From the Kederal Republican. D ECMMUNICATEDA MATTHEW CAREFURVEILED.

We request the particular attention of your readers to the subjoined correspondence between the honorable Robert H. Goldsborough, of the United States' senate and Matthew Carey, author of the Olive Branch. It appears that Mr. Carey was in search of additional matter, comprising documentary evi-dence, for an eighth edition of his catch-penny mischievous book. In order to keep up the deception so far practiced successfully of great fairness, impartially and candour, Carey addressed a circular letter to many distinguished gentlemen of the federal party, professing to de-sire a correction of any errors or deficiencies that might have occurred to them. He calculated that this circular would be treated with silent contempt, or disposed of as the hundreds of similar communications are by members of congress, and that he might refer to this circular and this silence as evidence of a total absence of all "crrors and defici encies" in his book, or as an implied admission of the accuracy and truth of his statements. Unfortunately for poor Matthew, in addressing one of his artful circulars to senator Goldsborough, according to the vulgar adage " he caught the wrong low by the ear" and received the full length of her tusk, which from is dreadful groans & terrible contortions of body must have 'unseamed him from the nave to the chops.'-He that plays at bowls, must not grumble if he gets rubbers.

The proper light however. in which this affair is to be viewed, is this. Carey wishing to compass a little more cash by another edition of his poisonous pamphlet, addressed a circular to distinguished individuals of both political parties with a fraudulent intent. From his friends he expected to derive the aid indicated in his letter, and from his adversaries he was quite certain of receiving no notice, which would en-able him to say, that he appealed to all parties, and was at liherty to presume from their silence an acquiesence in his statements and the deduction drawn from them. It was every body's business and therefore no hody's, to expose the designs of the man, and to disappoint him in his fraudulent purposes. His book for a long time, had been gradually corrupting the minds of the people. It may be denominated modern political philosophy, teaching error under the guise of unprejudiced philanthrophy, inculcating truth. In other words, hypocrisy. clandestinely spreading infidelity, dressed in the pure raiment, and assuming the form of true evangelical religion "whispering peace." It had become the duty of every body to check the progress of such monstrous imposition by means commensurate with those relied on by the impostor to accomplish his work of delusion. The stream had been suffered to flow and to overflow, and to ramify into countless directions, until it became the common fountain of politics from which our children and the whole body of the people were likely to slake their thirst, and to imbibe the deadly poison.-Carey's answer to Mr. Goldsborough's letter has exhibited him with. out his mask, and in all his native deformity. His style of vitupera-ory recrimination and billingsgate abuse, betrays the true disposition and character of the man. In the place of the meek, gentle, impar-tial, unprejudiced enquirer after truth, he exhibits himself the furious, vindictive, implacable, persecuting partizan, as far removed from his pretensions to a zealous devotion to the public good and a perfect party neutrality and indifference which he arrogates, as the pale moon is from the glorious orb of day.

It would seem; under this canviction of the disposition, character and object of the man, and an actual knowledge of the pernicious effect wrought by his book, Mr. Goldsborough gave a conscientious, and certainly a most correct opinion of his book. It no doubt required all that firmness, for which Mr. G. is remarkable, to overcome the repugnance he must have felt in writing the reply sailed for by Carey's letfavor of the work, and so far to lanch character, theve lend his countresance to the fraudulent scheme. Unless he could consent to become accessory to Carey's views he could not avoid man king some kind of a reply. Forced to speak, what could be say To approve would have been wicked and false; to pass it over lightly, hypocritical and mean; and in disapproving we do not see how Mr. Goldsborough could well express himself otherwise than he did. Mr. Carey compelled him to speak and he ought to have borne the answer, He asked him for his opinion, " to point out errors and deficiencies unreservedly"; he asked him for his aid-Mr. Goldsborough had nothing to contribute, and-having formed an opinion of the book, he took the anthor at his word, and gave it to him unreservedly. In return for the trouble of reading the book and the circular, and gratifying Mr. Garey's request to express his free opinion of it, scavinger like, the fellow has run to the mud pile he appears to have scraped together, and beapattered Mr. Goldsborough with the filthiest contents of the gutter .-We are gratified, for the mask is now torn from Carey's face, and his character is exhibited in high relief. Let the fruit be henceforth judged by the tree. Let the Olive Branch be read as the production of the man who wrote, the abusive letter to Mr. Goldsborough, and henceforth the antidote will accompany the poison. If Mr. Carey will only publish the correspondence in his eighth edition we will promise him all our aid in circulating the work. We close the article by thanking the friend who was instrumental in obtaining a copy of the correspondence.

Philadelphia, Dec. 20th, 1816.

The encouragement with which the proposals for the eighth edition of the Olive Branch have been honored, is sufficient to warrant the publication. I therefore intend to put it to press on or about the 1st February next, and to publish it . early in April.

I am sincerely desirous of correcting whatever errors may be in it, and rendering it as unexceptionably as my means of information and leisure will allow. I therefore request you will, if perfectly convenient, unreservedly point out any of its errors or deficiencies that have occurred to you. To any such suggestions, due attentions shall be paid. I sincerely seek truth. And if I do not attain my object, it shall not be for want of suitable endeavors.

I have in all former editions, notwithstanding my utmost exertions, laboured under a very great defici-ency of documents. I most respectfully and earnestly solicit your aid, and shall receive with thankfulness any documents you may think proper to communicate. Such of them as you direct, shall be safely returned, by January 6, 1817.

I have just received a letter from you, in which you are pleased to a announce to me the contemplated publication of the eighth edition of the Olive Branch, and request me unreservedly" to point out its errors and deficiencies profess-ing yourself desirous to correct them, and earnestly solicit my aid in communicating any documents for that purpose.

Allured, like many others, by the title of this book, I read it a year or two ago, and I was much surprised to find it a virulent party work, as to see a result so diametrically op-posite to an avowed intention. If a zealous and artful partigan had employed his time in culling out incidents and fragments and in colour-ing them to his own taste, with a view of degrading one of the great political parties in this country and of elevating the other, he could scarcely have been more successful in his artifice and false in his glosses, than the impartial author of the the Olive Branch has been

I should not have been disappointed, if the work had not been strictly impartial, for I did not anticis pate it ; but my astonishment was ter. To have been silent would be great indeed to find, that is was to afford more negative evidence in wholy destitute of every claim to
