From the Philadelphia American. THE STAR IN THE BAST. SWEETLY along the etherial way No aphorea its course debar. Behold! while they their race delay Yen word created world display, Its glories that eclipse the day, Amazing! new born star?

Not diamonds in the deep dark mine, Which spread their beams afar, Nor gems, by radiant charge divine, In cluster of pleindes that shine, Stream along space such rays as thine, Refulgent new born starl.

What wondrous era doth advance, Wright round that orbick car? Unfold! unfold! dispel the trance! Bright regent of the pure expanse Heaven bids thee lead the raptur'd glance. To still a brighter star ! Herald of empyrean light. Than thine superior far Stream'd from the Father's sapphire height.

Kindling o er error's cheerless night,

Those rays so merciful, so bright, From hrist, our new-born star ! Where, where"-ye eastern sages

And Bethlehem declare, Till Gilbox's dewy mountains ring, And Heaven's own minstrels tune the etring, "Where is the babe born Israel's king Messiah! morning star?

" Breathing Arabia's spiciest gale, We hasten from afar; Before us see his herald sail, Bring we rich perfumes of the vale, Would great the God, adore and hail, Messiah! morning star!"

THE PORT FOLIO,

The subscriber, having become forms the patrons of that journal. that ir will be published in future at the " New, Publication Office," No. 133, Chesnut street, Philadelphia. where orders addressed to the pub lisher, will be received, if post paid. Those who have been agents are requested to transmit their orders for the ensuing year.

Liberal and extensive arrangements have been made in the editorial department. The present editor having long enjoyed the friendship and correspondence of the lamented founder of this establishment, he deems it proper to say that the plan of that accomplished scholar, will be the model, which he shall endeavor to imitate in his career-this is to be understood, with an exception of the topics of religion and politics. On these subjects the editor intends to observe a rigid neutrality. It is particularly necess ry that this should be understood, because peveral gentle-men, who entertained different sen timents on the latter subject; from those which he has supported, pugnis et calcibus; in season and out of season, for many years in a neigh Bouring city, have already with drawn their names from the subscription list of this journal. In a contest of ten years duration conducted with more than usual violence, the editor has learned the important truth that party is the madness of many for the good of a few. This lesson has been inscribed SOF BLOOD : and whitever part he may take, if another conjuncture shou d jeopardfriends of the liberty of the press; the patrons of this journal are assured that it shall be exclusively a literary and scientific journal.

The editors of Inderal papers throughout the U. States are requested to notice this address. The editor of the Port Folio bas no right to ask this fayout of the gentlemen on the other side of the house; but as he has laid down his arms, they cannot consider him any longer in the character of a beligerent and they may therefore be inclined to aid him in vindicating and supporting the literary reputation of the American Empire.

J. E. HALL

From the Salem Gazette.

JOHN JAY The venerable, the illustrious, the incorruptible, and the intrapid Statesman, John Jar; has, by the blessing of Heaven, lived to behold the shame of his calumniators, and the complete triumph and perfect glory of his conduct as a negotiator, the noisy dared to do his cuty in defining of popular odium and accordance of popular odium and nonscient ciamour. The people ragthing, but he was firm as a rock-he sought only the good of his country and who note is so base as not to acknowledge he is one of the greatest benefactors and one of the chief promoters of his country's prospectly and honour? When he put his name to the fa-nous British Treaty he well know it would be like nouring oil on the dames of Brench Jacobinian, which were then raging in this country, this as he foresaw, he was again and again hung and burned in effigy in every market square, by Jacobin Mobs bis name was covered with the most fool standers and the must vulgar obloquy in all the democratic journals and town-meetings; Bri-bery! and British Gold was the furious outcry against this pure and upright patrion.

Above all, let it never be forgot ten, that Monsos, the same man whom some now would fain make President, at that time being Ambassador in France, actually quarrelled with John Jay for not disclosing to him the state of the negotiation with England, so that the same might be communicated to the French Directory ! This man actually contended that. Washington had no right to make a treaty with G. Britain without first applying to France, and, with Liberty cap in hand, first saying by your leave.

But " time is a friend to truth;" it is even now, in the life time of the immortal JAY, known and acknowledged that he has always been an honest, pure, wise and firm friend of his country: posterity will do justice to his foes, which they know, and tremble.

Extract of a letter from Sergeant Ewart, of the Scots Grays, who in the battle of Waterloo, took a French Eagle, to his brother in Ayr, dated Rouen, 16th August, 1815. After describing in rather an interesting manner the attacks of the 16th and 17th, the Sergeant gives the following detail of the snare which he had in the business of the memorable 18th lane.

The enemy began forming their ines of battle about 9 in the morning of the 18th, we did not com-mence till 10. I think it was about 11 when we were ready to receive them. They began upon our right with the most tremendous firing that ever was heard, and, I can assure you, they got it as hot as they gave it! then it came down to the left, where they were received by our brave Highlanders :' no men could ever behave better; our brigade of cavalry covered them. Owing to a column of foreign troops giving way our brigade was forced to advance to the support of our brave fellows, and which we certainly did in style; we charged through two of their columns, each about 5000; it was in the first charge I took the Eagle from the enemy, he and I had a very hard contest for it; he thrust f r my groin-1 parried it off and cut him through the head; after which, I was attacked by one of their lancers, who threw his lance at me, but missed the mark, by my throwing it off with my sword by my right side-then I cut him from the chin upwards, which cut went through his teeth, next, I was attacked by a toot soldier, who after firing at me, charged me with his bayonet-but he very soon lost his combat, for I parried it and cut him down through the head ! so that finished the contest for the Eagle: After which I presumed to follow my comrades, Eagle and all, but was stopped by the general, saying to me; . You, brave fellow, take that to the rear; you have done enough until you get quit of it, which I was obliged to do, but with great reluctance. I retired to the neight and stood there for upwards of an hour, which gave me a general view of the field, but I cannot express the sighe I beheld; the bodies of my brave comrades were lylog to thick upon the field that it were scarcely possible to pass, and horses innumerable. I took the Eagle into Brusaels' amidet the acclamations of thousands of the spec-
