January 22, 1816 Rien a Good Look Out A-Hend.

Previous to the day upon which the different treaties, by the combined powers and france were sign, ed at Paris, a separate treaty was made by England with Spain.
The government of the United States surely cannot be ignorant of the facts. If not their agents abroad have been remiss in not furnishing the necessary information.

The Emperor of Russia made stand against the pretensions of England, Heart overed the inten-tions of the cubinet of Eoudon.

Through his minister a note was presented to lotd Castlereugh, containing an ultimutum with an assurance, that his troops should not act any longer, if the pretensions of Great Britain in the negociations ith Spain were persisted in.

Lord Castlereagh yielded to the proposition-but postponed the definitive ratifications of the general treaties until an opportunity was afforded to have that with Spain first concluded. He was successful, and immediately afterwards was authorised by the prince regent to close the bargain as to Europe, by signing

To no potentate in Europe are the United States more indebted than to the emperor of Russia. The magnanimity displayed by him through out the arduous struggle in which he has been engaged, has in many instances, defeated the machinations of the British cabinet-and has evinced a disposition to cultivate the most friendly intercourse with the United States. His ambassador here has confirmed this assurance to our government.

Let us embrace is-and let Russia and America hereafter be considered as twin sisters. There is no possible cause of jealousy or rivalship. Their interests are the same, wheth, r considered in a commercial or political point of view.

That the United States has serious difficulties to expect, cannot be doubted. Uncontrovertible proofs of the fact, will in a short time be furnished for publication. Our late ministers at Ghent, have been apprized of many—but since their te-parture from that place, more has been developed.

The expectation of a long peace is visionary-however devoutly to be desired.

On our part no disposition to war has been manifested at any timeand it is hoped that the spirit which was displayed in 1776, and the naval and military valor of 1813 and 1814, will not be relaxed in 1816, through feeble or temporary counsels, into the humiliating condition in which they were in 1811 and 1812.

Conquest forms no part of A. merican ambition-but a surrender of rights will always be-resisted by freemen.

Embrace the present momentsprepare for the ultima ratio. The time is at hand-and that we may not be so enfecbled as we were at the beginning of the late war, is among the cares and obligations which congress has to fulfil to their country. A WATCHMAN.

From the Baltimore Telegraph. WAR WITH SPAIN.

"What is this, that roars so loud, and thunders in the index."

For some time past, the journals in the confidence of the cabinet, have more than hinted, that the U. S. were on the eve of a war with Spain. Duane, several months ago, was absolutely in raptures, to think that a number of Americans were preparing to join the cause of what is denominated the Spanish patriots of South America. These transports were, however, extinguished by the President's proclamation. Afterwards, the Chevalier de Onis was formally acknowledged as the minister of his Majesty, King Ferdinand. Thus far, every thing seemed to wear an auspicious and pacific appearance. If the minister of His Catholic Majesty, was rethat we should not interfere in the interhal commotions of his South American colonies. Scargely had we received this information, howewer, before intelligence reached us through some of the democratic paperis, that the Spanish minister hande seme insolent demands upon nur government. This was contra-dicted in the Aurora, by some one, in the half of the Spanish Minister, who further stated that important documents in the possession of our cabinet, were suppressed from the separate treaty has been entered into between England and Spain; that the government of the United States are acquainted with the Act; that the Emperor of Russia had made a stand against the pretensions of England; that his minister. presented a note, with an ultimatum. to Lord Castlereagh, which was to withdraw his troops from the service of the confederacy, if the pretens ons of England in her negociations with Spain, were persisted in; that his Lordship yielded to this re-monstrance, and postponed in ne-gociations with Spain, until the treaty with the allies was concluded; that his Majesty, the Emperor of Russia was particularly friendly to the United States, and had on several occasions defeated the machinations of the British cabinet. The writer declares that " a long peace was visionary, however devoutly to be wished." He says "that the United States have serious difficulties to expect, cannot be doubted; that uncontrovertible proofs of this fact will, in a short time, be furn shed for publication; that our late ministers at Ghent have been apprised of many of the facts, and that since their departure from the place, more have been developed. The writer of this article appears to be acquainted with some facts, which have not yet met the public eye, and no man would have dared to speak such language, we conceive, without authority. He refers us to our late commissioners for more precise information. Mr. Clay. one of those gentlemen, held in a recent debate in the House of Rep-

