

The verbal accounts from our army in Canada, are so various and contradictory...

By an express from the North-West we learn that Gen. Hull was on the 29th July, with the army at the encampment...

It is very difficult to obtain any thing correct information from the army.

That at several times reconnoitering parties have marched from our army towards Malden, and have frequently come in...

Our troops encamped there that night and the next day returned to the head-quarters.

Major Denny, having with him about 200 men, on reconnoitering tour encamped...

Our informant says, that col. M'Arthur on the Trentch, had taken only 200 barrels of flour, 300 blankets, and a few coats.

We are happy to inform our patrons Maj. Munson was fast recovering from wound he received from an accidental...

The English have taken our Fort M'ackinac, and two ships loaded with provisions for that garrison.

It is believed that in the several skirmishes the English have had several men killed, a number wounded.

Our informant further states, that he saw two men on the way, who had been scalped...

We learn by a gentleman who came on board the steam boat from Albany, an armistice, or cessation of arms, has concluded on between Gen. Dearborn...

There was a report in Albany, that a general Hull's army had been defeated by the British at Fort Malden.

Gov. Tompkins was a passenger in a steam boat from Albany.

We have received a copy of the governor of Upper-Canada's proclamation.
