If at that day neither patriction or veasons of state would induce individuals to han you their money, can you expect them to do it now? Sir, you will not obtain it. It is impossible. Your army, of course, will not be

It now remains to show that a revolution will follow, and the government be converted into a military despotism. And here again, Mr. Speaker, I will recur to facts derived from the history of the revolution. The sufferings and patriotism of the revolutionary army are well known-But their patriotism was tried to the utmost point of endurance. To shew this, I will read a passage from a memorial presented by the army, to congress, in December, 1782.

" " Our distresses are now brought to a point-we have borne all that men can bear-our property is expended-our private resources are at an end-and our friends are wearied out with our incessant applications. We therefore, most seriously and earnestly beg that a supply of money may be forwarded to the army as soon as possible. The uneasiness of the soldiers for want of pay, is great and dangerous; and further experiments on their patience may have fatal effects."

Well, sir, what followed? Why. on the 10th of March (then) next, the famous anonymous letter, written, if fame does not belie him, by the very man, who is to have the direction of your war operations, was industriously circulated through the army. A flame was kindled, which nothing but the commanding influence of Washington, aided by his general officers, could have extinguished.

Let us, Mr. Chairman, learn wis dom by experience. If you will have an army, for Heaven's sake make prompt and effectual provision for their pay and subsistence. Depend not upon loans. Expose not again the liberties of your country. At the head of your army, you will not have a Washington; you will not have soldiers actuated by the same motives of patriotism; you will not have the same apology for neglecting to pay them. They will commence by complaints; they will load your table with petitions, which though just, you will not have it in your power to grant; they will take justice into their own hands, and under some popular leader, after scenes of horror, devastation and blood, they will convert your government into a military despotism.

I am aware, that it will be said. that it is intended to provide a system of revenue for this purpose. I doubt not the intention, but I do & must doubt the execution. With this intention, as we were informed, such a system was reported at the last session. Why was it not then adopted? Why has it not been act-These sie tions, which it is not for me to an swer. The public must and will judge for themselves. Thus much I may say, that the reasons which have hitherto prevented the adoption of such a system, will not only continue to operate, but will increase by delay.

Mr. Chairman, I will detain you but a moment longer. I have always been opposed to this war. I am now opposed to its continuance. The responsibility, therefore, for its faithful prosecution, and successful termination, rests not on me. I am, however, equally interested in the event, with those who made it; and I call upon them, as they regard the interest, the happiness and future welfare of the country, to take reasonable and effectual measures for the preservation of the public cre-

Do-not, by rashness, or extravagince, bring our excellent constitution into disrepute. A constitution the great excellence of which consists, in a wise, faithful, provident and impartial administration. A constitution, which under the auspices of a Washington, is calculated to diffuse happiness throughout the community; to give to agriculture, a rich reward for its labors; to manufactures, encouragement; and to commerce, extension and protection.

But, air a constitution, which under the auspices of other men, may lake bried from the ment of labor; protect commerces by its total annihilation; secure peace, by perpetual wars, and render the people happy and contented; because deprived of every solid and substantial enjoyment, they will have nothing more to lase.

Mr. Chairman, we have received from our Fathers, a rich and valuable inheritance, we are bound to transmit it to our children, as valuable at least as we received it. Let us not then, encumber it, with a mortgage of ours, which it will not be in their power to redeem.

The question was then taken on punctually paid, and public credit Mr. Bigelow's motion by ayes and will be impaired, noes, and determined as followsaves 23: noes 61.

The question was then put to fill the first blank with the word "sixteen," and carried.
