Foreign Intelligence.

NEW-YORK, June 2.

By the arrival, yesterday, of the Susan, from Dublin, we have received Dublin papers to the 19th April, inclusive, containing London dates to the 15th, (one day later than our last,) from which the following articles are copied.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Germinal 13.

An inn-keeper at Rotterdam has been arrested, charged with not having denounced a person selected by the police of that city.—We are assured that a coffer, containing papers relative to the conspiracy, has been found in his possession.

The grand chancellor of the legion of honour has been instructed to make a report respecting the citizens who arrested Georges, the intention of the Grand Council being to admit them into the legion of honour. Raoul Gaillard, called St. Vincent, and his brother Armand Gaillard, both signalized in the official list of brigands, were arrested the 10th of this month, at the moment they were flying from Paris, after the opening of the barriers. They intended to cross the river in a ferry-boat, at Meriel, near Pontoise. The citizen Dubois, trumpeter of the gendarmerie, aged 21 years, was posted at this ferry, in consequence of the excellent dispositions ordained by the first inspector-general of the gendarmerie, at all points which might offer a passage to the brigands. The brothers Gaillard, and an individual who is thought to be Tamerlan, having presented themselves to pass the water, the young Dubois opposed them with spirit, and required the exhibition of their passports; and when they asked that he would suffer them to return, the gendarme charged them to remain till they could be recognized.—Then these three brigands took pistols in their hands and escaped; at the cries of the gendarme many inhabitants of Meriel and Valliers ran after, armed with stones and cudgels. The brigands had their pistols five or six times; the citizen Stephen Casine, husbandman at Meriel, who was foremost in the chase, had his baton broken in two by a ball. An old soldier of the cantons, named Labrosse, advanced, armed with a fusée, happened on St. Vincent, who took aim at him, fell upon his knees to shun the ball, which passed over his head, and in this position wounded St. Vincent, who being very soon struck by three other shots, was seized by the inhabitants now assembled in great numbers; his brother being followed, was overtaken in an adjacent wood. The third escaped by the favour of night and has not yet been found.—St. Vincent died yesterday, of his wounds, at the hospital of Pontoise. His brother has been carried to the minister of the grand judge. The sum of 1100 francs has been found upon them, both in louis and in guineas. They had poignards of the same model with those seized upon Georges, Pichegru, and in general, on all the arrested brigands. Thus in the course of the last week, seven of these wretches have fallen into the power of the police. The judges of the peace, the magistrates of the neighbouring communes, and the sub-prefect of Pontoise, have shown in this circumstance a zeal, and an activity worthy of the greatest praise.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, April 15.

By the neutral ship Ann Lucie, arrived at Gravesend, from Embden, we yesterday received a letter from thence to the following effect: "The French, in the Electorate of Hanover, continue to transport immense quantities of ammunition to the Dutchy of Lauenburg, and the army on the northern bank of the Elbe has been considerably reinforced. They have likewise formed magazines of powder in the neighbourhood of Altona and Hamburg. This circumstance is said to have excited strong animosities at Copenhagen, and to have induced some strong resolves on the part of that government. The magazine within the Danish territory near Altona has been seized, and the troops on the frontiers of Lauenburg have been ordered to resist any territorial violation or encroachment that may be attempted by the republicans. The Danish militia, ready to take the field, now amounts to near 100,000 men." The house of the Russian charge d'affaires is surrounded incessantly with spies and officers of the police, it being supposed that one of the French princes was concealed in it. Pichegru was reported to have died of the wounds which he received at the period of his arrest. Madame Moreau has at length been allowed to visit her husband in the temple. The general is stated to have written to Buonaparte, but the purport of this letter is variously represented; some confine it to a complaint at his name being inserted, by the grand judge, in the list of brigands; others that it was exculpatory, and others again, that it was an appeal to the chief consul's mercy. In either case, however, the general must have been ignorant of the nature of the man he addressed, as well as wanting in respect to his own character.

Barthelemy, the banker, continues under arrest, not however, as we heard, for having paid a bill drawn on him from London, but in consequence of his name being on a bill of exchange which was taken from one of the conspirators. It is supposed that he will be liberated.

The Dutch admiral Verhuel was at Flushing on the 9th, preparing another division of his flotilla for sea.

Yesterday we received a letter from Rotterdam, and a packet of Dutch Journals to the 10th inst. by the Hoffnung, Perry, arrived in the river from the Meuse. The former announces that all the shipwrights at Rotterdam and Amsterdam have been sent to Flushing, to make some alterations which appeared wanting, on experiments, in the construction of the flotilla there.

All French emigrants have been ordered to leave Frankfort, in consequence of an intimation from the commandant at Mentz, that if they were suffered to remain, a military force should be sent to arrest them. The elector of Baden, at the same moment that the requisition for the allowance of a French corps to enter Ettenheim was presented to him, received the news of the arrest of the duke d'Enghien. The duke of Brunswick's territory was violated, without even the ceremony of the slightest communication on the subject.

It was reported at Rotterdam, on the 10th, that the king of Prussia had directed his minister at Paris to remonstrate against the recent violation of the neutrality of Germany, by the French troops from Strasbourg.

The captain of the Dutch brig, Atalante, lately captured by the Scorpion, fought with a degree of bravery bordering on desperation. When captain Hardinge boarded the brig, he attacked and wounded the Dutch commander in several places; but in the heat of the contest captain H. struck his hand against the binnacle, and the sword fell from it. At this moment several of his men rushed forward, when captain H. offered his opponent quarter, but the other declining it, a seaman from the Scorpion shot him through the body.