"The taxes had been opposed. on the ground that we were at peace with all the world, and likely to remain so. Mr. Clay said, among other things, that the relations with Spain were by no means pacific. That the Spanish minister had lately made a peremptory and impudent demand of a portion of our territory -a demand which he could not speak of with sufficient contempt. He asked, if gentlemen knew the state o our relations with the insurgents of South America, and he expressly intimated, that we might, before long, engage in warlike enterprizes, to aid in establishing their independence."

resentatives, the following language:

We do not say that Mr. Clay was the author of the paragraph in the Aurora; but we should not be at all astonished, if, while he blushed his cheeks to scarlet, in communicating such intelligence to Congress, he should, without a suffusion of the face, have penned such an article for the Aurora. He might thus have referred to himself as an evidence, while he should hesitate to give such testimony in his own person. If Mr. Clay is not the author, it is singular that a correspondent of the Aurora should have re ferred to him as an authority for his assertion, and that he should have given the same testimony on the floor of the House of Representa-

Now here is Mr. Clay furnishing the precise information alluded to oninion that the United be embroiled in a war on the lide of the Spanish insurgents of South America. The writer in the Auro ra intimates that Russia is to become a party with the United States in this alliance, and he speaks of his own knowledge of the fact. By what means he came in possession of this information does not appear, he states the ultimatum of the Einperor of Russia, and its acceptance on the part of lord Castereagh, and refers to documents which have not seen the light in proof of this assertion: an assertion which Mr. Clay as far as his testimony goes corrobo

Let it be remembered further, that when our cabinet contemplate the perpetration of an enormous act, they suffer the information to steal out through other channels than the court gazette.

Thus far are we enabled to pry into the mysteries of cabinet depravity. Let us remember further, that Joseph Buonaparte the ex-king of Spain, is now in this country; that French Generals formerly in the service of Napoleon, are con-stantly arriving. That Ney and Buonaparte himself wished to be allowed a free passage to America. Do we believe that the ex-king of Spain, and his generals, wish to exshovels and spaces! Rather in it not presumable that he contamplates an exchange of a Paninsula for a continent—that his eyes are public eye. It writer in the Auro-I now fland on the mines of Potasi ra of Monday last, states that a sud Perud Internot presumable than he will promise to his insurged s of Mexico, liberty a la mode de France! that he knows the weakness of the Spanish Monarch at the present moment and his incompetence to subdue the insurgents by force of arms. Let us remember, that we have an army disbanded and panting for employment, before whose eyes the rich mines of Mexico are presented as the reward of their enterprize! Let it further be recollected that we are on the eve of the Presidential election, and that the democratic party are seriously divided in the choice of their candi-

They may contemplate that a new war will reconcile all their anmosities. Here are motives of avarice and ambition both held out as the lures for us to embark in this controversy. Our cabinet will not indeed spring the mine until all the materials are prepared; but to assert that they do contemplate some enorminy, is only to say in other words, that James Madison and lames Mufiroe are members.

THE MINT ESTABLISHMENT.

Report of the Director to the President of the United States: Mint of the United States,

January 1, 18 6. SIR-I have the honour at this time, of laying before you, a report of the operations of the mint, during the last year.

From the statement of the treasurer, herewith transmitted, it will appear, that during that period there have been struck at the mint. In gold coins, 635 pieces, amounting to 3.75 dollars. In suver coms, 69,232 pieces, amounting to 17,308 dollars; making in the whole 69,867 pieces, amounting to 20,482 dollars.

The high price of gold and silver bullion, for some time past, in the current paper money of the country, has prevented, and, as long as this shall continue to be the case, must necessarily prevent deposits of these metals being made for coinage, to any considerable amount.-But a fresh supply of copper having lately been received at the mint, we have again resumed the comage of rents; and it is believed that we shall, in the course of the year, should no failure in the expected supply of copper take place, be fully able to coin fity tons weight, amounting to nearly 47,000 dollars and that, with a regular supply of copper, which can readily be procured, on terms highly advantageous to government, we can continue to coin fi ty tons per annum, as ong as it may be judged expedient.

The circulation of these copper coins, and of those heretotore issued from the mint, amounting to 251,646 dollars) and which must be still nearly all in the country, would, it is presumed, soon supply in a great measure, the place of the small silver coins, which have now almost totally disappeared.

I have the honor to be, sir, with by this writer. He expresses an the greatest respect and esteem, most obedie R. PATTERSON.
