

POET'S CORNER

FROM THE ROCK FOLIO.
On seeing a young lady shed tears at the grave of her school mistress.
Oh! how tender those signs that you breathe o'er her grave.

THE RAY THAT BEAMS FOR EVER.
There is a bloom that never fades,
A rose no storm can sever,
Beyond the tulip's gaudy shades,
A ray that beams for ever.

From the Gleaner.
THE COGITATIONS OF UNCLE JOHN.

Are you at leisure, my friends?
Come go with me to the rock on yonder mountain, and let us take a survey of the works of nature.

But lo! the moon that rules the night,
ascends the eastern sky,
and the heavens are hung with innumerable stars.

These are the works of thy Almighty hand,
Parent of the Universe.
The Heavens shine by thy splendour.

When we consider the power of intellectual and moral attainment, indicated by what has already been produced in arts and sciences,

This is the being who is made Lord of the earth.
Man is the favored child for whom the vineyard is planted.

And what are the terms of the lease?
What considerations are to be paid for such amazing goodness?

Happy people! How delightful must it be for such goodness to perform the pleasure of their Heavenly Parent!

Alas! while we readily acknowledge the obligation, how slow are we to perform it.
Shameful unthankfulness! Monstrous ingratitude!

While we deeply deplore the wickedness, and consequent wretchedness that prevails in the land, the philanthropic mind is led to enquire what can be done to arrest its progress?

There is an evil—a master vice—the prolific mother of a thousand woes—the perennial spring of boundless misery, prevailing in the land, which can only be arrested by the firm, persevering efforts of the wise and good.

It prevails to an unbounded extent, infecting all classes of the community, from the humble cottage to the lofty dome, bringing in its train moral depravity, disease and death.

By the influence of this dreadful contaminating vice, the noble mind of man, that places him first in the sphere of created beings and assimilates him to the image of his Divine Maker, is dethroned.

The habit of intoxication, like most other vices, is of slow and silent growth.
A bitter in the morning. A glass of cool grog at 11.
A little brandy to settle the dinner, and a cup with a friend in the evening, often repeated, renders the practice inveterate.

Go to the abodes of indigence and wretchedness, and ask the cause of their misery?
The answer, ten times in eleven, will be, INTemperance entered our dwelling and happiness and plenty fled.

Visit the courts of Justice, and hear the criminals pleading at the bar, and how common are the instances, that the only apology for theft, rape and murder, is the dreadful plea of INTOXICATION.

A sage lawgiver of ancient times, decreed, that an offence committed in liquor, should be doubly punished.

Surely the very seeds of a vice that produces such dreadful effects, ought to be rooted out from the earth.
It is worse than all the plagues of Egypt. The cup is more poisonous than that of Circe.

When we consider the power of intellectual and moral attainment, indicated by what has already been produced in arts and sciences, it cannot be denied that the soul of man is an emanation from his Divine Creator.
