

INSURABILITY
Only told is the Lo-drop that clings to the wail
When a breeze has sprinkled his hoar-locks with
And child is the sign of Ontario's blow
That boris from wave-beaten caverns below
But Coler's the eye where go kindness fits
To him who unrivaled and friendless remains
And the hear-frozen light where no warm will
Is coming
More chill than the lake-tempest breathes o'er
The plains.

THE APPARITION
"Was silence all the rising moon
With clouds had veiled her light
The clock struck twelve, when lo! I saw
A very chilling light.
Pale as a snow ball was its face,
Like icicles its hair
For mantle, it appeared to me
A sheet of ice to wear.
Though I'd given to alarm,
Indeed I'm not discernible
My teeth all chattered in my head,
And every joint did tremble.
At last I cried "Pray, who are you,
And whither do you go?"
Methought the phantom thus replied—
"My name is Sally Snow:
"My father is the Northern Wind,
My mother's name was Water,
Old parson Winter married them,
And I'm their hop ful daughter!
"I had a lover, Jacky Frost,
Who did the match condemn;
I've run from home to meet
My lover on the Thames!"
I told Miss Snow in her discourse,
"I hope if John and you unite,
Your union won't be lasting."
"Besides if you should marry him,
You never would do well, oh
For I know Jacky Frost to be
A very slippery fellow!"
She fat her down before the fire:
My wonder now increases
For she I took to be a Maid,
Now tumbled into pieces!
For "air, thin air," 'd Hamlet's ghost
But what I saw and now describe,
Diffid'd itself to waver!

NAPOLEON.
REMEDY FOR THE GOUT.
From the Belfast Commercial Chronicle, April 10.
It is well known that the Emperor Napoleon was an effective protector of all the arts and the sciences, but it is not so generally understood, that, whenever any important discovery was made, in any branch of art or science, he set negotiations on foot to purchase the secret of the invention, with a view to publish it in the Moniteur, not only for the benefit of France but of the world at large. The remedy for the gout, by Dr. Pradier, was then purchased by Napoleon, at the price of 2,500l. sterling, paid from his private purse, and the formula was immediately published in the Moniteur as follows:—
Balm of Mecca six drachms
Red Bark one ounce
Saffron half an ounce
Sarsaparilla one ounce
Sage one ounce
Rect. spirits of wine three pounds
Dissolve, separately, the balm of Mecca in one third of the spirits of wine; macerate the rest of the substances in the remainder, for forty-eight hours—filter and mix the two liquors. For use, the tincture obtained is mixed with twice or thrice the quantity of lime-water; the bottle must be shaken, in order to mix the precipitate, settled to the bottom by standing.
The following is a mode of employing the remedy:
A poultice must be prepared of linseed meal, which must be of a good consistency, and spread very hot, of the thickness of a finger on a napkin, so as to be able completely to surround the part affected; if it be required for both legs from the feet to the knees, it will take about three quarts of linseed meal. When the poultice is prepared and as hot as the patient can bear it, and about two ounces of the prepared liquor, must be poured equally over the whole of each, without its being imbibed; the part affected is then to be wrapped up in it, & bound up with flannel and bandages to preserve the heat. The poultice is generally changed every twenty-four hours, sometimes at the end of twelve.
It would be whimsical if the Prince Regent of England were to be cured of this tormenting & dangerous disease, by a remedy which he would be evidently indebted to the public spirit and liberality of Napoleon.

MARRIAGE SCHEM.
The following pleasant little story from the Petersburg Intelligencer, may relieve an idle moment, and possibly be productive of some good.
To the Editors of the Petersburg Intelligencer.
GENTLEMEN—On the 21st day of Dec. last, I was passing through the state of South Carolina, and in the evening arrived at the suburbs of the town of —, where I had an acquaintance on whom I called. I was quickly informed that the family was invited to a wedding at a neighbouring house, and on being requested I changed my clothes and went with them. As soon as the young couple were married, the company was seated and a profound silence ensued—(the man of the house was religious.) A young Lawyer then arose, and addressed the company very handsomely, and in finishing his discourse he left leave to offer a new scheme of matrimony, which he believed and hoped would be beneficial. And on obtaining leave, he proposed:
That one man in the company should be selected as president; that this president should be duly sworn to keep entirely secret all the communications that should be forwarded to him in his official department that night; and that such unmarried gentleman and lady in company should write his or her name on a piece of paper, and under it place the person's name who they wished to marry; then hand it to the president for inspection, and if any gentleman and lady had reciprocally chosen each other the president was to inform each of the result; & those who had not been reciprocal in their choice should have their choice kept entirely secret.
After the appointment of the president, the communications were accordingly handed up to the chair, and it was found that twelve young gentlemen and ladies had made reciprocal choices;—but who they had chosen, remained a secret to all but themselves and the president. The conversation changed and the company respectively retired.
Now hear the conclusion. I was passing through the same place on the 14th of March following, & was informed that eleven of the twelve matches had been solemnized, and that the young gentlemen of eight couples of the eleven, had declared that their diffidence was so great that they certainly should not have addressed their respective wives, if the above scheme had not been introduced.—23 Gentlemen under 20 and ladies under 15, were excluded as unmarriageable.

