6 HOURS have wings, and fly up to the author of time, and carry news of our ulage. All our prayers cannot entreat one of them either to return or flacken its pace. milp-nfe of every minute is a new record a gainst us in heaven. Sure, if we though thus, we would difinis them with better eport, and not fuffer them either to go away empty, or laden with dangerous intelligence How happy is it that every hour flould con vey up, not only the message, but the fruit of good, and flay with the Ancient of Pay to speak for us before his glorious throne.'
This most solemn and serious exhortation must awaken, within the breasts of the most unconcerned, reflections of a serious nature : it sliews us in the beautiful simplicity of ancient language, the value of every hour, nay minute; that we are accountable to the Al mighty for the use or abuse of every moment of our lives. Let us then endeavour to pals the time present in such a manner, that we may look back on it with fatisfaction, when it becomes the past, and at the end of each day be able to fay, shold a day past, but not lost; then we may lock forward with hope to that grand day, when at the dread Tribunal, we are to deliver up an account of all things committed to our care, when we may fay, "O Lord, of the hours thou hast granted unto me, have I lost none."

To thee, O youth, is my exhortation chiefly addressed; thine is the season when the plant of truth most flourishes, which is addressed by a constant of the season cultivated by a parent's or guardian's fostering hand, produces fruit an hundred fold. In the cheerful morn of life, when innocence attends thy footsteps, when the cheerful temper, the open countenance, the uneinbarraffed air, announce the fincerity of a heart uncorrupted by the world, open to the voice of council and moulded into form like yielding wax; then is the time when friendly counsel should be poured in.

"The dreadful vice of gaming must be here mentioned, as the most certain corroder of the temper, as well as the destroyer of ehere mentioned, as the most certain corroder of the temper, as well as the destroyer of every beauty, delicacy or grace, that is usual-come and pay the same, as a longer indulative come and pay the same, as a longer indulative come and pay the same, as a longer indulative contastication. ly ascribed to women. Let us imagine the contracted heart of a miser, joined to the countenance of a fury; let us unite inordinate covetoulnels, with rage, envy, terror & despair; behold dependance and imbecility on the one hand, on the other impending ruin and infany, from which the wretched vistim has no relource but death. And can it be won-dered at, that the who has dared to fport with the reputation and fortune of her family, should stake the interests of that hereafter, of which perhaps she has heard little, and meditated less, as madly as she has risked meditated icit, as madiy as inc has incon-those temporal enjoyments to which her co-vetous and selfish heart was attached with such destructive idolatry? A female games-ter like a semale dess, sins against all those moral restraints which general opinion, edu-cation, and custom, had placed around her sex, as well as against the natural feelings of her heart. Instead of delicacy, timidity and generolity, the becomes confident, bold and mean; avarice and chicane usurp the place of liberality and ingenuousness. Peace will never more enter into her cidity dwell upon her lips, it will be but the ver more enter into her bosom; and if plameretricious smile of dissimulation, " the painted sepulchie," that covers the most humiliating vestige of degraded mortality." [Mrs. West.]

"I must exclude from the pale of tree Christianity, (that is, from the number of fincere servants of the blessed Jesus) all who live in the habitual practice of what they know to be vice; but they who divide their time between finging and forrowing, who promise with the impassioned and confident Peter, and like him offend and weep, exhibit, though not so glorious, yet as strong a proof of the power of religion on a weak but sincere mind, as the dying Stephen did when he prayed to his Lord in glory, amid his mortal agonies. Though the certainty of another world has not eradicated the bosom infirmity, it makes "the strong man tremble," and compels the rebel inclinations to fall prostrate for pardon before the throne of mercy; by whom, we trust, though they may be corrected as offenders, they will not be sentenced

" But indifference is the more prevailing characteristic of this age; and it is for very prevalent among the higher circles, that ferioufness and devotion are constantly confounded with fectarian enthuliasm. The duty of worshipping the God of our fathers is made to depend upon convenience, upon fashion, upon a warm chapel, or upon an agreeable preacher. From the lives of these nominal Christians, or from the repulsive manners of those who " make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the hem of their garments," the well bred deift, and mere moral man of the world, affect to form their notion of the influence of religion upon the heart and mind. Alas! that the many thousands, who in this island have "never bowed the knee to Baal," nor omitted that " worship in spirit & truth' which our Creator prescribes, would some-times emerge from their beloved retirement, and shew an admiring world, "Virtue in her own fhase how lovely." PAUL'S DOMESTIC INFALLIBLE COLUMBIAN OIL.

HE Inventor of this highly esteemed medicine is a native of America, and the composition the production of American soil, consequents it is in every sense of the world domestic, it is ly it is in every sense of the word domestic, it is not puffed up with a numerous train of pompous foreign certificates of persons from whom by the great distance that separates us 'tis impossible to obtain information, therefore the public has better security for their money as there cannot be the least shadow of deception to cover his medicine, for he simply appears before the community with his invention and an experimental detail of the various cases in which it really is so wonderfully efficacious, and in which he is supported by the following certificates of respectable characters, whose names are not only subscribed, but their persons may be also consulted, being residents within the circle of our own neighbourhood. The folwhose names are not only expectable characters, persons may be also consulted, being residents within the circle of our own neighbourhood. The following are the complaints in which the Columbian Oil has been found so efficacious and rarely ever fails of effecting a cure, viz: Rheumatism, Consumption, Pains in any parts of the body, but part.cularly in the back and breast, Colds and Coughs, Toothach, Pleurisies, Chelic, Cramps, External and Internal Bruises, Sprains and Flesh Wounds, Scalds and Burns, Whooping Cough & Mumps, and Dysentary or Bloody, Flux, Group and the summer complaint in children, and in a weak stomach that is caused by indigestion, a constant sinking and lors of appetite, it will act as a powerful bra er outherclaxed fibre and restere it to its proper toe.

It seems also as if nature had ranked it the first of the class of all pedorals and expectorals for the relief of the breast and lungs, as at scance ever fails of removing obstructions in either, particularly those who are troubled with I lithistick or Asthmatic complaints, who in the act of walking fast, stooping or lying down, are almost suitocated, half a teaspoonful of the Columbian Oil will render some relief instantaneously and if continued agreeable to the directions in such cases, will prove a radical cure by producing the full power of initiation to the lungs and free expansion to the breast.
