The division in the Bederal party was greason, (& a very strong one.) Its goodness, however, dopend why the Democrate should make a to the election that usually go, but to the election that usually go, but that many others, who of late remained at home, were prevailed upon to go to the polls in consequence of the prospect of the success of their ticket, as the Federalists were divided. Not with a saiding, the Democrats did not give so many votes for their and date for the office of the late election. veryor, at the late election, by 251 as they did in 1813.—Del. Gaz:

From the Aurora. . We were informed by an emment lawyer ten months ago, that the vessels seized in different forts of the union, for violating the revenue, laws during the embargo, nonintercourse, and the war, amounted to 300 sail! If the amount were only 50 sail, the following questions may be asked and Mr. Dallas as secretary of the treasury ought to be competent to answer the questions, "honestly if he can, forcibly if he must."- If there be a spark of intelligence and integrity in Con-gress this matter shall not stop here.

PENNSYLVAN POLITICS. From the Aurora.

Bets are already offered and accepted, as to the issue of the governor's election, which is take place a year hence; five to three for Findley against Boyleau. Alithis is fully in the spirit of the gambling style, in which he sober people of Pennsylvania permit their affairs to be conduced; nobody now makes any calculation about the honour, honesy, capacity, services, or education of the candidates, every thing is to depend upon the or-ruptibility of the members is be-sent the assembly at the next session : if Findley and his agencs can secure a greater number of votes in caucus, than his opponent, Boileau and his agents, those who bet upon him will be sure of winning, for as to the people themselves voting or having any thing efficient to do in the matter; nobody dreams of that—'twould be so troublesome to the people to think of it, that the gamblers set down their indifference as a matter certain.

To be sure, this is not a very favourable view of a republic, this is not a strong proof of the wisdom is not a strong prod of the wisdom of Pennsylvania. For Aikely to convert those who have doubted about the purity of free government—but what is all that to the gamblers, high and low; whoever becomes governor will be sure of fit, y thousand dollars, and helds. sand dollars salary, and half that sum of presents from office-holders; and whose er will get into the assembly and will seletheir consciences will be sure a effices for nine years t least. The would scarcely be selieved out of Pennsylvania, but all in Pennsylvania know this to be the order of the day-free & fair elections are as rare in this Compensation and the force of the control of the co le is merely recording the ont which previous management and rendered inevitable.

One word more to my fellow-farmers. If you would dry cows for fattening, cease from milking at once. Never cause the milk to be given down after you have ceased from taking the whole. In this way, the milk goes directly to the increase of flesh, and, in my opinion, occasions less pain touthe animal, than old mode of drying by partial minerags. Many experiments within my knowledge prove the mode here recommended, to be entirely safe.

Portsmouth, (N. H.) Sept. 28. NEW SUBJECT OF POSTAGE.

One day last week, as the postmaster in this town was opening the great eastern mail, closed at Portland, out jumped a full grown cut, not a little fatigued with a journey of 60 miles over a rough road, and occasionally subjected to the weight of the coachman's feet. It is not known whether she was sent westward to advocate the question of the separation of Maine, or was going to Washington, to catch some of the rats about deserting the ship of state. As no law exists for frank ing live stock, the post-master has detained her, on suspicion of being a spy, till he receives the orders of the department imher base.

that considerable anxiety, not u mised with alarm, had a few months aince been excited amongse, the in habitants of the Tower, by a singufar appearance, which for some nights was nour the north east bastion, assuming a variety of forms of the most terrifick and appalling nature, & in overar two instances had hearly proved fatal, from extreme fright, to the sensing stationed on the spot. The strictest enquiry at the time was justicuted, but nothing could be elicited that would in any degree contribute to the elucidation of this mysterious circumstance, or lead to the detection of the nocturmal disturber. What had disturbed and puzzled the heads of officers, both military and civil, has been discovered by the sentinel on duty on its re-appearance the night above alluded to, to be nothing more than the reflection of a figure from a window of a house adjoining, effected by a magic lantern. Some credit is certainly due to the soldier in question, for his comparative personal courage with that of his predecessors; and, we trust, the repose of the garrison will not be again broken in upon, by an exploit which, however amusing to its thoughtless perpetrator, is pregnant with mischief, might possibly have been productive of the most serious conse quences, and which is at best the height of folly.
