A NEGRO LAD NAMED CHARLES,

about 17 years old—This servant was purchased by me from Mr. Henry Warring, of Prince-George's county, who still owns his mother. Charles, is no doubt, lurking about in that neighbourhood. When owned by Mr. Warring, his name was NACE or NACEY. I have ascertained that on Thursday last, he crossed South river upper ferry. The story he told there was, that he had been only hired to me, and his time being out, Mr. Warring had sent for him to come home. His cloaths were a fur hat, tolerably good, a blue cloth round jacket, corduroy pantaloons, shoes &c. He is about 5 feet 3 or 4 inches high, stoops in walking, and swings his arms; his face is thin and of a dark olive complexion, his hair short and woolly, the whites of his eyes always red and clouded, one of his ears looks as if its edge had been trimmed or pared with a knife; on the inside (or nearly on it) of his lower lip, towards the corner of his mouth, he has a wart. Whoever secures this slave and lodges him in any goal so that I get him again, shall receive the above reward, and all proper expenses paid if brought home.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

House of Lords. Tuesday, June 28, 1817.

This being the day appointed by the Prince Regent for the meeting of both Houses of Parliament, the Royal Highness came down in state, and entered the House of Peers at two o'clock. His Royal Highness was attended by all the great Officers of State; the Earl of Liverpool carried the Sword of State on his Royal Highness's right hand, & the Marquis of Winchester carried the Crown on a cushion on his left.

In a few minutes after the Regent had taken his seat on the throne, the Commons having been summoned by the Usher of the Black Rod, appeared at the Bar of the House of Peers, with their Speaker at their head, when his Royal Highness delivered to both Houses of Parliament the following speech:—

My Lords and Gentlemen, It is with deep regret that I am again obliged to announce to you, that no alteration has occurred in the state of his Majesty's lamentable indisposition.

I continue to receive from foreign powers the strongest assurance of their friendly disposition towards this country; and of their earnest desire to maintain the general tranquillity.

The hostilities to which I was compelled to resort, in vindication of the honour of the country against the Government of Algiers, have been attended with the most complete success.

The splendid achievement of his Majesty's fleet, in conjunction with a squadron of the King of the Netherlands, under the gallant and able conduct of Admiral Viscount Exmouth, led to the immediate and unconditional liberation of all Christian captives then within the territory of Algiers, and to the renunciation by its Government of the practice of Christian slavery.

I am persuaded that you will be duly sensible of the importance of an arrangement so interesting to humanity, and reflecting from the manner in which it has been accomplished, such signal honour on the British nation.

In India, the refusal of the Government of Nepal to ratify a treaty of peace which had been signed by its plenipotentiaries, occasioned a renewal of military operations.

The judicious arrangements of the governor-general, seconded by the bravery and perseverance of his Majesty's forces, and of those of the East India Company, brought the campaign to a speedy and successful issue; and peace has been finally established upon the just and honourable terms of the original treaty.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons, I have directed the estimates for the current year to be laid before you.

They have been formed upon a full consideration of all the present circumstances of the country, with an anxious desire to make every reduction in our establishments which the safety of the empire and sound policy allow.

I recommend the state of the Public Income and Expenditure to your early and serious attention.

I regret to be under the necessity of informing you that there has been a deficiency in the produce of the revenue of the last year; but I trust that it is to be ascribed to temporary causes; and I have the consolation to believe that you will find it practicable to provide for the public service of the year, without making any addition to the burthens of the people, and without adopting any measures injurious to that system by which the Public Credit of the country has been hitherto sustained.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I have the satisfaction to inform you that the arrangements which were made in the last Session of Parliament, with a view to a New Silver Coinage, have been completed with unprecedented expedition.

I have given directions for the immediate issue of the new coin; & I trust that this measure will be productive of considerable advantages to the trade and internal transactions of the country.

The Distresses consequent upon the termination of a war of such unusual extent and duration have been felt, with greater or less severity, throughout all the Nations of
