

bed by themselves, that each Haytian, with the Constitutional Charter in his hand, may know what he can do, and what he ought to do. It was necessary to divide the powers upon which the safety of the public liberty depended; to regulate them upon the principles of democracy which govern us; to remove all obstacles interfering with the regular course of government to make the Constitution executable, in order to insure its execution.

I flatter myself, Citizen Senators that this object has been attained, and that we shall concur with the House of Representatives of the people in realising public expectations. Elevated at the first magistracy of the state nothing is more satisfactory to me, citizen president, than the expression of the wishes of the Senate, communicated through you, and to witness the events which have brought us to this grand epoch of our political career accomplished before our eyes.

How gratifying it is to me to be able to express to the nation who have thus promoted me the acknowledgements which I owe them for their incessant proofs of love and devotion. It is with the most ardent disposition to accomplish it—to live and die for the welfare and happiness of my fellow-citizens, that before God, and in your presence, Citizen Senators, I swear to the nation, to faithfully perform the office of the President of Hayti, to maintain the Constitution to the utmost of my power; to respect, and cause to be respected, the rights and independence of the Haytian Nation.

After the ceremony a salute of 17 guns announced to the people that the President had taken the oath. The House then rose and proceeded to the Church.

The order of the procession was as follows:

MILITARY MUSIC.

1. Public Teachers and their Pupils.
2. Haytian and Foreign Merchants.
3. Agricultural officers.
4. Health Officers.
5. Administration Corps.
6. Judiciary Corps.
7. Officers of the Port and Military Marine.
8. Staff Officers of the city and county.
9. Those of the President of Hayti.
10. Foreign Consuls.
11. Master of Finance and Treasurer General.
12. The Generals of the Army followed by the Members of the Senate, the President of Hayti and President of the Senate.

The grenadiers of the President's foot guards formed the line on the right, during the march of the procession, and the chasseurs of the same corps on the left; the grenadiers opened and the horse chasseurs closed the procession. All the streets through which the procession was to pass were crowded with citizens, Men, women, and children, on the joyful occasion, assembled from all parts to see their relatives and friends followed by their virtuous and worthy Chief. When the procession reached the Church, Te Deum was sung. After it was over a thundering discharge of artillery was heard from the terrace, the forts and all the vessels in the Roads. The President of Hayti then returned to the government Palace with the procession.

In the evening an illumination took place throughout the city, and every inhabitant in retiring, carried peace and serenity of mind to their homes.

DUTCH OFFICIAL ACCOUNT OF THE BATTLE AT ALGIERS.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 16.

Stouts Courant Extraordinary—Lieutenant Arrans, of the naval service, this morning arrived from the Bay of Algiers, which he left on the first of September, at the office of the marine department, with despatches from Vice Admiral Capellen, of the following contents:

Hon. Sir—Lord Exmouth, during his short stay at Gibraltar, having increased his force with some gun boats, and made all his arrangements, on the 13th of August the united squadrons put to sea.

On the 10th, off the Cape de Gat, the Promethea joined the fleet. Captain Dashwood reported that he had succeeded in getting the family of the British consul on board by stratagem; but that their flight being soon discovered, the consul together with two boats' crew of the Promethea, had been arrested by the Dey, who, having already received a report of this second expedition, had made all preparations for an obstinate opposition, and summoning the inhabitants of the interior had already assembled more than 60,000 men, both Moors and Arabs, under the walls of Algiers.

In consequence of a calm, and afterwards by strong easterly winds, we were not before the Bay of Algiers until the 27th August, in the morning. Lord Exmouth immediately sent by a flag of truce a written proposal to the Dey, containing in substance, that the late atrocities at Bona having broken all former connexions, he demanded in the name of the Prince Regent:

1. The immediate deliverance up of all Christian slaves without ransom.
2. The restitution of all money which had already been received for the Sardinian and Neapolitan captives.
3. A solemn declaration from the Dey, that he bound himself like those of Tripoli and Tunis, to respect the rights of humanity, and in future wars to treat all prisoners according to the usages of European nations.
4. Peace with his Majesty the King of the Netherlands on the like terms as with the Prince Regent.

On all these articles his Lordship expected an answer, yes or no, or hostilities must immediately commence. His Lordship, on whom I waited in the morning, was afraid that he should that day be obliged to rest satisfied with coming to anchor, and confine himself for the night to an attack by bomb vessels, and rocket boats. Scarcely had I returned on board my vessel when the sea breeze sprung up, and the fleet bore into the bay with press of sail, the four bomb vessels immediately took their station before the town, and every thing was prepared for the attack. Shortly afterwards, his Lordship communicated to me by private signals, "I shall attack immediately, if the wind does not fail." Upon this I immediately made signal to form line of battle in the order agreed upon, in the supposition that all the officers must have been well acquainted with the position of the forts and batteries that fell to our share before the attack was to begin; but as it appears that the signal was not understood, I resolved to change the line, and lead it myself in the Melampus.

