

land, buried there. We incline, however, to from some allusion to the scene of action, that should he have fallen, must have been killed battle of Eylau, or in some affair immediately ring it.
 ters were yesterday received in town from Dant-which on Thursday arrived at Hull, bringing acts from thence to the 26th ult. of great rejoicings, ag taken place there, on occasion of the victories ined by the Russians over the French, in War-up to the 11th. The left and centre of the ans were then posted on the lakes, and the right nded beyond Alle; he French corps under general Lefebvre has been ated by a body of Prussians near Marienwerder. lthough the French have succeeded in restoring quillity in Hesse, insurrections appear to have ken out in various other parts of Germany, which not fail to embarrass Buonaparte, either in expos-his supplies from France to danger, or in requirfor their protection a greater force than in his pre-circumstances he can afford for such service. itteravia and the banks of the Main are in the nds of the insurgents; and in Weimar, Gotha, Cog, and most of the neighbouring duchies, an extenand organized system of revolt prevails.
 The Austrian army in Galicia comprises upwards of e hundred thousand men; and the frontiers of Mo-via and Bohemia are crowded with troops who have t all off communication with Saxony, Silesia, &c. he export o provisions to the French army in Pond has been discontinued; and some Jewish merchants and others, by whom it was carried on, have een arrested and sent in chains for trial. This meare si stated to have been adopted on a strong remonrance from the Russian minister.
 The Austrians are collecting a strong corps on the avarian frontiers, under the orders of one of the rch-dukes.
 On the departure of Buonaparte from Warsaw aron Vincent announced to Talleyrand his intention o return to Vienna, and was with difficulty induced o prolong his stay in Poland for another fortnight.
 The baron's mission, independent of the restoration of rannau, had for its object to demand from Buonaarte an explanation as to his intentions in regard to Poland, and a revocation of the promises as held out to the inhabitants of that country by Dombrowsky.
 Buonaparte has evaded the discussion of these points; nd in one of his interviews with baron Vincent, he rply expressed impatience and offence at the baron's opportunity on the subject.
 The Russians continue to advance in Turkey almost without opposition. It appears by letters from Pancová of the 28th of January, that the advanced corps of the Russian army had already penetrated into Albania, and that the Mountaineers of Rascia, Podrinn, &c. had joined him in immense numbers. The islands of Curzolo, Braffa, and Lissa, have fallen into the hands of the Imperialists; and Lessina, has been invested. Bulgaria, Servia, and Albania, as well as Moldavia and Wallachia, are now in the virtual occupation of the Russians. The Turks are not capable of opposing any serious obstacles to the progress of the Russians; their army is an undisciplined insurgent mob, more dangerous to the generals appointed to conduct it, than to the enemy to whom it is to be confronted.

A Kingston (Jam.) paper of March 10, says, "Sir Alexander Cochrane has received accounts by the Bellisle, (dispatched by government) of the Rochefort squadron, consisting of 6 sail of the line and two frigates, having put to sea; and by a small vessel, captured by the Cerberus, bound from L'Orient to Gua-daloupe, with dispatches, it was ascertained that they were destined for Martinique. In consequence of which the admiral in the Northumberland, with the Canada and Bellisle, of 74 guns each, Prince George, of 98, and Agamemnon, of 64; accompanied by the Alexandria, Galatea, and Cerberus frigates, and Dart and Woolverjine sloops of war, were to sail from Carlisle bay, (Barbadoes) on the 1st inst. for the purpose of cruising off Martinique, to endeavour to fall in with the enemy."

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.

Captain Vicary, of the brig Sally and Hetty, from Batavia, arrived at Philadelphia on the 17th instant.
 Previous to his departure from Batavia a squadron of British ships, under the command of Sir Edward Pellew, came into the roads and burnt two frigates and sixteen other armed vessels, near the Dutch Batteries.

CHARLESTON, April 2.

Northward hay is now selling in this city at the advanced price of FOUR DOLLARS per cwt.

NORFOLK, April 8.

It appears that the Rochefort fleet is out and destined for Martinique. The British force consists of the five ships of the line mentioned under the Jamaica head. The Ramilies of 74 guns, had also arrived at Barbadoes, and will if necessary, be added, which will make the two fleets equal in number, in which case the event of a battle may be calculated upon with certainty. It is not without the scope of probability, that the Rochefort fleet may make its appearance off our coasts, with a view to relieve the Patriot and Cybele, now blockaded by the British force in the bay.

MY MOTHER.

AH! who is she, whose pensive face,
 The soft maternal smile adorning, And mild-blue eye, still bids me trace The promise bright of life's gay morning?
 When once a gem of beauty rare, She shone unrival'd by another; Meek, modest, wife, as she was fair, In youth's sweet morn, such was MY MOTHER.
 The beauteous daughter, faithful friend—
 The tender wife—soft, mild, forbearing; Still did her polish'd presence lend A charm to life—ah! how endearing.
 Still shrinking from the public view,
 In all the pride of youthful beauty, No childish thirst for fame she knew,
 But strew'd with flowers the path of duty.
 And oft when fate's unerring dart, Death to a mother's hopes has given;
 Still did she teach her breaking heart, Submission to the will of Heaven.
 O! thou Great Power, whom well I know,
 Of every earthly good the donor:
 Still shield her future life from woe,
 And shed the choicest blessings on her.
 O! grant a daughter's fervent prayer, One only boon, I ask no other;
 That still thro' life, each circling year,
 With every joy may bless my mother!
 And when these fragile mortal ties,
 The awful word of fate shall sever, O! may her children spotless rise,
 To dwell with her in bliss forever.

FELICIA.

THE OSNABURGH TORTURE.

WHO can read the following narration without feeling his "blood freeze in his veins," or without execrating the government which countenances such worse than savage murder. Let the reader remember, that Hanover belonged to the king of England, and that the fact is stated by one of his own subjects, the benevolent HOWARD.

Having heard much of the mode of torture practised at Hanover, called the Osnaburgh Torture, and which is applied by executioners purposely sent for from that Bishopric, (the Duke of York was then bishop of Osnaburgh) I applied to be admitted to the cellar in which the engines of torture are kept—as my introduction was by a high officer of the court, I had the honour of a seat near the judges. The person who was put to the torture that day, happened to be a female, of family and respectable connexions, whose husband stood charged with some crime, but who had escaped from his executioners—they seized his wife, to compel her by the torture of Osnaburgh, to criminate him and his connexions.

She was of the most exquisite beauty, and the judges feasted their eyes with a view of her person already disfigured, by repeated questions, as she lay extended on the rack, with only a loose garment thrown over part of her body. The Osnaburgh torture was applied in the manner related in Mr. Howard's narrative, in all its exquisite refinements. She persisted in her innocence. Her judges, the representatives of the elector of Hanover, celebrated for his domestic and social virtues, sat unmoved, either by her beauty, suffering or protestations. They ordered the executioners to vary her tortures—the cords were drawn to the shortest. She was a mother! From her beauteous and lovely, but agonizing breasts, forced by the extreme of torments, blood spouted, and covered the faces and cloaths of her judges. She still asserted her innocence—executioner, repeat the question, was again the exclamation of those fiends of Hell; with the most piteous lamentations she begged for mercy.
 It was in vain—the executioner obeyed the mandates of his superiors, they have once more at the rack—she shrieked, the name of her beloved babe and husband murmured on her trembling lips—nature was totally exhausted by shame and torture—she expired —Good God! never shall I forget the dreadful moment! And is this, exclaimed I to myself, staggering from this court of justice, is it my king, who governs with absolute sway in this city!
