

The loss of property is probably about thirty thousand. This is my own estimate. Knowledge of the build-up information of the quantity of property is not proved. — E. I. Dupont's fall safe, at least with very injury. His brother-in-law, who was supposed to have been, is likely to do well; his father is in two places, and is derelict. The town was violently shaken, and the air—and thrown into much alarm by the person coming into it, and down the streets, crying, your windows and come out houses—the magazine is d to explode every moment. It has sixty thousand wt. of it. We concluded, very probably, that if the explosion of powder had caused such violent as we felt, the firing of the powder would shake and ruin of our houses. The people had an hour in the streets before the error was corrected—it is a magazine which shook us. In haste, &c.

Charleston, March 11. FROM ENGLAND. A regular trading ship Sally Watson, arrived at this port today, in 33 days from Liverpool. By her we have received a number of papers to the 29th January, nearly a month later than the copies hitherto come to hand. Their contents, notwithstanding their uninteresting, as to political intelligence. The Regent's speech to Parliament, on the 27th, and some few other particulars, are all we find worth copying.

SPEECH OF THE LORDS OF PARLIAMENT TO THE HOUSES OF COMMONS, on January 27, 1818.

The Lords and Gentlemen, are commanded by his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, to inform you that it is with great concern that he is obliged to announce to you the continuance of his Majesty's lamented indisposition.

The Prince Regent is persuaded you will deeply participate in the affliction with which his Royal Highness has been visited, by the anxious and untimely death of his beloved and only child the Princess Charlotte. Under this awful dispensation of Providence, it has a soothing consolation to the Regent's heart, to receive all descriptions of his Majesty's subjects, the most cordial assurances both of their just sense of loss which they have sustained, & their sympathy with his parental sorrow; & amidst his own sufferings, his Royal Highness has not been ungrateful of the effect which the sad tidings must have on the interests and future prospects of the Kingdom.

We are commanded to acquaint you that the Prince continues to derive from foreign powers, the most anxious assurance of their friendly disposition towards this country, and of their desire to maintain the general tranquillity.

His Royal Highness has the satisfaction of being able to assure you that the confidence which he invariably felt in the stability of great sources of our national prosperity, has not been disappointed.

The improvement which has taken place in the course of the last year, in almost every branch of our domestic industry, and the present state of public credit, affording a candid proof that the difficulties which the country was laboring under were chiefly to be ascribed to temporary causes.

It is important a change could not be withdrawn from the disaffected principal means of which they had availed themselves for the purpose of fomenting a spirit of discontent, which unhappily led to acts of insurrection and treason; and his Royal Highness entertains the most confident expectation, that the state of peace and tranquillity to which the country is now restored, will be maintained against all attempts to disturb it, by the persevering vigilance of the magistracy, and by the loyalty and good sense of the people.

LONDON GAZETTE. Downing-street, Jan. 2. His Royal Highness the Prince Regent has been pleased, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, to appoint Major General Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. being able to ascertain you, that since you were last assembled in Parliament, the revenue has been in a state of progressive improvement in its most important branches. My Lords and Gentlemen, We are commanded by the Prince Regent to inform you that he has concluded Treaties with the courts of Spain and Portugal; on the important subject of the abolition of the slave trade.

His Royal Highness has directed that a copy of the former Treaty should be immediately laid before you; and he will order a similar communication to be made of the latter Treaty, as soon as the ratification of it shall have been exchanged.

In these negotiations, it has been His Royal Highness's extraordinary, as far as circumstances would permit, to give effect to the recommendations contained in the joint addresses of the two Houses of Parliament; and his Royal Highness has a full reliance on your readiness to adopt such measures as may be necessary for fulfilling the engagement into which he has entered for that purpose.

The Prince Regent has commanded us to direct your particular attention to the deficiency which has so long existed in the number of places of public worship belonging to the established church, when compared to the increased and increasing population of the country.

