From the Boston Centinel.

Humanity honoured and rewarded. The following are communicated as among the facts substantiated before the Trustees of the Humane Society, at their last meeting, of the atrepid exertions of Mr. Tewksbuv, and his son, in saving the lives several of our fellow citizens, mentioned in a late Centinel. Few, if any instances, will be recollected, in which more skill and igment have been evinced, or aere a more del berate and magnanimous exposure of life to jeo pardy, in saving the lives of others s been exhibited.

On the 26th of May last, Mr. William Tewksbury, of Deer Island, and his son, Abijah R. Tewksbury, ala: 17 years old, were at work on the eastern part of Point Shirley, near Winthrop's Head. About 4 P. M. a boy came running from the Point, and informed him that a pleasure-post had upset, in a direction between Deer Island and Long Island. Without waiting for further information, he immediately took his son into his canoe, set a small foresail, and run through Pulling's oint-gut, towards Broad Sound. The wind was so nigh, that with the smallest sail the canoe nearly uried herself under water. Havng relieved her, he stood in a diection for Long Is and nearly haif mile, without discovering any indication of the object of his search. He then discovered his wife thildren on the beach of Dec and, runn ng toward Sound Poist. This induced him to keep on th ame course, and in a short time iscovered the heads of several n n the water, and as they rose and ell on the sea he was impressed with he belief there were more than wenty buffeting the waves, & conending against death. Being per-ectly aware of the little burthen this son's and his own safetyad almost cadsed him to desist from he extreme, peril of exposing his fail barque to be seized on by men gonized by despair, in the last ruggles for life. He however preared for the event, took in hissail, owed among the drowning men ith fixed determination to save execution of skills to be equalled aly by an abort the chief, in the anagement of a cook he succeedin getting seven persons on board, was attempting to save the eighth, hen his son exclaimed " Father. t canoe is sinking, we shall all pesh." This exclamation calling his ind from the purpose on which it as bent, exposed to him his most rilons situation. Six inches of ater in his canoe—nine in number board-the upper part of her gunale but three inches above water the wind high-a heavy sea runng, and constantly washing on ard, and nearly a mile from the arest land.

That nine might even have a ance of being saved; he was onig-to leave one unfortunate man nging on the stern of the jolly Benging to the pleasure boas. O e men saved, one was so little exusted, that he could assist in bail-B-and the others lay motionless, d apparently lifeless, on the bor-m of the cause. There not begroom to row, Mr. T. had no almative but to paudle his boat be-reach the extremity of Sound Point The instancishe strock; she was fit led with water from the violence of the sear Exertions were still necessary to save the five helpless men in the bottom of the canoe. In giving her assistance at this time, Mrs. Tewksbury was much injured by the convulsive grasp of one of the men, apparently in the agonies of death. They were all conveyed to Mr. T's nouse, where by the application of hot blankets, tea and medicine, they were recovered. Four did not recover so as to be able to speak for more than three hours. Eleven persons were in the pleasure-boat when she overset;-two of whom attempted to swim to the shore, & were seen by the survivors to perish within 30 or 40 rods from the boat. One was drowned in the cabin. After landing those saved, Mr. T. re turned with all possible expedition to the relief of the man left on the jolly. He was gone! The distance from the place where Mr. Tewks bury and his son were at work to the place of the accident was one mile and an half. The above facts being made known to the Trustees of the Humane Society, they voted, That seventy dollars in money, and a Silver Medal of the value of ten dollars, with suitable inscriptions, he presented Mr. T. Thirty-five dollars to his son; twenty dollars to Mrs. Tewksbury; and five dollars to the boy who ran with the information of the boat having upset.

Names of the persons saved.
Messrs. Thomas Currier, William Currier, John Humphrey, Steven Jackman, William Brewer, (a lad 16 years of age) Charles Field, and Rolla, a Lascar lad.

Names of those lost. Messrs. Benjamin Thayer, Elisha Tobey, William Frost, and Michael Whittemore.

