From the Albany Daily Adv. of Thursday.

It would ill accord with the general tone of grief, so deeply pressed in this city, to permit a merriment of Major Birdsall to pass away without some reflection on his character and his untimely fate.

Major Birdsall was born in Dutchess county in this state. His grandfather was an officer in the revolutionary army, and together with his father, is now a resident of the town of Greene, in Chenango county.

Such is briefly the short history of the life of Major Birdsall—whatever incidents occur to diversify it, are alike honourable to his character and his memory.

The brig Mary, Capt. Howland, of New-Bedford, was cast away on Cape Blanco in Africa, on her passage from New Bedford to Patagonia, on the 28th of May last.

From the New-Bedford Gazette. MELANCHOLY SHIPWRECK. The Brig Mary, Capt. P. ...

In the morning, Capt. Howland, and his crew succeeded in getting on shore, with a quantity of provisions and other necessaries, but were soon discovered by the Arabs those occasional absences which duty required. The sympathy of his acquaintances, and even of strangers, could not fail to be excited at his melancholy appearance.

On Monday evening, at 6 o'clock, the funeral ceremonies took place. The military, consisting of the artillery, infantry, and rifle companies of this city, Maj. Worth's company of U. S. infantry, the military association and officers late of the U. S. army, together with the several masonic lodges, preceded the corpse, which was flanked by the company lately commanded by Major Birdsall.

Major BENJAMIN BIRDSALL, U. S. Rifle Rgt. A brave soldier, whom the army loved, and the enemy respected, was basely assassinated on the 12th of July, 1818, in the 32d year of his age.

As intimated in the letter, he was in numerous engagements; and I have listened for hours with undiminished pleasure to hear him recite the incidents of the war. On his own services he always spoke with modesty; but there were few soldiers who saw more active service, or were more exposed.

Boston, July 17.

Gentlemen, The brig Mary, Capt. Howland, of New-Bedford, was cast away on Cape Blanco in Africa, on her passage from New Bedford to Patagonia, on the 28th of May last.

who came and loaded their camels with the articles which had been saved, while at the same time the women divested Capt. Howland's men of almost every article of clothing they had on, and attempted to rob him also, but he resisted and escaped from them.

As soon as they arrived on the beach they discovered themselves, and attempted to take Captain Howland and his men prisoners, who immediately ran to their boats and pushed off, when the Arabs fired and wounded James Edwards, of Rochester, who died three days after; Job Miller, of Dartmouth, who was on the deck of the brig, was wounded in the thigh, and left there—Lemuel Gifford, of Fairhaven, being alone in a boat, was driven ashore by the surf, and was taken by the Arabs.

Capt. Howland and his crew having a small quantity of provisions in their boats, continued their course for the Cape de Verd Islands, and took passage in the ship Shakespear, of London, Capt. Stephen Briggs, of Bonavista—from thence he took passage in the brig Gen. Gates, White, of and for Machias, and arrived at Tarpaulin Cove, 11th inst.

DIED.

At Wilkesbarre, (Pen.) Capt. Samuel Bowman, considerably advanced in years.

He was a patriot in the revolution. He was from Lexington, Mass and in that battle where the ground was first stained. He was at the taking of Burgoyne—at Kingsbridge, and many other skirmishes.

When the war of the revolution broke out, Mr. Bowman was a young man, zealous for the cause of his country, and ready at every hazard to defend her violated rights.

As intimated in the letter, he was in numerous engagements; and I have listened for hours with undiminished pleasure to hear him recite the incidents of the war.

The 1st of March, this year, the day of Aly Pacha's death, will be ever memorable in the annals of Algiers. That tyrant had still many ruinous projects and cruelties in contemplation, which were to have been shortly carried into effect.

It is stated, on the authority of some of the passengers lately arrived from India, that a sailor belonging to the Vansittart, Chinaman, who had formerly been on board the Northumberland, when the latter vessel conveyed Buonaparte to St. Helena, had mentioned to some of his shipmates, when the Vansittart was off that island on her return voyage, that he had been seen by some of his acquaintance who were in the service of Buonaparte—that he got on shore during the night, and proceeded to the residence of Napoleon, and had been well received and entertained.

