narched his columners to the felia pattle. Our legislators will find necessary to have the satue engine o constant use as soon as their ton criptive system begins, It is so et known whether the wan abo will have to perform the honour h office of driver will have to emple a whip or a musket. This has not will, it is supposed be settled in the ail; but the hand-cuffs it is need must immediately be had becoming its one of the virtues of our administration, we sliguld at he liberty of suggesting whether the liberty of purchase Buonspar. they might us at a reduced practice which he can well afford to sell suco his banishment to Elba,

We are happy to see that a disposition prevails in our legislature to raise an army for the defence of this state, masmuch as it will be great relief to the militia. A tender of the services of this force has been made to the general government, and if any encouragement can be obtained from that quarter, we may reasonably calculate the the army would be soon raised his understood, however, before this force is authorized to be raised, that its operations are to be confined to certain specified limits, and that it be taken into the service of the United States. The frequent calls which our exposed situation renders it necessary to make on the local militia are attended with almost in-calculable injuries to the state, and if we must have a continuation of war we must have a force that can be depended on at all time and under any circumstances, and this must be a well organized and disciplined regular army. No other auinefficiency of an ordinary militia army, than the official lerters of General Washington; but as there are those in our legislature whose experience has taught them this important fact, that these documents will carry with them more than ordinary weight .- Independent of all other considerations, the expence attending a militia force ought at once to induce the general govern-ment to accept the proposition of the legislature of this state. Although they received no bounty nor cloathing, yet the expence of a militia force of the same numbers; callled out in the manner they have hitherto been, is nearly or quite the same with a regular army. At these times when the public credit is sank so low, and when funds are so difficult to be procured by the general government, this is a consideration of no small moment.

COMMUNICATED.

Magistrates and Constables look out! It is notorious that there are now in this City several persons, Gamblers by profession, who are in the nightly habit of pursuing their iniquitous practices, by which the unthinking and unsuspicious are swindied in open contempt of the law lice. When a pick-pocket, or other felon, is detected in his practices, the whole community, are up in arms, and active to appehend him, but it seems these black-legged gentry can practice with impunity the most flagitious and destructive species of swindling, whilst the magistracy are looking on unconcerned, and the constables are dosing on their posts.

If the magistrates and constables permit such things much longer, their conduct will be brought below the proper tribunal. Do they not know their duty? Are they unwilling or unable to perform it? Or are they ignorant that such things be. The subject shall be investigated.
