THE YEARS TO COME.

My transient hours, my little day, Is speeding fast, how tast! away; Already hath my summer sun Half its race of brightness run. Ah me I hear the wintry blast, My 'Life of Life' will soon be past; The flush of youth will all be o'er, The throb of joy will throb no more. And fancy, mistress of my lyre, Will cease to lend her sacred fire. My trembling heart-prepare, prepar For skies of gloom, and thoughts of Sorrows and wants will make thee

Meep, And feare ut age will o'er thee creep. Health that smiled in blooming pride Will cease to warm thy sluggish tide. The shaft of pain, the point of woe, Will bid the current cease to flow. And who, alas! shall then be nigh. To soothe me with affection's sigh? To press my feeble hand in theirs To plead for me in silent prayers, And uneer me with those hopes tha shed : Rapture o'er a dying bed. Days of the future crase to roll: Upon my wild arbighted soul; Mysterious fate. I will not look Within thy dark eventful book, Enough for me to feel and know, That love and hope must shortly go; That joy will vanish, fancy fly, And death dissolve the closest tie. E'en now, while moans my pensive

I list the warning voice of time; And oh! this sigh, this start of fear! Tells me the night will soon be here.

DISTRIBUTION OF TRACTS Extracts from the Appendix of a late report of the London Tract So-

From the Rev. John Patterson. Tornea, Feb. 5, 1817. In Kuopio we met some good people, particularly a Peasant of whom I had formerly heard much. He is an active promoter of the cause of Godein Finland .- After he was bro't to the knowledge of the truth, he formed the resolution of devoting himself wholly to the cause of God among his countrymen. He sold his farm to his brother, for a reasonable price, on condition that he would furnish him with clother and board, provide a warm room for him, and feed his horse. His morey lies at interest in his prother's hand, & he devotes the annual income to the cause of religion. His chief object is the circulation of Tracts. He has had nine or ten of our best Tracts translated into Finnish and printed at his own expense, among which is the Dairyman's Daughter. Assoon as he gets a quantity of Tracts rea-dy, he purs his horse to his cart, and sets off, selling them, and giving them away all over the country. He also exhorts the people to flee from the wrath to come, and has been useful in the conversion of some. He is connected with all the good people within his circle, visits them, and encourages them to persevere in the ways of the Lord. In short, he is almost an Apostle. He has also borne the expense of a young man's education at Abo, who promises to be a most useful preacher of the Gospell, and who at present assists in translating his Tracts and getting them painted.

From the Committee of the Evan-geteal Society, at Stockholm, Feb. 7, 1817.

A more general interest in the So. ciety's object has been recently excited throughout the klingdom. We have, in almoswevery town, active correspondents, who distribute the Tracts most extensively. Our tracts are now sent to the most remote corners of the kingdom, where they sors and others, have shewn them; selves zealous in this good cause; Some of our Bishops are decidedly favourable, and almost all of them have taken part in the work, and have especially promoted the circulation of our tracts among the youth attending the places of learning in their respective dioceses. In Findland our friends also continue ac-

That the reading of these Tracts has been attended with a blessing is not a mere probability; for, besides general assurances to this effect in letters, we have positive information, that several persons have been brought to the knowledge of the truth by them, who will, through eternity, exalt and praise the name of the Lord. The reading of that excellent Tract, Poor Joseph, has been the means of enlightening the mind of one of our most learned men, at the head of one of our places of education, who now is most active in every good work. Thus we see that the grain of mustard seed, sown in 1893, has become a great tree, which spreads its boughs over the whole country, and bears fruit for time and eternity.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas it appears by the deposition of Joseph Stewart, Reger Woolford, James Marshall, & Wm. Jones, of Porchester county, that about two o'clock on Friday the twenty seven h of November last, a five broke out in the store house of the said Steuart, which entirely consumed it, and that they have strong reason to believe it had been set on fire by some evil disposed person or persons. And whereas it is of the greatest importance to society, that the perpetrator or perpetrators of such a crimo should be brought to condign punish ment. I have therefore thought proper to issue this my Proclamation, and do by and with the advice and consent of the Council, offer a reward of true Hundred Dollars, to any person who shall discover and make known the author or perpetrators of the said offence. provided he, she or they, or any of them, be brought to justice. Given under my hand, and the seal
