time in the course of the present session John Paulding of N. Y. state, one of the three captors of the unfortunate Maj. Andre, whose history and fate are sufficiently known, petitioned congress for an increase of the pension settled upon him for three years for that service .- The committee of pensions and revolutionary claims to whom this petition was referred, smade, a report upon it, rejecting the application. Yesterday Mr. Chappell the chairman of that committee, brought up thate report, when Mr. Wright made a his uttering a falsehood. motion to reverse the decision. On this a conversation arose, in the course of which colonel Talmadge said he felt it to be his duty to lay some facts before the house in relation to that affair. Every one knows how favourably to the captors that incident is mentioned in history, & has hitherto been received by this nation, and indeed by the world at large. Col. Talmadge however, felt. himself constrained by his duty to state some circumstances that cast upon it a rather different complexion. He informed the house that at the time of the capture of Major Andre, he was an officer on the lines. and was with a detachment of our troops in advance of the army. Gen. Washington was going into Ni England to meet Count Rochambeau, and wrote to Mr. Talmadge desiring him, if there was any communications from the enemies lines to send hem to gen. Arnold who commanded at West Point. About that time Mr. Talmadge received a letter from Arnold informing him, that a Naw-York merchant of the name of John Anderson was expected by loveliest incidents in our revolutionhim with intelligence of importance, ary story: he therefore wished the and desiring Mr. T. to give him a report to lie on the table in order to safe escort. The petitioner and the two other captors who were at work (I think Mr. T. said stubbing) between the American and British lines, brought up to Mr. Talmadge's regiment the said John Anderson. Circumstances arose which induced a suspicion that this man was not what he pretended to be-papers which were found upon him were sent to Gen. Washington, and the prisoner who became impatient and abhorrent of remaining in his as. sumed character, soon confessed himself to be Major John Andre, Adjt. Gen, of the British army; on which he was removed by order of Gen. Washington to West Point, and thence to the head quarters of the army. Mr. T. continued to state, that during the whole time from the day of Andre's being brought in a prisoner, up to the day of his execution he was never out of his (Talmadge's) sight, and during that time he spoke freely and without disguise of the manner of his being taken, and of the conduct of the captors to him, fully disclosed the offers he had made them, and the reasons why they rejected them. Major Andre related to him that those who took him into the bushes, and with a view of pillaging him drew off his boots, but in which they found the papers: that he of fered them his watch, with the small sum of money he had about him, & promised them on his word of hohour a larger sum if they would let him escape—but the impossibility of his securing them the payment and they had no notion of trusting to his honor :- that with the offer of his watch; and the two or the

The whole country not knowing any thing of this, regarded the transaction as an extraordinary act of patriotism, and lavished applauses upon it, while it certainly was good policy in Congress to reward and hold it up as an example. , Mr. Talmadge said he did not wish to detract from the merit of the act and the value of the service rendered; designated port on the Tombiguee but he considered those men as do-ing no more than it was the duty of an excellent keel that navigation to every citizen in the United States are falls of the Blakt Wartier. From Col, Talmadge's account too it would appear that they were not, as was the received opinion, soldiers utthe army, but were of a class of persons who lived in a kind of dubious state between the two? armies-a kind of scouts-a class that as well as I could hear Mr. T. was called by the American army, cow boys. At the same time Mr. Talmadge bore honorable testimony to the purity of Major Andre's character which forbid all suspicion of

This account produced strong emotions in several members. Gen. Smith declared it was novel to him; but he tod bore still stronger testimony to the character of Major Andre, with whom he was long personally intimate both in England & America; and he declared that he would rely on his word as firmly as on that of any man that ever lived. He therefore regarded it as Major Andre's opinion only. Mr. Pickering said the information was perfectly new to him, but he perfectly believed it. Mr. Forsyth said he did not wish to call in question the word of Mr. Talmadge; and the character of Andre, except in the transaction which led to his fate, was honourable. The honourable, gentleman from Connecticut had spoken from his personal knowledge and yet the account was so very different from that in history, that he heard it with distrust and regret, and wished for an examination. The fact of those soldiers refusing out of mere patriotism, a magnificent bribe, was, he remarked, one of the have an enquiry into the affair. Mr. Robertson declared that he would not believe one word of the statement. After much conversation, however, the report of the committee was agreed to and the demand of the petitioner was conclusively rejected.

We take great pleasure in laying the following communication before the public; it is on the subject of the greatest importance to the com-munity. The produce of all the upper and middle country, instead of passing along the meandering channels of the Tennessee and Ohio rivers into the Mississippi, will hereafter be transported to the nearest navigable waters of the Tombigbee and Alabama rivers, & thence to the Mobile. If from Huntsville to the falls of the Black Warrior be only 120 miles over a winding road, and can be travelled by loaded waggons in eight days, and if from the Mobile' a cargo can be brought to the falls in 20 days, while the country is yet unimproved and scarcely settled, how much shorter will the distance, and how much sooner will the trip be performed when the roads will be straightened and improved, and the navigation of these rivers opened and the obstructions. removed.

The merchant, instead of shipping his goods from New York and Ehiladelphia to Charleston and Savannah, and from thence transporting them by land to Ross's on the Ten-nessee river a route experimentally known to be fraught with delay, hazard and loss; will hereafter ship , directly to the Mobile, or to some designated port on the Tombigbee