His Royal Highness most earnestly recommends this important subject to your early consideration, deeply impressed as he has no doubt you are, with a just sense of the many blessings which the country, by the favor of Divine Providence, has enjoyed; and with the conviction, that the religious and moral habits of the people are the most sure and firm foundation of national prosperity.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 24.—The French Journals received during the present week are chiefly filled with the debate of the Lower House on the proposed law for securing the French armies. It is not at all surprising that the discussions on this subject have been more than usually animated and interesting. To a military nation, such as France has recently been, every question which respects the army, touches at the springs of a Frenchman's most powerful emotions. The dreams of realities of conquest and glory, as well as of defeat and subjugation, are revived by these debates, and the national vivacity which seemed to have slept during the former part of the Sessions, appears in all its accustomed vigor.

LIVERPOOL COMMERCE. In our last week's publication we exhibited a proof of the prodigious increase of the export trade of this port, in the instances of the articles of cotton stuffs and stockings. From the following statement it will appear that the increase in the import trade is not less extraordinary. The leading article of British exports at this period is cotton wool, which has risen to a height that years ago would have deemed incredible.

The whole import of Cotton into Great Britain in 1817, is estimated at 479,291 packages of various sizes, weighing by computation 131,981,200 lbs. which at an average of 6d. per lb. would amount to nearly 10 millions sterling; a most astonishing sum for the raw material of a single manufacture! The greater part of this immense importation has been brought into this port.

This quantity exceeds the importation of 1815 and 1816, severally, by about 110,000 bags, weighing 41,000,000 lb. or upwards of 10 millions sterling. The greater part of this increase has arisen from the opening of the East India Company's trade in the East Indies, which in extent and importance is thought, will soon rival the trade to the West Indies, as far as respects Liverpool.

The tempestuous weather which we lately experienced on our coasts, has been felt in Holland, the Hague, on the 15th march, the Hague was sustained. Large numbers were torn up by the roots, and the Capt. of a vessel which sailed on the course of the night was overboard.

Williams and Mary College, Virginia. We adverted lately to a little rebellion which has taken place in this institution, and has terminated in the suspension of 28 of the students who persevered, after admonition, in their refractory and disrespectful conduct towards the faculty. A placard has been published, signed by "A suspended Student," in which he endeavours to justify the behaviour of himself and his comrades, by abusing and criminating the Professors, all of whom seem to have incurred the sore displeasure of the 28 tyros. The grievance suggested, but not very distinctly, is the immediate cause of dissatisfaction; that the Professor of Chemistry and Natural Philosophy, Dr. Hare, charges a full fee, or nearly so, for attending the classes; whereas his lectures commenced later than usual, and are not to have the accustomed duration. A representation and remonstrance are stated to have been made on this subject, but couched in language which, according to the "suspended student's" own showing, were extremely insulting and derogatory. The consequence was, that the remonstrants were called before the faculty, and required to retract the offensive expressions; and 28 refusing to do so, have been suspended.

It would appear from this placard, that the charge of the fee in question, has been made a pretence for this outrage upon decorum and propriety, but that in truth it has only given occasion to venting a spirit of resentment and insubordination, which must have been entertained long before the demand of the fee, or even an acquaintance with the Professor of Chemistry. The characters and conduct of the rest of the faculty are grossly assailed, and in a manner which shows long smothered hostility. Dr. Smith, the Principal of the College, is particularly vilified, and on grounds totally unconnected with the affair of the fee—and so also with respect to the other Professors.

Upon the whole, in this performance of the suspended students, we are sorry to say, we discover that self same spirit of turbulence and restlessness which has manifested itself in several of our other seminaries of learning, and which, unless it be put down by parental authority and public opinion, will destroy the usefulness of all of them.

It is worthy of remark that the complaint as to a fee is put upon the non-continuance of the lectures during the accustomed time. There is no dissatisfaction pretended in relation to the ability or industry of the Professor, and for aught that appears, he may have given in his course the same instruction which consumes the usual session of the classes.
