The votes in the military committee, are said to have stood thus on the report relative to the Semitiole war: Mr. Johnson, Ky. Major Peter, Md. Mr. Gage, Mass.

For the Maryland Gazette. I have observed in the public prints that the bill to alter and change that part of the constitution relative to the election of the governor and council has passed the house of deegates. The firm conviction that his bill would meet with its death, n the very room in, which it was irst ushered into light, prevented ny noticing it before, and exposing, s well as the plain tocas and ble language of an uncouth countrynan could, the inutility and injusice of such a measure. It would e useless, because, under the contitution as it now stands, the peole have enjoyed, and still continue enjoy, all the rights and privile-es of freemen, and have lived hapy and prosperous. It would be unist, because it would be throwing ie whole government of the state ito the hands of Baltimore, which, ith her population* of fifty thouand, could nominate and elect from nong her own citizens, at any time ic pleased, any person she chose, as vernor; and no matter how grievus the influence she would thus acnire, might become to the rest of he state, it would be a thing imossible for the counties, situate so ar apart as many of them are, to nake any thing like an united and stematic effort to subvert it; alough, these counties col ectively, ontain a population of 185,117 souls, sceeding that of Baltimore, 135,117. Yould it be considered just in this and of liberty, where the will of the najority has ever ruled, and been held sacred, that one hundred and hirty-five thousand one hundred and seventeen people, (among whom there re very few who are not native born itizens.) should be placed under the lomination of only fifty thousand ersons-very little more than onehird of their number-and many or hom too are foreigners, who enteraln strong picjudices in favour of the governments' under which they vere born, and whose main of ject in taking up a residence, in this country was to accumulate

It permits each county to chose one senator. This bill, it is pretended by them, furnishes a sufficient safeguard to the counties against the dinger from Baltimore influence, which they admit, would exist, if their bill concerning the governor should pass the upper hous. Now, how this senate bill would answer this purpose, it is likely, it would be as difficult for its authors and friends to show, as it is for me to discover. On the contrary it appears most probable, that this very bill would, instead of serving as a check upon, tend to promote the influence so much dreaded. Baltimore it is well' known, has her friends in many of the counties; This cannot be denied, and the votes of the majority in the present house of delegates may be reterred to as evidences of the truth of it. It is not unreasonable to suppose if this hill passes, that many of the "cunning ones" who now hold scats as delegates, would as speedily as practicable, offer themselves as candidates for seats in the senate; and after doing so, what would there be to prevent their election? No impediment presents itself to my view, and none surely can exist to their being chosen to the senate; so long as they can be chosen to the house of delegates. Dalrymple Would a senate composed of such men, men who have already given | Snowden unquestionable proof, not only of their willingness, but even their Orrick anxiety, to extend and enlarge the W. But such Claude would not be the case; every new Stephen . session no doubt, would augment Harris n the consequence of Baltimore, and W. R. Stewart

The eyes of the yeomanry of the state are upon them- | Nerris to them we look for preservation from the chains, which those who are striving to devote us to the bondage of the "imperial city" have partly prepared for us-to them we look for a bold rejection of measures, calculated to benefit a few. at the expense of many, and dia- Yates metrically opposite to genuine re-publicanism.
