VERSES

Wither'd Leaf, which was blown into the du-bor's Bosom.
LE wither'd wand'rer seek not here refuge from the ruthless sky;

When storms assail the barren breast; then poor exile seek relief in bosoms where the heart has rest:
fall upon the oblivious ground,
Where silent sorrows buried lie;
ere rest is surely to be found,
Or what, alas! to hope have I?

Here sepulcher'd in peace, repose, in yonder field, the village dead, seek a shelter among those Who all their mortal tears have shed.

if thou com'st a Sybil's leaf,
Such as did erst high truths declare,
tell me soon shall end my grief, Bless the omen that you bear:

sure you tell me that my woe,
An end like thine at length shall have,
then wan like thee, and wasted so, I sink to the forgetful grave.

hen come thou Messenger of Peace, Come lodge within this barren breast, and lie there till we both shall cease,
To seek in vain for Nature's rest.

SHAVING!
NO IMPOSITION!

TO take off the beard keenly is not the least of modern inventions. With all the becoming deference due to my fellow-citizens, I presume no man on the habitable globe is of so much use to the public than I —flattered daily—I feel as I ought to do—grateful—not a word about merit! No—not a word!

My fellow-citizens of this state are informed, that at the principal stores in Baltimore, Annapolis, &c. &c.
Hopkins's superior Razor Strop, and Diamond Paste,

Of different sizes can be obtained with the prices, in print, on each. Beware of fraud, counterfeits, or imitations; look to your man, who pledges himself to the public, that nothing but a razor-stropped carefully, agreeable to his printed directions, can, or will, have the effect. With sentiments of respect, and fellow-citizens of Maryland, your very faithful servant,

J. HOPKINS, Philadelphia.
