IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT,
FEBRUARY 12.

Address of the Prince Regent to both of Parliament, by commission.
The lord chancellor rose and addressed houses in the following speech:

My Lords and Gentlemen, In execution of the commission which has now been read to you, we are comm ed by his royal highness, the prince reg to express, in the strongest manner, h deply he laments, not only in commo all his majesty's loyal subjects, but w personal and filial affliction, the grea onal calamity which has been the occ imposing upon his royal highness the du exercising in his majesty's name, the authority of this kingdom.

"In conveying to you the sense which royal highness entertains of the great culties attending the important trust is reposed in him, his royal highness mands us to assure you, that he looks the most perfect confidence to the wis zeal of parliament, and to the attach a loyal and affectionate people, for effectual assistance and support; and h highness will, on his part, exert his endeavours to direct the powers with he is invested, to the advancement of prosperity, welfare and security of his majesty's dominions.

"We are directed to inform you, that royal highness has great satisfaction in enabled to state, that fresh opportunit been afforded during the late campaign, distinguishing the valour and skill of his majesty's forces both by sea and land.

"The capture of the islands of Bonap and of Amoyana, have still further the colonial dependencies of the enemy."
"The attack upon the Island of Sicily, which was announced to the world with presumptuous anticipation of success, h been repulsed by the persevering exer valour of his majesty's land and sea force

"The judicious arrangement adopted by the officers commanding on that station, derived material support from the zeal and dour which were manifested during this test by the inhabitants of Sicily, and fr the co-operation of the naval means wh were directed by his Sicilian majesty to object."

"In Portugal, and at Cadiz, the defence which constituted the principal object of his majesty's exertions in the last campaign, the designs of the enemy have been hitherto frustrated. The consummate skill, prudence and perseverance of its gen. lord Wellington, Wellington, and the discipline and deter mined bravery of the officers and men under his command, have been conspicuously played throughout the whole of the cam paign. The effect of those distinguished vantages, in inspiring confidence and energy into the troops of his majesty's allies, has been happily evinced by their general good conduct, and particularly by the brilliant part which they bore in the repulse of the enemy at Balaico. And his royal highness commands us further to state, that he trusts you will be able him to continue the most effectual as sistance to the brave nations of the peninsu in the support of a contest which they ma ifest a determination to maintain with un parelled perseverance; and his royal highness permeated, that you will feel that the best interests of the British empire must be deep ly affected in the issue of this contest, on which the liberties and independence of the Spanish and Portuguese nations entirely de

"We have it likewise in command to ac quaint you, that discussions are now depend ing between this country and the U. S. of Ame rica; and that it is the earnest wish of his royal highness, that he may find himself en abled to bring these discussions to an amicab le termination, consistent with the honour of his majesty's Crown, and the maritime rights and interests of the United Kingdom.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons, We are directed to acquaint you, that his royal highness the prince regent has in his commands, that the estimates for th expenditures of the current year should be laid before you; and his royal highness has great satisfaction in acquainting you that al though the difficulties under which the com merce of this kingdom is laboured, have in some degree affected a part of his majesty's revenue, particularly in Ireland, yet that the venue of G. Britain in the last year, tho' burdened by any new taxation, is greater than has ever known in any preceding year. And his royal highness trusts to your zeal and li berality to afford his majesty adequate sup plies for the support of the great contest in which he is necessarily engaged.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
We are commanded by his royal high ness to declare to you, that it is his most anxious wish of his heart, that he may be enabled to restore unimpaired into the hands of his majesty the government of his king dom; and that his royal highness earnestly wishes, that the Almighty may be pleased in his mercy to accelerate the termination of a calamity so deeply lamented by the whole nation, and so peculiarly afflictive to his royal highness himself."

The commons immediately retired, and at 5 o'clock the speech was again read by the lord chancellor, and afterwards in the usual manner by the clerk.

had been received via Boston.
Yesterday morning arrived off Sandy-Hook the British government schooner Barbarian, which was sent from Bermuda, with dispatches to Col. Barclay.