At half past one o'clock the whole fleet bore up in succession the Melampus closing in with the foremost ship of the English line; and at 15 minutes past two o'clock, we saw Lord Exmouth, with the Queen Charlotte before the wind, with sails standing, come to anchor with three anchors from the stern, with her broadside in the wished for position within pistol shot of the batteries, just before the opening of the Mole.

This daring and unexpected manœuvre of this vessel (a three decker) appears to have confounded the enemy, that a second ship of the line had already well nigh taken her position before the batteries opened their fire, which, how violent soever, was fully replied to.

Having told captain de Man that I wished, as speedily as possible, with the Melampus and the other frigates in succession, to make our position on the larboard side of Lord Exmouth, and to draw upon our squadron all the fire of the southern batteries, the captain brought his frigate in a masterly manner under the cross fire of more than one hundred guns, the bowsprit quite free of the Glasgow, with an anchor from the head and stern, in the required position so as to open her larboard guns at the same minute. Captain Ziervogel, who was fully acquainted with the above plan, and with the batteries, brought his frigate the Diana, nearly the same moment, within a fathom's length of the place I had wished it for, our directed position. The Dagerra, captain Polders, immediately opened her batteries in the best direction. The captains Van der Straten and Van der Hart, by the thick smoke, and not being so fully acquainted with the localities, were not so fortunate in the first moments; but worked with the greatest coolness, and under the heaviest fire, so as to give our batteries a good direction. The Eendragt, capt. Lieutenant Wardenberg, which I had placed in reserve, in order to be able to bring assistance, remained under the fire of the batteries close by.

Our ships had not fired for more than half an hour, when Lord Exmouth acquainted me that he was very much satisfied with the direction of the fire of our squadron on the southern batteries, because these giving now as little hindrance as possible, he commanded the whole of the Mole, and all the enemy's ships.

His Majesty's squadron, as well as the British force, appeared to be inspired with the devotedness of our magnanimous chief to the cause of all mankind; and the coolness and order with which the terrible fire of the batteries was replied to close under the masonry walls of Algiers, will as little admit of description, as the heroism and self-devotion of each individual generally, and the greatness of Lord Exmouth in particular, in the attack of this memorable day.

The destruction of nearly half Algiers, and, at eight o'clock in the evening, the burning of the whole Algerine navy, have been the result of it. Till nine o'clock, Lord Exmouth remained with the Queen Charlotte in the same position, in the hottest of the fire, thereby encouraging every one not to give up the begun work until the whole was completed, and thus displaying such perseverance that all were animated with the same spirit, and the fire of the ships against that of a brave and desperate enemy appeared to redouble.

Shortly afterwards, the Queen Charlotte, being in the greatest danger, we were, under the heaviest fire, only anxious for the safety of our noble leader, but upon offering him the assistance of all the boats of the squadron, his reply was, "that having calculated every thing it behoved us by no means to be alarmed for his safety, but only to continue our fire with redoubled zeal, for the execution of his orders, and according to his example."

His Lordship at last, about half an hour to ten o'clock, having completed the destruction in the mole, gave orders to retire without the reach of the enemy's fire, which I, as well as all others, scrupled to obey, before the Queen Charlotte was in safety from the burning ships.

In this retreat, which for the want of wind, and the damage suffered in the rigging, was very slow, the ships had still to suffer much from a new opened and redoubled fire from the enemies batteries, at last, the land breeze springing up, which Lord Exmouth had reckoned upon, the fleet at 12 o'clock, came to anchor in the middle of the bay.

The Queen Charlotte, under the fire of the batteries, passing the Melampus under sail, his Lordship wished to be able to see me, in order to completely reward me by shaking my hand in the heartiest manner, and saying, "I have not lost sight of my Dutch friends, they have as well as mine, done their best for the glory of the day."

This circumstance, and the general order of Lord Exmouth to the fleet, of which I have the honour to enclose a copy, must make the squadron hope for His Majesty's satisfaction.

For our loss in killed and wounded I have to refer you to the subjoined list, it is remarkably small for ships exposed to a fire of eight hours duration, in comparison with that of the English ships. In the damage done to our rigging, &c. your Excellency will observe that we have been less fortunate.

The day after the action, Lord Exmouth sent a second summons to the Dey, of which his Lordship sent me a copy, it stated, that by the destruction of half Algiers and of his whole navy, the Dey was now chastised for his faithless conduct at Bona, &c. and that he could only prevent the total destruction of the town by the acceptance of the conditions of the preceding day. The signal of the acceptance of the conditions was the firing of three shots, which, three hours afterwards, we had the satisfaction of hearing. In conference with two persons employed by the Dey, on board Lord Exmouth's ship, together with admiral Milne and captain Brisbane, were present, all the points were regulated. The conclusion of the peace was for England and the Netherlands celebrated by the firing a salute of twice 24 cannon, and I have now the satisfaction of wishing you joy on the successful termination of the efforts of his Majesty in the cause of humanity. [Here follows the praise bestowed by the admiral on the different officers of his squadron.]

