BY MES RODINSON-MESH YOUNG. BY the side of a mountain o'erahadow'd with trees,

With thick clusters of vine intermingled and wove; I behold my thatch'd cottage, dear mansion of ease, The sent of contentment, of friendship and love;

Each morn, when I opened the latch of the door, My heart throbs with rapture to hear the birds sing; And at night, when the dance of the village is o'er.

On my pillow I strew the fresh roses

of spring. When I hide in the forest from noon's scorehing beam, While the torrent's deep murmurs

while the correction sound:

When the herds quit their pastures to quaff the clear stream.

And the flocks of the vale lie extenddet around : I muse, but my thoughts are contented

and free. I regret not the spienders of riches and pride; The delights of retirement are dearer to me. Than the prondest appendage to great ness allied. I sing, and my song is the carol of joy; My checks glow with health, like the wild rose in bloom:

I dance, yet forget not, while blithsome and cay, That I measure the footsteps which lead to the tomb. Contented to live; yet not fearful to die; With a conscience unspotted I pass through life's scene;

On the wings of delight every moment shall fly.

And the end of my days be resign'd

and serone.

THE SENATOR, EBENEZER H. CUMMINS,

Will contain a full, impartial and minute report of the proceedings of the Senate; a Journal of the House of Representatives; Public Documents, authentic; Speeches of the Senators and Representatives, select; Communications of Governors of the different States to their respective Legislative bodies; Laws of the United States; Proclamations, Orders, Decrees and Manifes toss of foreign Governments, interesting to the people of the U. States; Forensic Elocation, foreign and domestic; Biography; Eulogium; Essays, moral, political, statistical; Army and Navy Register: exploits of American heroes; treaties with foreign Nations; Commercial Intelligence; together with such remarks as shall be incident to the design of the work. The editor reserves to himself the privilege of occasion. ally publishing such reflections upon public events, public measures, and public men, as shall be consistent with decorum and the rights of an impartial American freeman. The whole will comprize a valuable political Calender, for officers, civil and military, professional gentlemenand citizens.

The design of this establishment is in a special manner to preserve and perpetuate the proceedings of the Senate. It las been observed with no little amprise, that the Senate of the United States, ever since the commencement of the Covernment has comparatively excited little attengon. The House of Represen-tatives, heresofore, has engrossed the public sympathy, and public notice; therefore journalists and reporters for newspapers have taken care to profit by the preferences They have watched the movements and actions of that body with the greatest assiduity and accuracy.

The editor of the Journal now proposed to be published, has ever believed the Senate to be in no degree and by no comparison less important as a branch of the Federal Government, than the House of Representatives; and he is persuaded that its proceedings will afford enough to interest the people of the U. S. The late sessions of that body have been of a nature and character, and consequence highly important and deeply interesting to the feelings of the American nation. And it is certain that in proportion as our foreign relations become more and more intricate by commercial collision, or otherwise, its patriotism, its wisdom, its fidelity, ambition or po-litical depravity, will have a great and serious influence upon the future happiness and general prosperity of this great and growing Common-wealth. Hence it is believed that the establishment of a journal to collect and enroil for the purpose of dissemination, the proceedings of the Senate, is indispensible, and that the utility and public convenience of such an institution were never more apparent than at the present moment.

The Editor having obtained the necessary permission to report the proceedings of the Senate, & having procured all suitable arrangements to facilitate his plan, will be prepared to issue the 1st number of "The SENATOR" during the first week of the next session of Congress.

The Editor has to express his surprize that an institution similar to the one proposed has never before been established. Indeed it would seem that such an one ought to have been coeval with the existence and continuance of our government .-Ail the abilities of the Editor, and his assiduous exertions, shall be unremittingly taxed to ensure the prosperity of this work, and he only solicits of the public a corresponding patronage. To the American statesman, American husbandman, and American mechanic, it will be the cheapest library in the world.

Terms and Conditions. I. " THE SENATOR" will be published in the District of Columbia, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday in every week.

II. It will be delivered to subscribers in Georgetown and the Gity of Washington on the days of publication at their respective houses -and in separate packets addressed to other subscribers as they shall direct.

III. The paper shall be of equal quality and size with that on which the Daily National Intelligencer is published; the type will be beautiful and legible.

IV. The price will be Six Dollars in advance; the first payment to be ber by subscribers in the District of Columbia. V. Advertisements, literary notices, &c. as the limits may admit, at the terms usual in the District. Applicants and correspondents will address the Editor at Washington or Georgetown-their letters and communications post paid.

- 85- Editors of newspapers disposed to favor the prosperity of the SENATOR, are requested without delay to republish the prospectus above, as often as they shall find it convenient. District of Columbia, Nov. 26.
