GENERAL EATON.

We have the pleasure to announce the arrival of this gentleman, he came passenger in the brig Franklin, from Gibraltar. General Eaton landed at Hampton yesterday, and proceeded this morning to Washington.

The brig Franklin touched at Madeira on her passage from Gibraltar. A British fleet of 160 sail, including 15 vessels of war, of which three were of the line, sailed from Madeira on the 14th of September to the southward.

The combined squadron in Cadiz is composed of 8 French ships of the line and 5 frigates, 17 Spanish ships of the line and 2 frigates, in all 35 sail of the line and 7 frigates. The British blockading force consists of 24 ships of the line, two of the ships being at Tetuan or Gibraltar Bay.—Admiral Boscawen did not arrive, but would probably arrive in three or four days, as we observe he went on board the Victory on the 16th of September, having with him 1000 men of the line. If the combined fleet did not sail out while only opposed by 24 sail of the line; it will not probably move after the arrival of lord Nelson.

[Norfolk Ledger.]

The following is taken from the Enquirer of yesterday, which was handed to the editor of that paper by general Eaton.

COPY. Algiers, September 9, 1805.

SIR, I have only a few moments to inform you, our affairs are all well.

On the 30th ult. the soldiers rose in a body and murdered the Dey and his prime minister.

A new Dey was immediately elected, and not a life was lost except the above-mentioned.

I forbear to detain the Nautilus, having nothing very urgent to communicate.

I have the honour to be, &c,
J. MOUNTFORD,
Charge d'affaires, at Algiers.

Captain Campbell.

ALEXANDRIA, November 14.

Captain Haynes, from Barbadoes, informs, that a few days before he sailed a French sloop of war of 22 guns was brought in there, and that a frigate was likewise captured and carried into Antigua.

November 18.

Yesterday arrived in Hampton Roads, the United States frigate Constellation, captain Stewart, also the transport brig Franklin, captain Robinson, in 46 days from Gibraltar. In the latter came passenger captain Chamberlain, late of the ship Argus, of this port, vessel and cargo condemned at Gibraltar. The United States frigate John Adams, was to sail in three days for the United States. It was reported at Gibraltar, that the Rochfort Squadron had been captured—a similar report has been received by the brig Juno, captain Edwards, from Heulba, in Spain, but we do not place any dependence in these reports, as it was stated in our London advices, that the Rochfort Squadron had got back early in September.

Yesterday came up from the Congress frigate, in Hampton Roads, his excellency Sid Salimian Mellich, ambassador from the Bey of Tunis to the United States, attended by his two secretaries. They visited Fort Nelson on their way up, by which they were saluted upon landing. Afterwards they proceeded to town, and dined with a select party at Bainbridge's hotel, accompanied also by captain Decatur and several of his officers.

In the evening, the mayor and several respectable gentlemen of the town, visited the ambassador, to whom they were presented by captain Decatur, and this morning, accompanied by his secretaries, he returned the visits of the mayor and some other gentlemen. We do not know when they leave town, but understand they only wait for a fair wind to proceed in the frigate to Washington. The novelty of their appearance, and their magnificent costume in the true Turkish style, attracted more attention than comporting with good breeding, they did not however appear displeased, but seemed to attribute it to a right cause. The ambassador appears turned of 50 years of age, of a grave and dignified deportment.

[Norfolk Ledger.]

Captain Le Baron (now below from Malaga) informs the editors of this Gazette, that on the evening of the 23d of September, off Cadiz, he passed through an English fleet of thirty-two sail of the line and four frigates. [From this there is no doubt but lord Nelson had arrived, and joined admirals Collingwood and Calder, on that station.]

Poet's Corner.

SELECTED.

POOR ISABELLA.

KEEN blows the wind—I am naked and weary;
O'er the wide world do I wander forlorn:
Pity me, strangers, my path is so dreary,
Full oft am I wounded by many a thorn.
The sky for my roof, and a stone for my pillow,
In the damp streets do I nightly remain;
Tost on the tempests of life's angry billow,
Poor Isabel, surely, has cause to complain.
No tongue speaks to her in the language of feeling,
No cheek wears the warm, sunny grace of a smile;
O'er her bosom the ice of despair is soft sealing,
Naught, naught can her soul's heavy anguish beguile.
Be hush'd for a moment, ye blasts of December,
And let the sad prayers of an outcast arise;
Let the rich and the happy my sorrows remember,
And banish the tear from my lustreless eyes.
Those eyes were once fam'd for their sparkling and beauty;
How oft have I heard they were bright as the sun;
But Isabel wander'd from honour and duty,
She listen'd, she trusted, and, oh! was undone.
Now, worn by disease, and the victim of sorrow,
I call upon death to alleviate my woe;
Unknowing what fate has reserv'd for the morrow,
Impatient I wait for the finishing blow.
Ye maidens, so rich, in the spring tide of beauty,
Oh! ye who are lovely, and virtuous as fair,
Gaze, gaze on this cheek, when ye're wand'ring from duty,
This cheek so imprel'd with the signet of care.
Nay, doubt not, it once was the throne of the graces,
It once blaz'd with colours as bright as your own;
But misery has left there her eloquent traces,
The tings of health and of virtue are down,
Now sunk and down, in the mists of gladness,
Behold the gay culture that ruin'd my bloom;
He sleeps while these senses are verging on madness;
But patience!—for God shall irradiate my gloom.
Ye rains that descend, and ye thunders that mutter,
Let fall your wild wrath on my shelterless head;
No sigh shall escape, no complaint will I utter,
The spirit of anger and murmur'ing is dead.
This heart seems to warn me its journey is ended;
The cold gale of death o'er my pallid frame sweeps;
The pulses of life and of pain seem suspended;
Slow, slow through its channels the lagging blood creeps.
O, Father of Mercies, thy hand will receive me;
The glories of God on my soul shall arise;
And, perchance, even those who refus'd to relieve me,
May then drop a tear where poor Isabel lies.

H. H. HAYDEN,

Dentist to St. Mary's College, Baltimore,

WITH grateful sentiments acknowledges the liberal confidence and encouragement he has experienced from the citizens of Annapolis, and its vicinity, during his former visits, and respectfully informs them, and the honourable members of the legislature, that in all the cases that fall within the limits of his profession, no efforts shall be left unimproved to render universal satisfaction to merit an entire confidence, and to treat, with the utmost delicacy and tenderness, all operations on the teeth and gums. As the time of his stay in Annapolis is unavoidably limited to four weeks, from those who wish his assistance, he solicits as seasonable application as possible, particularly where natural or artificial teeth are wanted, and also where it is necessary to place, in perfect order, irregular teeth. A line, or servant, directed to him at Mr. William Brewer's will be attended to.