Our Dover letter of Thursday date, says: "His Excellency, Count Leiven, the Russian Ambassador, arrived here last night, and one of the Prince Regent's carriages was sent for the purpose of receiving the Empress of Russia and Archduke Michael, who are expected to land here this evening."

himself—placed his hat on the table, and cheerfully said, "I am ready at any moment, gentlemen, to wait upon you."

Capt. Bowman described it as being a day of settled melancholy, & that Major Andre was apparently the least affected. To Gen. Washington it was a trial of excruciating pain.

It was with great difficulty that he placed his name to the warrant of his execution.

Capt. —, and Lieut. Bowman, walked arm in arm with Maj. Andre. It is well known that he had solicited to be shot, and it was not until he came in sight of the gallows, that he knew the manner of his death.

From the Indiana (Pa.) American. THE LOST MAN FOUND!

We have great pleasure in stating that Mr. H. Shryock, was found alive, on Thursday evening last, in the wilderness, about four miles from the Cherry Tree. His appearance when found was wretched and frightful in the extreme—he was crawling along, with a stick in each hand, in a state of mental derangement, his body and limbs entirely destitute of clothing, except a small remnant of his shirt which hung round his shoulders, and had neither hat, shoes nor stockings on—his feet and legs are dreadfully lacerated and swollen.

Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the citizens of this Borough, generally, and on Capt. Meek Kelly and John Evans, Esquire, of the vicinity, for the lively interest which they took in the fate of this man, the great bodily fatigue they underwent in their endeavours to find him, many of them being out 5, 6, 7 and 9 days, and as many nights, in that inhospitable country.

FOREIGN.

Hamburg, March 18.

We have received from Algiers the following interesting and remarkable accounts:

Letters from Algiers, May 5. The present D. y. Housin, is a good man; he is one of the four ministers, master of the horse, or, as they call him, "Chodgia de Cavalios," and, on the death of the late tyrant, was elected by the D. var, which has not been the case for these 20 years, as the six Pachas, before Aly, were murdered by the rebellious soldiery.

The 1st of March, this year, the day of Aly Pacha's death, will be ever memorable in the annals of Algiers. That tyrant had still many ruinous projects and cruelties in contemplation, which were to have been shortly carried into effect.

It is stated, on the authority of some of the passengers lately arrived from India, that a sailor belonging to the Vansittart, Chinaman, who had formerly been on board the Northumberland, when the latter vessel conveyed Buonaparte to St. Helena, had mentioned to some of his shipmates, when the Vansittart was off that island on her return voyage, that he had been seen by some of his acquaintance who were in the service of Buonaparte—that he got on shore during the night, and proceeded to the residence of Napoleon, and had been well received and entertained.

dered as harem) broken into a plundered, or whether they would make any resistance; in this case they were to be cut to pieces. He saw clearly that such a result would not pass without notice, and said often, "The christians will probably come and bombard me a little, but I shall find means to make my peace."

Aly was not destitute of talents, but he was some time like one ranging, or like a famished tiger or hyena: at an earlier period of his life he had been confined in the mad house in the city. If he had continued to live, there is every appearance that all the foreign consuls, and the few other European residents here, would have been put to death.

Letter from Algiers, April 6. Since the death of Aly, there has been only one execution here; it was that of his brother-in-law an Arab of the name of Hagi Mustapha, and his brother, a youth of 13 years of age; they were both tortured 14 days, in various ways, got no sleep, and Hadji was most severely bastinadoed. He received five 1000 strokes, and after that 4 or 5 daily.—After he had received 4300 strokes, in this manner, he was sent home, where he died two days after, and his brother who was treated in the same manner shortly after. The Turks feared this family very much, and have therefore exterminated it.

We daily see here drunken Arabs, Turks, in troops of 6 or 12 men, roving about the city and the environs, to plunder the poor Arabs who are attacked by the plague.