From the National Standard. PARTY SPIRIT.

For more than twenty years our country has been doomed to struggle among the agitations of factious violence. Party collisions have cast a shade over our national character, wasted our strength, endangered our union, assau ted the basis of our constitution, and placed in jeopardy our very existence as a nation. We are happy in observing a more auspicious spoch drawing upon us .-Political parties are forgetting their animosities, and extinguishing those fierce contentions that have so long triumphed over patriotism and reason. We half the period of their decline as the harbinger of happier days; as the presage of an era that shal be filled with every thing great and illustrious in the history of empires. It is time the American republic should present a new spectacle to manki d. She has drawn the sword, and gloriously vindica nd slight construction of his canoe, the being of the smallest class of lapstreaks,"*)—the wind blowing violent gale—this apprehensions encircle her name with a renown that shall gather splendor from the lapse of time, and bind her escutcheon with wreaths of immorality. Let it now be her aim and her pride to show a nation of freemen, bending their united exertions to extend the blessings of peace, and ensure the happiness of their common country.

It the records of ages be not the dreams of fancy, and the invention of impositions; if man, in these modern days, be not divested of the dignity stampt upon him by God and by nature; there is such a principle in the human soul as love of country; an elevated national feeling that soars above the narrow interests, the degrading, and contemptible prejudices that chain down man to the dregs of the earth, and extinguishes in his breast the last gerin of public spirit. If, indeed, it unfortunately has alone existed in the theory, let ours be the distinguished honour of displaying it in practice. Our prospects to the last degree are animated and unclouded-but our sentiments must be more national, and our views more enlarged before our country can attain her just rank in the scale of national consideration. When we shall cease to be a divided people, and the victim of our own folly, when the salfish and local pleasures that now bend us to our best interests, shall be lost in the prosperity and glory of the republic, then will she unfold and hold sinniform and livesistable march to the grand and elevated fortunes which await her

One great cause of a violent d versity of opmion in this country has passed away; we mean the difference of opinion which existed in relation to the friendship and enmity of foreign nations. Napoleon no longer moves and agitates the political world. Prance is a poor, wretched and degraded nation. If she ever had influence in foreign courts, she has none now. And as it regards England, the late war has at least taught us to expect nothing from her forbearance. Let us treat her with justice and magnanimity-but who is so wild and bigotted as not to view her as a haughty and overbearing commercial rival? - We believe that the American people are rapidly approximating to one opinion and one sentiment concerning all foreign nations: We shall settle down under the rational conviction that their friendship is no broader than their interest.

Our duties are plain and simple. It needs no Egyptian priests, no Persian magic, to interpret them. It becomes us to mingle together as one great political family-to strengthen our union-to guard our constitution as we guard the seal of life; to prosecute every internal improvement, which will contribute to the happiness, the strength and grandeur of the nation; and above all to disseminate the blessings of education with an ardour commensurate with their importance, in a ree government.

But in our endeavours to reconcile our dissentions, let no seductive charm that names and titles may wear; let no alluring professions tempt us from a rigid attachment to first principles; to the genuine republican principles, nobly maintained by our fathers. The pomp and pageantry of power may vanish, as the dreams of other years; thrones may crumble, and kingdoms be no more; men may change and the hery zealot wear the ignominous stamp of apostacy; but the principles of civil religious liberty are eter-

Education.

Saint John's College in the city of Annapolis, is now open for the reception of students, who can be accoming dated with board and tuition for the moderate sum of two hundred dollars per annum.

The classicks are taught conjointly by Mr. Hugh Maguire, late of Balti more, and Thomas H. Hanson Esquite; and the students will be instructed by the latter gentleman in Natural and Moral Philosophy, Geography, and the various branches of Mathematics. The Trustees are resolved that no exertion shall be wanting to revive this ancient and highly respectable institution; and although there is nothing of sandeur in its present condition, they feel no hesitation in saying, that the teachers who have been employed are fully competent to the faithful and abie discharge of the duties which they have undertaken.
