.

ORIGINAL.

For the MARYLAND GAZETTE.

[The following lines were occasioned by the untimely death of a young Lady who fell a prey to extreme sensibility. The time of her nuptials had been fixed, when her admirer ungenerously violating the solemn vows he had made, she sunk under the disappointment. The authoress, from a long intimacy with the deceased, knew and admired the amiable qualities that adorned her immature life.]

WHY dost thou, blushing Rose, look gay?
To mock my faded form?
I'll turn me from thy smiles away,
Nor heed thy vermeil charm.

When evening comes to blast thy bloom,
And bid thy colours die,
In thy decay I'll read the doom
Of creatures such as I.

Yan oak, of late the forest's pride,
Now lifeless limbs extends;
The grey moss curls along its side,
And Spring no foliage lends.

Once in the pride of youth it stood,
And bow'd 'neath ev'ry blast,
But now denied the veg'tive flood,
It moulders to its last.

So when Youth's spring our cheeks adorn
With health's empurpling glow,
"Blithe as the Lark we hail the morn,"
Nor heed th' impending blow.

But cruel Love, of faithless mein,
Soon prompts the secret sigh;
We love alas! oft love in vain,
Then sicken, pine and die.

But why should I at fate repine,
Or shed th' unceasing tear?
The fault, HORATIO, sure was thine!
Thou fix'd the arrow here.

"That great first cause" who gave me breath,
Compassionates my woe;
He sends the friendly arm of death
To lay MARIA low:

—Now Joy, which long had fled my breast,
Resumes her wonted reign;
I fly to realms of blissful rest
From scenes of care and pain.

MALVINA.

FROM THE TRUE AMERICAN.

Messrs. PRINTERS,

FROM the number of marriages which I weekly see published, it appears as if the Ladies were availing themselves of the privilege which Leap-Year gives them of wooing the gentlemen: and that their soft, mild, fluent, and persuasive tongues, and elegant and captivating manners and address, have obtained for them a success which the awkward behaviour and clumsy conversation of the Gentlemen never could achieve. As a friend to matrimony, however, and from a wish to save the Ladies from the necessity of pleading too loudly their own merits, and pressing too closely their own suits, I send you an extract from a celebrated pamphlet called "The Bachelors Tattoo," which I hope will stimulate those gentlemen, both old and young, who to the disgrace of themselves, to the injury of their country, and in contempt of the powerful host of attraction which embellish our American Fair, continue to live single, useless, and miserable lives, to take unto themselves helpmates, companions, and comforters.

NO FRIEND TO CELIBACY.

"If you are for pleasure—Marry!
If you prize rosy health—Marry!
And even if money be your object—Marry!"

"A GOOD WIFE is "Heaven's last best gift to man;" his angel and minister of graces innumerable; his Sal Polechrestum or gem of many virtues: his Pandora, or casket of celestial jewels; her presence forms his best company; her voice, his sweetest music; her smiles, his brightest day; her kiss, the guardian of his innocence; her arms, the pale of his safety, the balm of his health, the balsam of his life; her industry his surest wealth; her economy, his safest steward; her lips, his faithfullest counsellors; her bosom, the softest pillow of his cares; and her prayers the ablest advocates of Heaven's blessings on his head!"

"If you love the Creator you ought to marry, to raise him up worshippers; if you love the ladies, you ought to marry to make them happy; if you love mankind you ought to marry to perpetuate the glorious race; if you love your Country, you ought to marry, to raise up soldiers to defend it; in fine, if you wish well to earth or heaven you ought to marry, to give good citizens to the one and glorious angels to the other!"