The list of the persons arrested has not yet been published. There is among them an old colonel named Dumoustier; the resemblance of his name with that of Dumourier had induced a belief that it was the ex-general who was taken at Ettenheim.

GLEANINGS.

LONDON, March 3.

Thursday Ann Price was found guilty at the Surry sessions of being a bravler and a common scold, under an old statute of Henry the IV. fined 40s and ordered to be imprisoned till the fine was paid. There were not less than 17 witnesses sworn and examined in this case.

March 19. Lord Camelford has minutely described the spot in the Canton of Bern where he is to be buried; it is between three trees, and he has left 1000l. for the purchase of the ground.

March 24. Gen. Moncey, upon his first getting up on the first of March, received the following billet.—"The minister of the public treasury is ordered to pay the inspector general Moncey 50,000 crowns, as a reward for the zeal he has shewn since the discovery of the plot which threatened the life of the first consul." [French paper.]

Messrs. Marsh, Johnson, and Tummon, masters of vessels trading on the river Dan, have been convicted by the magistrates of Rotherham for travelling with their vessels on the Lord's day.

BRITISH HUMANE SOCIETY.

On Thursday last, says a London paper, Robert Precious, Esq; presided at the annual court of directors of the Humane Society. The premiums had been paid in 4755 cases of aquatic suffocation, &c. and is a most happy truth, that 2589 children, &c. have been restored to their parents and relatives.

EFFECT OF ORTHOGRAPHY AND PUNCTUATION.

The husband of a pious woman having occasion to make a voyage to sea, his wife sent a note to the parson to be read on the Sabbath following; but instead of spelling and pointing it properly, she wrote it thus: "H—W—, having goné to see his wife, desires the prayers of the church and congregation, that he may be mercifully preserved, &c."

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, June 4.

The Massachusetts Charitable Fire Society,

On Friday last, at the Chapel church, attracted and entertained, a numerous and brilliant assembly of its annual friends and patrons. We have seen, on no occasion, a more splendid groupe of female beauty and taste. The performances at this anniversary have been always invested with peculiar interest; and have generally acquired a distinguished reputation. They have diffused pleasure from the purest sources of taste; and excited sensibility by the strongest appeals to the social principle. Hence the high character, and fashionable attraction of this literary and benevolent institution. The "Address to the Society," by Edward Gray, Esq; presented a chaste and correct delineation of the prominent calamities incident to the lot of mortality. His manner was succinct and elegant.

The religious ceremonies were performed by the rev. Mr. Channing, with much pathetic devotion. The several musical performances gave great satisfaction, particularly the two odes, written for the occasion, both of which were sung by Mrs. Jones, with exquisite taste and effect. That written by Mr. Paine, describes a night scene of the most tender natural details; and was so excellently adapted to music by Mrs. Jones, that each sound was but an echo to the sense. The strong emotions of sympathy it excited throughout, and the unprecedented and protracted applause it received at the conclusion, spoke deeply and loudly of her cultivated science, taste and talent. We are happy to observe, that it will be repeated at the theatre this evening. It will add a rich zest to a well chosen selection of entertainments. In the opinion of amateurs, it was the most finished vocal performance which any public occasion has ever presented us in this town. The admirable change of movement, expressive of the sudden agitation of the subject, had a brilliant and almost electrical effect; and at the finish, a general call for a repeat was heard in all parts of the Chapel. Never were three peals of admiration rendered more judiciously, nor more ardently.

THE STREET WAS A RUIN.

AN ORIGINAL ODE,

Written by R. T. PAINE, jun. Esq;

And sung at the anniversary celebration of the Massachusetts Charitable Fire Society, by Mrs. JONES.

THE street was a ruin, and night's horrid glare
Illumin'd with terror, the face of Despair;
While houselefs, bewailing,
Mute pity affailing,
A MOTHER'S wild shrieks pierc'd the mercilefs air,
Beside her flood EDWARD, imploring each wind,
To awake his lov'd sister, who linger'd behind;
Awake, my poor MARY,
Oh! fly to me, Mary,
In the arms of your EDWARD, a pillow you'll find.
In vain he call'd, for now the volum'd smoke
Crackling between the parting rafters broke;
Thro' the rent seems the forked flames aspire,
All, all, is lost—the roof's on fire; the roof's on fire.
A flash from the window brought MARY to view,
She scream'd as around her the flames fiercely blew;
Where art thou mother!
Oh! fly to me brother!
Oh! save your poor MARY, who lives but for you!
Leave not poor MARY,
Ah! save your poor MARY!
Her vision'd form defcrying,
On wings of horror flying,
The youth erects his frantic gaze,
Then plunges in the maddening blaze;
Aloft he dauntlefs soars,
The flaming room explores;
The roof in cinders crushes,
Thro' tumbling walls he rushes!
She's fate from fear's alarms;
She faints in EDWARD'S arms!
Oh! NATURE, such thy triumphs are,
Thy simplest child can bravely dare!

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, June 4.

By the brig Georgia Packet, we have received a letter dated Cadiz, April 7th, which says, "We have an order from his Catholic majesty not to suffer prizes, either English or French, to be sold or brought into any ports of his dominions. This looks like enforcing a strict neutrality."