Fishing extraordinary—As a gentleman was angling last Thursday in the Mill Dam, Westchester, he accidentally threw his line across a strong white duck, which suddenly turning round, twisted the gut about her own neck; and fixed the hook of the dropper fly in her own breast. Thus entangled & hooked, she soon broke off the gut above the dropper, and sailed down the stream, with the end fly trailing behind her. She had not proceeded far before a trout apparently about 1 1/2 lbs. weight took the fly effectually. Then commenced a struggle the most extraordinary that ever was witnessed—a duck at the dropper, & a large trout at the end fly! Whenever the trout exerted itself the terrors of the duck were very conspicuous: it fluttered its wings and dragged the fish. In case of no violent struggles on the part of the trout, the duck evidently gave way, & suffered herself at last to be drawn under some bushes, where the shortness of the gut did not allow the trout to shelter himself in his retreat, and the duck to remain on the surface at the same time. The duck's head was drawn repeatedly under water, by chance however, the gut got across a branch, which hung downwards into the water, and the duck taking advantage of the purchase which this gave her, dragged her opponent from his hole, and compelled him to show his head above water. Then it became a contest of life or death; the trout was in the last agonies and the duck evidently in a very weak state, when the gut gave way, and suffered them to part each his own way.

MARYLAND GAZETTE
VOL. LXXIV.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED
BY
JONAS GREEN,
CORNER-STREET, ANNAPOLIS.
Price—Three Dollars per Annum.

From the New-York Courier.
COMMUNICATED.
A superficial observer would take the citizens of New-York, to be the most humane & tender-hearted people under the sun. Their humanity seems to embrace the whole human race, (except ourselves,) as the globe circles the globe. Tell them of some calamity which has befallen some nation of France, and you will hear them bewail his fate as if he were a brother. If a French peasant is oppressed by his haughty landlord, what indignation will they display towards the rich oppressor! How ready will they be to sympathize with the poor oppressed! Marshal Ney, & others, were lately executed for Treason, and such was the feeling which was excited among the democrats, that I looked for a Crusade against Louis XVIII. Now this might lead one to think our countrymen very humane, if we did not know that these same sympathies were all the same, with a liberal and unindifferent patriot, an officer of distinction, by a mob of Baltimore! With indifference, did I say, with horrid satisfaction. A man, not murdered for Treason, but for the defence of the liberty of the press, in a republic! Again, when they read of the poor and oppressed people of Ireland; they are immediately thrown into a fit of the blues, & all the democratic editors, lament in rhyme, lament in prose, "With salt tears trickling down the nose."

This would excite my admiration, these same men did not behold with savage inhumanity, the grey-haired soldiers of the revolution, "Begging thro' lands their valor won." One of those revolutionary soldiers, who had lost all to save his country, once entered a democratic printing office, & asked a few cents "for charity's sake." The editor, at that moment reciting, with tears in his eyes, "There came to the beach a poor exile of Erin"—Tender-hearted man!
He could so feelingly weep for the suffering of a stranger, what do you think his feelings were to see before him his own fellow citizen; a soldier who fought and bled for our freedom for seven long years; a soldier who was ragged and grey, and emaciated with hunger; a soldier who bared his bosom and stripped his arm to show the scars which he received at Buller's Hill, and Gifford, and Gerstown; I say, what do you think were the feelings of this Editor? An' gentle reader! he ordered him to retire, else he would have him put in the almshouse, or prosecuted as a vagabond! If Mr. Cobbett informs us that an English lord prosecuted a peasant for shooting a Hare, what indignation! what rage does the dreadful story excite in New-York!—The National Advocate fairly weeps, and wails, and gnashes his teeth! He mourns the fate of the poor peasant most dolefully, and curses "o'er and o'er again" all the lords upon the face of the earth. Now, if he feels so tenderly for the sufferings of an Englishman, how much more do you think he would feel, for a fellow-citizen! But, gentle reader, I declare to you, & I call this city, nay, heaven to witness, that this same man, and nearly all his party, are this moment witnessing a more cruel oppression of a citizen, by a haughty Mayor, with utter indifference, if not with satisfaction, and he says not a word against it, but by his silence gives sanction to the oppression! Is this not strange? If the Lord Mayor of London should order a poor widow, with a family of orphans, to close her shop, and at the same time allow all the men in London to keep their open, how much would he shed, in abusing that Mayor! But the Mayor of New-York has done this, and not a democratic voice is lifted up against him! Is this strange? Yes—it is "a passing strange."
If the ladies of New-York—tender souls!—were to read Mrs. Ush-

er's story formed at they turn like Nicol thetically fate of her innoc would the unjust the tyrann them. before the lieve, that ness what for poor for Zulicke for the wil but alas! for a real strange? Y