In proof of his adherence to the treaty, the Dey must this day, at 12 o'clock, deliver up $300,000 and all the slaves must be ready for embarkation at the wharf. Those of our country are in number 26 or 27 all well, besides many others driven into the interior of the country, and who cannot be here before 2 or 3 days.

I shall have the honour, on a future opportunity to report farther to your Excellency, and am, with the highest respect, &c. &c.

100 Dollars Reward.

Ranaway from the subscriber on the 25th of August last, negro Sam Butler or as he is sometimes called Sam Dagan. He was raised the property of Nicholas Carroll, esq. late of the city of Annapolis, and sold to Mr. Geo. Howard of Baltimore, from whom purchased him. Sam is about 30 years of age, 5 feet, 7 or 8 inches high, slender made, narrow between the shoulders, rather of a yellowish color, and long face. His under jaw rather longer than the upper one, and eyes having considerable white in them. His feet are ill shaped with large lumps at the inside of them, by some called the pudding or gut foot. He makes some pretensions to religion—but being an uncommon liar, may be easily detected on that head. Is a great coward. Is quite likely he has obtained a pass, but without the county seal I should suppose this would have no weight; his clothing was country town linen shirt and trousers, and a long snuff colored cloth coat. It is expected he is lurking about the city of Baltimore, or in the farm of Mr. George Howard, about 13 miles from the city of Baltimore, or at the farm of Nicholas Carroll, esq. called the Caves, or in the neighborhood of the lower ferry, on South River. If said negro is apprehended and brought home to me, the above reward will be given. All persons are strictly forewarned harboring or employing the above negro, at their peril.

N. B. Sam has a free wife, her name is Sarah. She possesses some real property near Annapolis. If he returns home without running me to a further cost, and behaves himself in future, his conduct will be looked over.

He has a 'down' look when spoken to.

The Mines of Peru.
These mines having recently failed to furnish their usual supply of silver, in consequence of the overflowing of the waters of the constant prosecution of their work, the Spanish government has, with the sanction of England, engaged an English engineer to take to South America several steam engines, in order to draw off the superfluous waters.

An arrangement has also been entered into between the two governments, for the silver to be sent over, in order that the same may be converted into dollars, and in this state sent to England direct, agreeably to contract.

Mammoth Cabbages.
A Cabbage of the enormous size of four feet circumference, and weighing 16 pounds, exclusive of the stalk and loose outside leaves, was produced the present season, from the garden of Mr. James Freeman, at Prospect Hill, Blenheim, Dale, New-York.

The Editor of the Lancaster Journal says, that he saw a Cabbage of the same size, that was raised by Mr. Sewell, in Manor township, which weighed 23 pounds and three quarters exclusive of the stalk and outside leaves; and that several larger ones have been raised in that county heretofore.

A Cabbage has been raised (says the Editor of the Torch Light) near Hagers town, which weighed 25 pound and three quarters, exclusive of the stalk and loose outside leaves.

The Jews.

One of the first subjects to be decided by the Diet at Frankfort, relates to the political rights of the Jews—That cruel policy which has been pursued with respect to the Jews, we trust had been on the point of being abandoned for ever. To have been, for 5000 years, without a country or a home;

To find no spot in all the world their own; To be the only people that do not inhabit the birth-place of their ancestors, surely a fate hard, and bitter, and severe enough.

A Paris article of Sept. 24, says—The Memorial Religious, announces, that twenty thousand Jews, of the district of Mantua, have addressed petitions to the Emperor of Austria, in favor of their brethren, who they assert are still persecuted in Piedmont, and in the states of Germany.

The following list of the number of Jews in the towns and countries of Europe, in which they are most numerous, is collected from documents recently published:

in six Districts of Poland,	20,000
in several other districts, say	15,000
in Germany,	200,000
in Konigsburg and Dantzic,
Prussia,	1,500
in Hungary,	75,000
in Galicia,	80,000
in Constantinople,	90,000
in Salonica,	12,000
in Aleppo,	5,000
in Hebron,	8,700
in Jerusalem,	11,000
in Smyrna,	1,200
in Venice, upwards of	4,000
in Ancona,	5,000
at Rome,	9,000
at Leghorn, more than	15,000
in Bohemia,	40,000
in Moravia,	27,000
Total,	619,000

ANOTHER WAR RUMOR
Capt. Gray, of the brig Sterling, arrived at this port yesterday from Tenerife, informs us, that on the 25th ult. in lat. 23° 33' long. 67° 38', he took the brig Remittance, Rogers, 12 days on from New-York for St. Domingo, and was informed by Capt. R. that he had previously taken a Spanish vessel (supposed to be bound to Havana, having dispatches on board. The Captain of the dispatch vessel, informed Capt. Rogers, that the Spanish Government had DECLARED WAR AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.

The National Intelligencer speaks that of the reported misunderstanding with Russia: "We speak on this subject from common report only. If a serious rupture with Russia is at hand, the approaching session of Congress will enable the executive to place its character and progress officially before the people; who will find, we are persuaded, that the administration has, on this occasion, compromised neither the peace nor the dignity of the nation; but has, as its wisest policy, endeavored to preserve both inviolate."