LATEST FROM LISBON.
The ship Grand Sachem, Captain Hitch cock, arrived here yesterday morning in 38 days from Lisbon. Captain H. favoured us with the following information:

The English officers, and others at Lisbo n, expressed it impossible for any army to storm the lines on the side of the Tagus; yet many prebended that a large French army might take possession of the heights of Almeida, opposite Lisbon, and command the harbour.
It was also the opinion of most people, that the vast expense the English were at, in sup plying their large army, navy and trans port, together with almost the whole popu lar of Portugal, would induce them to draw their army soon. It was likewise said to me, by many officers, that a general peace would soon take place, and it was ge nerally reported, that the French had re moved their heavy artillery and baggage from Lisbon back to Guarda, that the English had removed their heavy baggage, provis ions, &c. into boats, to go down the river, if necessary. It was supposed these prepara tions on both sides were for an engagement.
The vessel had arrived at Lisbon on the first of March, reporting having left the fleet, with reinforcements, from England, off Cape Fl nisler. A regiment of troops from Gibraltar and one from England, had arrived some time before. A few days before leaving Li bion, all the troops and officers off duty had been ordered to the army. Lord Wellington was well spoken of by all persons at Lisbon, except those in the French interest, and of that number a great majority of the lower class of Portuguese undoubtedly are. A merchant of Lisbon had received a letter from Badajoz, dated 24th February, giving a particular account of the defeat: (by the French besieging that place) of the Spaniards that were under the command of the late General Romana—they had crossed the Ta gus for the purpose of endeavouring to re lieve Badajoz, and encamped, carelessly, not far from it. The French attacked them in the night, when the guards were small and remiss, and killed 1500, took 3500 pr isoners, and totally dispersed the rest. [This corps was 7000 Spaniards and Portuguese.] It stated that the Spaniards, although sur prised, fought well, but that a Portuguese regiment, except 80 men deserted their colours and fled.

Arrived at Havana, brigantine Hiram, a state of extreme distress, the water being over his cabin floor, and no possibility of treering her, having already had one man, by the name of Samuel Giles, of Newport, that perished at the pumps, and no probability of existing another night. Capt Hufley in this public manner, expresses his grateful thanks to captain Newton, and his sailors that re cued him and his crew from the impending

DEGREE.
Of the general and extraordinary Cortes, iss 1811.

The general and extraordinary Cortes, in conformity to their decree of the 24th of September last, in which they declared the renunciations made at Bayonne, by Don FERDINAND the VIIIth, the legitimate king of Spain and the Indies, to be null and totally void, not only from his deprivation of liberty, but also, and principally, from their being delictive of the most essential and in dispensable requisite the consent of the nation —Resolve, that they will not acknowledge, but on the contrary shall and do consider as null and of no value or effect, every act treaty, covenant, or transaction of whatever kind or nature, which may have been or may be executed or entered into by the king, during the continuance of his present state of oppression and delictive of liberty, whether the same may have been executed in the country of the enemy, or even in Spain, if at such time his royal person is surrounded by the arms, or under the influence, directly or indirectly, of the usurper of his crown; since the nation will never consider him free, nor will they pay him obedience, until he is among his faithful subjects in the bosom of the National Congress, which exists at pre sent, or may in future exist, or of the gov ernment formed by the Cortes.—They like wise Resolve that every violation of this de gree, shall be considered by the nation, as an act of hostility against the country, the vio lator being responsible to the utmost rigour of the laws. The Cortes, finally, Resolve, that the generous nation which they represent will never, for a moment, lay down their arms; listen to any proposition of accom modation, or compromise, of whatever na ture, unless preceded by the total evacuation of Spain and Portugal by the troops which invaded it so unjustly; the Cortes together with the nation being determined to main tain the contest, without intermission, until they shall have secured the holy religion of their ancestors, the liberty of their beloved monarch, and the absolute independence and integrity of the monarchy. This shall be fo understood by the Council of Regency, and in order that it may be known and ri
