From the Baltimore Telegraph of July 7.
WASHINGTON MONUMENT.
Agreeably to previous arrangements, the Managers of the Monument met in Howard's Park at 12 o'clock, on Tuesday the 4th July, 1815, and in the presence of from 25 to 30,000 of their fellow citizens, among whom were a number of the reverend clergy, the president and members of the Cincinnati of Maryland, his excellency the governor R. W. G. M. and members of the grand lodge of Maryland and the subordinate lodges of Baltimore, the mayor and city council of Baltimore; officers of the army and navy; major general R. G. Harper and aids; and the 3d Brigade of Maryland militia, under the command of brig. general Sterett; they proceeded to perform the pleasing duty assigned them by the legislature of Maryland, of laying the first corner stone of a Monument, to be erected in the city of Baltimore, to the memory of Gen. Washington, the father of the republic.
In an elevated situation near the spot prepared for laying the corner stone, was exhibited an excellent likeness of the deceased hero and sage, an original portrait painted by Mr. REMBRANDT PEALE; and, immediately under the picture, a correct and beautiful representation of the MONUMENT to be erected, as designed by Mr. MILLS, painted by Mr. HENRY WARREN. These were richly decorated by Mr. HUGH FINDLEY, forming together an appropriate TROPHY for the occasion; and, at the beginning of the ceremony, the Ensigns from the attending Volunteer Corps displayed their flags, on which were painted the ARMS of the UNITED STATES, around the Trophy.
The ceremonies of the day were commenced by some national airs from a volunteer band of amateurs, Mr. Bunyie leader.
A salute of 59 guns, commemorative of the number of years which was on that day completed since the declaration of independence.
Washington's march, by the band. James A. Buchanan, esq. president of the board of managers, then addressed the audience as follows:
"The distinguished honor, my fellow citizens, of presiding on this interesting occasion, has devolved upon me, in consequence of the death of my predecessor, the founder and first president of the board of managers, JOHN CONEYS; to whom, more than any member of the board, more indeed, than to all the other members of the board, is to be ascribed whatever there may be of merit in the procuring for our city, the glory of being the first to erect a monument of gratitude to the father and benefactor of our country.
And, my fellow citizens, is it not with peculiar propriety that this first expression of national gratitude should be made in the city of Baltimore? At all times the first to evince its attachment to those republican institutions, to secure which was the great object of Washington's labours. Baltimore has at no time been backward with testimonials of her love and gratitude towards him. When she saw him elevated to the highest honours in the gift of his country, Baltimore was among the first to approach him with her homage. "The tokens of regard and affection," said he, "which I have often received from the citizens of this town were always acceptable, because I always believed them sincere."
When descending from his exalted station, he relinquished his power, and sought for happiness in the bosom of retirement; the first to thank him for his services and to regret his departure, was Baltimore. In reply to an address presented to him on that occasion, by the city, he observed, "I pray you to accept of my sincere thanks, for the evidence you have now given, of approbation of my past services; for those regrets which you have expressed, on the occasion of my retirement to private life, and for the affectionate attachment which you have declared for my person." If these be sufficient to establish, in Baltimore, a priority of claim to the hallowed services of this day, recent interesting events, of which she was the theatre, lean powerfully in support of them. During the war in which we have been engaged, the city destined to bear the proud name of WASHINGTON, to future ages, fell an easy conquest to the ruthless invader. The shock produced by this stroke was felt from the one end of the United States to the other. The minds of our countrymen appeared to be transfixed with horror and dismay; a night of awful darkness seemed to overshadow our land; the gloomiest apprehensions were entertained for the republic; the timid and the desponding, not recollecting that freedom rises with an elasticity proportionate to the pressure made upon it, were approaching a state of political despair. "At this most awful moment for our country, Baltimore, the city of our affection, in which was contained, our altars, our families, our all; became the next object of attack to a vindictive, and at that time, a vain-glorious foe. The eyes of all America were fixed upon us! On the destiny of Baltimore seemed to be suspended the fate of the Republic! She breathed the storm, and thanks to her gallant defenders, exists now, in prosperity and glory, to perform this most grateful of duties.

The desire, my fellow citizens, of perpetuating the memory of illustrious men, has prevailed in every age of the world. The ingenuity of man, has been exercised, as well in his rudest, as in his most polished condition in devising methods by which, effectually, to gratify this desire. The song of the poet, the pen of the historian, the pencil of the painter, the chissel of the sculptor, all have, in every age, been employed, to render their fame imperishable. It has, indeed, been sometimes said, that the only monument real excellence requires, is an existence in the recollection of those who have been blessed by its operation, and that, in the gratitude of posterity, it has its best reward. It would be superfluous under present circumstances, to enquire into the correctness of this sentiment. We have taken the sense of mankind, as exhibited in immortal usage for our guide; and, I therefore proceed to state, that we are assembled here, my fellow citizens, to lay the corner stone of a monument, intended to commemorate the virtues of our great Washington, of the hero and the sage "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." On an occasion so grand, so interesting, it might perhaps be expected, that some notice should be taken of "the services of the mighty dead;" but when we recollect, that the world is filled with his glory, and that its radiance shines with a lustre which requires no aid from eulogy, I feel relieved from a task, which it would have been the height of presumption for me to have undertaken.
With these few observations, my fellow citizens; more than which I have not believed to be necessary, and less than which, would not have satisfied my own impressions of duty, allow me to solicit your devout attention to the next feature of our arrangement, which is, to invoke the blessings of Almighty God, on the purpose for which we are assembled.
The following Prayer, was then addressed to the Throne of God, by the Right Reverend Bishop KEMP.
"O God! in whom we live and move and have our being. Every good thing that we enjoy here, we derive from thee, and every good thing that we hope for hereafter, thou alone canst bestow.
We acknowledge, with deep humility, that we have followed too much the devices and desires of our own hearts; that we have done those things which we ought not to have done; and that we have left undone those things which we ought to have done; and that there is no spiritual health in us. Pardon, O merciful Father, our manifold iniquities, and direct us in the way of truth, that we may bring forth much fruit to the glory of thy Father who art in heaven. Amen."