The plague has not increased here, but it has spread towards the west, and extended to the two large towns of Oran and Mascara. The whole territory of Algiers suffers under this dreadful disease; there are plenty of people to be seen in the streets. Upon a little excursion on which I made on horseback, I met with an incredible number of graves, both on the highways and in the fields. In two country houses next mine, 17 persons have died, and only 3 remain alive.

It is uncertain whether the Algerine corsairs will go to sea or not; people say no; however, the public requests for a crusade have been demanded of the consuls.

How little reliance can be placed on a genuine friendship, appears from an official notice just published, according to which the government has seized upon a Genoese brig that was lying in the harbour here, notwithstanding all the representations of the Sardinian vice-consul.—The brig has been sent to Alexandria, with pilgrims, who are going to Mecca.

A letter from Elsinore, dated the 25th ult. says:—That the Zephyr of Yarmouth, from the Baltic, was run on board by a brig, name unknown, on the night of the 22d, known, and was immediately obliged to make the best of her way to Copenhagen, to repair the very considerable damage she sustained by the accident.

A petition has been addressed to the Russian Emperor, supplicating him to adopt two regulations relative to the Jews; 1st, to subject them to military service; and 2dly, to prohibit them from selling brandy.

The success of the late George Cooke, Inceledon, and Phelps, in America, has induced several others of the Corps Dramatique to follow their example, among which number Mr. Wallace, of Drury lane theatre.

On the 6th ult. the Senate of Sweden condemned to hard labor, for 6 years, Jean Francois Danneberg, convicted of blasphemy, and to stand in the pillory at Annerby, with a label on his breast, inscribed—A blasphemer.

Great preparations are making in New-York for the coronation of his Majesty King Charles John, which is to take place in that kingdom during the summer. It is more than three hundred years since any King was crowned in that country. The late King of Sweden, who was also crowned at Opsloe, now Christiania, in the month of August, 1514; but was afterwards dethroned and had a prisoner in Denmark.

A letter from Mannheim, dated the 16th ult. says, "In this spring the countries on the banks of the Neckar have been more beautiful than we have ever seen them, the most inhabitants do not recollect ever to have held such a luxuriance of vegetation; the corn was already in ear a fortnight ago, and the vine gives every hope of a rich crop."

AMERICAN FRENCHMEN.

The Dublin Evening Post of Tuesday has the following curious paragraph:—"We have heard, and have some reason to believe the statement true, that Joseph Buonaparte sent to France not less than 20000 invitations, individually, to Frenchmen to join him in America."

The Dutch government, in order to secure tranquility in their East India colonies, have resolved on dispatching an additional force thither, and are constructing vessels for that purpose.

A letter from the Cape of Good Hope, dated March 12, 1810.

The John Palmer, we have the pleasure to inform you, arrived in Roads on the 7th inst. all well, and after a desperate and atrocious mutiny of ten of her foremost men out of fifteen, had nearly proved destructive of both ship and cargo, and of the lives of the captain, officers and passengers, and such other remaining crew who stood faithful to their duty, and not being but extraordinary firm, manly, and enterprising conduct of her worthy commander, Capt. Godfrey Saunders, seconded by his excellent officers, well ordered portion of her crew, and to the passengers, saved the whole property from piracy and murder, and their lives from murder. They were overpowered, after a severe struggle, secured and brought in irons or confinement. We have further, for the safety of the ship and cargo, and the lives on board, even in harbour, applied to the proper authority of the colony, that protection necessarily required; and nine of the ten have accordingly been here imprisoned, to see the consequences of their unbecomingly conduct; on which as a public cause, we shall shortly have the honour of addressing you.

We cannot, at this horrid moment, even refrain from the press on of our humble opinion, that to Captain Saunders, his officers, and the remaining faithful part of the crew, the gentlemen of Lloyd's, the underwriters, are entirely indebted, at the risk of their lives, for the preservation from destruction and loss, of the John Palmer and her valuable cargo; and our hope that such conduct will be fail being marked by the approbation of those gentlemen, always celebrated for liberality."
