COMPOUND,

TIVE years old, superior in fize and pedigree to any covering Jack in Maryland, will stand, this season, at my stables near Queen-Anne, for Six Dollars each mare. His reputation for certainty as a foal getter, (acquired last year, his first season,) has so established his character, that his owner lately refused an almost incredible sum for him. The object which induced me to farm him being my own mares, and having no care beyond the price actually disbursed for the use of him, the neighbourhood has now an opportunity of railing that most valuable of all plantation animals—the Mule—fifty per cent, cheaper than can be effected with any other Jack of equal fize and pedigree. Five dollars will be received, in full, if paid by the first day of September next. T. C. BOWIE.

NOTICE.

HE Commissioners of the Tax of Anne-Arust, del county will meet at the court-house, in the city of Annapolis, on the first Monday of June next, and will fit twenty days thereafter, to hear and determine the complaints and appeals of any persons who may think themselves grieved by their property being over valued, and to make transfers.

LOVE IN THE BLOSSOM. OBSERVE where yonder role bush stands!
"Tis somewhat old, and much decay'd y-Twas planted there by Henry's hands, When Mary was a little maid.

This bush he cried, I give to you; It always was my favourite tree; And prithee, little Mary, do Look on it, and remember me.

These words in Mary's heart sunk deep, And, tho' the cause she could not tell, She would not give her eyes to fleep,

Till that poor bush was water'd well.

With eyes impatient the beheld,
And chid, fair fpring! thy tardy power,
Till the full bnd triumphant fwell'd,
And burft into a lovely flower.

She pluck'd it with an eager hand; hall I to Henry offer this? She faid, not long she made a stand, Her beart responsive whisper'd yes.

And, strange as it may seem to you, Tho' roses lin'd the garden wall, More lovely far, in Mary's view, This single bush surpass'd them all.

And the' the bush hung very thick With flowers, and the' the ground was strewn, None ventur'd there a rose to pick, 'Twas Henry's plunder, bis alone.

And once a rose I saw him strip, And give it to a stander-by;
Resentment quiver'd Mary's lip,
Her pride but balf surpress'd the sigh.

Now join'd in wedlock's holy rite, In mutual love and peace they dwell ; Yet flill it gives their hearts delight, This simple incident to tell.

ODE TO FORTITUDE. CELESTIAL nymph whose power divine, Can foothe the wounds that grief beitows, Here on thy votary's breaft recline,

And vield by achine head reports

Shall disappointment's litted dart,

Strike terror to the throbbing heart,
And chill the foul with fearful dread? No. hlefs'd with thre her wer I'll fcorn, And laugh at forrows hidden thorn, That haunts the path I tread. Short is her reign: Misfortunes band

At thy approach all trembling fly,

Like figures in the yielding fand, Soon viewless to the curious eye. Tis thine to seel the human heart Against stern forrow's piercing dart : Then grant to me the friendly power Adversity's dread florm to dare, That darkens in the lurid air, And drives the whelming shower. When false I find a much lov'd friend, And weep to think all friendship frail, Quick to my aid, fweet nymph descend; Nor let despair's dread power prevail. When faithless proves the maid I love, Far from my thoughts her form remove; Teach me the charmer to forget: To court no more the dream of joy,

And scorn the false coquette. And oh! when death enwrapt in gloom, Advances with his pallid train, And pointing to the filent tomb, Proclaims all mortal pleasures vain When Health and Ease and Joy have fled, Be thou attendant on my bed To foothe the tortures of difease;

That truth can with a breath destroy,

And Resignation teach my heart, With all its mortal cares to part, And bow to Heavn's decrees. ON A LADY'S TAKING THE SEA-BATH.

BE hush'd ye winds, ye tempests cease, My love now tries the faithless main Be hush'd ye waves, and roll in peace, Until my love returns again. Yet should the wat'ry mountains roll,

And overwhelm their lovely prize, 'Twere just, for the their treasure stole, Their brightest glitt'ring gems for eyes. Yet see, more bright, with blushing charms,

My darling girl returning fee; She tells me all her foul's alarms-What rudely dared the saucy sea. That, down her hair, in fond embrace, The raptur'd waves enamour'd clung; And loth to leave fo fweet a place,

In brilliants, o'er her tresses hung. That one bold wave upon her beaff; To die with ecflacy refolv'd And weeping as it closer preft,

In showers of filver tears dissolv'd. Yet grateful still for fo much blifs, It left a gift its thanks to prove ; And fix'd its coral, in a kiss Upon her ruby lips of love.

ANECDOTE.

LORD THURLOW.

Mr. Pitt, when chancellor of the exchequer, was fufficlently notorious for the positiveness with which he delivered and imported his opinions. Lord Thurlow once rebuked him in his own way. Mr. Pitt was declaiming, at a cabl-net dinner, on the energy and beauty of the Latin language, and amongh other things, mentioned as a peouliar elegance in it, that two negatives made a thing more politive than one affirmative possibly could. "Then," faid Thurlow, your father and mother must have been two negatives, to have made such a damned positive fellow has you are?"
