STOP THE SWINDLER.

FIFTY DOLLARS REWARD.

For apprehending a certain JOHN MCARTNEY, who came to me the 29th of January, and my mare and gig, on pretence of going to Baltimore and to return in three days, but has since gone with said mare and gig. MCARTNEY, (who said he is a British officer, and belonged to a troop of rangers in Hampton-Roads,) is a tall slim man, about 5 feet high, wears his hair tied behind; had on a brown coloured fur-tout, a blue coat, brown breeches, half boots, with green goggles on his eyes. I think it unnecessary to give a further description of the swindler, as I suppose he will change his cloaths and name. The mare is a bright bay, about 15 hands high, nine or ten years old, has a hogged main, in her forehead, both of her hind feet white, and on her breast by the collar, and trots remarkably; the gig has a sick back, and has been late-ly used in several places; the gears have also been used, and the mountings on them plated. I will give the above reward for apprehending the Swindler, the mare and gig, so that I get them again, and the swindler brought to justice, or TWENTY DOLLARS for the mare and gig, or TEN DOLLARS either, with all reasonable charges.

He has a lot of ground near the Dock, where his house was burned; also two stoves, one a Franklin, the other a ten plate stove, and a milch cow, that he will dispose of at private sale. He hopes none will, by long delay of payment, force him to the disagreeable necessity of putting their accounts into the hands of an attorney.

He would buy a negro woman that understands plain cooking, washing and ironing, for a term of eight or ten years, and then, if the owner will not free her, she shall be returned again.

SELECTED.

Diadin's ANN HATHAWAY.

WOULD ye be taught, ye feather'd throng,
In love's sweet notes to grace your song,
To charm the heart in thrilling lay,
Listen to Ann Hath a way;
She hath a way to sing so clear,
Phœbus might wondering sloop and hear,
To melt the sad, make blithe the gay,
And nature charm—Ann Hath a way,
She hath a way,
Ann Hath a way

To be the delight, Ann hath a way.

When envy's breath, and rancour's tooth,
Do foil and bite, fair worth and truth,
And merit to distress betray;
To sooth the soul, Ann Hath a way;
She hath a way to thast despair,
To heal all grief, to cure all care,
Turn foulest night to fairest day,
Thou know'lt fond heart, Ann Hath a way,
She hath, &c.

Talk not of gems, the orient list,
The diamond, topaz, amethyst,
The emerald mild, the ruby gay,
Talk of my gem, Ann Hath a way;
She hath a way with her bright eye,
Their various tustures to defy,
The jewel she and the toil they,
So sweet to look Ann Hath a way,
She hath, &c.

But to my fancy were it given,
To rate her charms I'd call them Heaven;
For, though a mortal made of clay,

Angels might love Ann Hath a way;
She hath a way, so to control,
To captivate the mortal soul,
And love and truth to display,
That to be heaven—Ann Hath a way,
She hath, &c.
