From the Albany Register of Friday GEN. WILKINSON.

The trial of this veteran of the revolution has been closed for some days; but the de itom of the court is not yet known. An extract fro his defence, has appeared in the Tro, Particon which we have coped it into our columns of this day. It possesses interest, as the appe of an old solvier, to the feelings of his judges and his countrymen. The whole de cace, we have no doubt, is an able and satisfactory vandication of his conduct; for we never have had but one opinion on the subject, which is that the charges against him originated in the dark mazes of political margine; and that it was intended to make annual the victim of the most detestable persecution.

From the Troy Post, April 4. FXTRACTS FROM GLN. WILL WSON'S

DEFENCE.
[The trial of Gua. William has excited so mach laterest auring the winter past, that we presume it will be accepted a to our read-ers to see a part of his defence. It is said the trial will be published. ed as soon as the sontence of the court is made of thousand. The following the expraising and conclusion of the general's defence.]

"Mr. Presid at, and Conflomen of the Court, "The case before you, however

This would be well, were good to come of it; but as personal concroversy seldom mends the heart or improves the understanding, it never should be suffered on slight grounds.

An upright and able minister would prefer to rest his political standing on his own reputation, sooner thair seek to prop it by the persecution of a faithful, zealous, but unfortunate general; such was the conduct of a Chatham, whose example it is impossible an Armstrong could imitate.

But my case is perhaps without an example ;-That of a minister of high standing and splendid talents, seducing an officer from an honourable command and the fairest prospeds of fame, to put him on the execution of an impracticable project, without competent means; and because of its failure, to save himself from public adium, he descends to cast the blame he has montred from archives of the war department.

Lis own should re upon these of the war. President, may the war worn when he had decreased and the war worn with a runnel constitution tricks, stratagems, and perildies, to cilicer he had deceived; and this cfilcer! a man with whom he had been associated in the most interesting scenes of the revolutionary war; the friend of his juvenile days, to whom he professed to be bound by the sacred ties of personal confidence and attachment.

Mr. President, I disclaim high colourings in a case of such gravity, and should disdain to excite the Relings, or warp the judgment of my judges were I capable; the disclosures about to be made will test the truth, and determine my title to credibility.

From the common anxiety we have felt to constude the procrastinated investigation with as little delay as possible. I have undertaken to perform in 12 days, a work which required a month. It must not therefore be expected that I should present this defence in that connected, prepared state; with that regularity and complete arrangement, and analysis of the testimony, which it was my desire to subint to the deliberate understanding of this court, and to the sober reflections of my countrymen.

In forming a judgment on the whole or any distinct part of my conduct, I flatter myself the court will be determined by circumstances as they appeared at the time; by the decisions of the moment and the apparent exigencies of the occasion; not by an after knowledge of facts which could not be known at the

Before I enter upon the investi- of your award, because I am sass rition of the testimony, I consider it a matter of propriety towards the court, briefly to state the course I shall pursue : It will be recollected that a report touching the merits or hat part of the campaign of 1813 in which I was contested, at the call of the house of representatives. was made up by that accuser and presented to that himographe body in the session of 1813-14; and it has been almitted by the court "primafacie" evidence on this inquity; I have availed myself of tars permission, to present such parts of that report to the view o the court as tend to throw light upon the inquiry before it, and to explain the principles and motives of by actions in command, from the first order received at the dawn of he late war, to the termination of my command on the northern frontier last April.

I shall then, Mr. President, open the case with a brief narrative facts and incidents; after which I shall proceed to compare and apply the testimony, and will cone adwith a rapid summary of the whole.

CONCLUSION. " The artifics of my recuser pre vailed; he deprived me all my sword in the dawn of the company; threw state! The testimonials of those meritorious gallant Officers, Com. Macdonough and Major General M. Comb, (see app. No. 79) seconded by the credential of a respectable eye witness, a citizen of this State, will prove beyond doubt, that my agency contributed essentially to our naval triumph on Lake Champlain, and the preservation of our garrison at Plattsburgh. From the documents it will appear that but for my precaution in establishing a battery at the mouth of Otter Creek, the early movement of the enemy against that point in May last would have blocked up our squadron for the season: The shores of the Lake would have been exposed to his ravages, and Plattsburgh milst have yielded to his superior force.

Mr. President and Gentlemen, whatever may be my future destiny, a destiny at this moment wrapt in clouds, I shall bear in grateful recollection the patience with which you have waded through the tedious inquiry. I confide in the justice

Whatever it may be, I am prepared to meet it with complacenev, and were it proper for me to ex press a wish on the awful occasion which interest my feelings closer than life itself, I should say—If Guilty, let my punishment be exemplary-I Innocent, acquit me with honour.

Then I shall not have lived in vain.' * The court before which the cechrated Maj. Andre was tried.
