Wills, The following brilliant specimen of election ering eloquence, was afforded by Mr. John Holland, of Beaufort County, who offers as a Candidate, to represent in Congress, the district composed of the counties of Tyrrel, Washington, &c. It was delivered in the Court House of Washington county, at the last session of the county court, and is copied from notes accurately taken on the spot, by a gentleman present, who, though he found it impossible to keep way with the rapid flights of the speaker, has faithfully preserved the substance, and in most instances the very words of the address. If, as gliterary curiosity, or in any other view, you think proper to give it a place in the Gazette, it is at your service.

June 1819.

The Orator having obtained permission from their worships, mounted the rostrum, and after a most profound and captivating bow, spoke as follows.

A SUBSCRIBER.

My Worthy Friends and Fellow Citizens!

By leave of the Worshipful Court, I have the liberty to speak from this place, and to tell you my business here. The Congressional election is a matter of great impor-tance. Five thousand votes are not to be trifled with. A new election is to take place in August, I did not come here to hammer down Dr. Hall, or any candidate, or party. But you have a choice, and a right to do as you please. The public seems to wish an opposition, & :rom the unanimous solicitations of this district, I offer myself as a candidate. I am convinced you are all my friends, and not my foes. I came among you from the love of my country, and the rights of man, and I hope you will congeal yourselves together, and go hand in hand with me. [Hear him.]

You have had the trial of several members from this district. My uncle, Mr. William Kennedy, Esq. was a candidate and was elected. I know you congealed yourselves together in his favour. His principles and mine are the same. [Hear.] I am not opposed to the present administration, or any of our wise and great men, who are the balance wheel of our country. I speak against no party. Are you a repubican? assume your own rights. Are you a federal? declare your own poitics. I voted for Monroe. He is a respectable, a great and a good man. When he was at Washington, in Beaufort county, I had the pleasure to see him, talk with him, and escort him. He has the power of congealing his friends together. I had a view also of Mr. Calhoun, and his lady. the ranks. He was at Germantown, manifestation of respect to the man to the North, and Briar Creek, to they 'delighted to honour,' placed the South. I feel the same zeal he did. [Bravo.]

The last war was right. Did you find a single man-that said 'don't fight?" and very properly: for if a man says he will kill you, then kill him; if he says he will burn your house, burn his. We must never suffer our rights to be hammered down, by those inferior to our independence. We fought for free trade and Sailor's rights.' Look at the attack on the Cheapeake, Douglas staved eighteen balls through her, wounded eighteen citizens, and kill ed three. Look at the burning of Washington, and then say if we had not sufficient cause for war. Jack son has been blamed about Ambrister. But look at Hampton, and at Dartmoor prison, where a few men had merely gone out on a party of pleasure, and they will justify what he did, Yes, Jackson has enabled you to tote the key of liberty in your pocket. How did they reward him'at Huntavillet He bid 82 an worth $20, no body would bid a gainst him, and It was knocked off to him. He turned about & thanked them. As long as there was a shot in the locker, I was determined to uphold the war, I gave five barrels of corn for the support of poor soldier's wives. [Bravo.].

At March termot Beaufort court,

> But still we are not to depend on Lawyers. Some of them you can't borrow from, because they have nothing to lend. In the attack on Baltimore, Gen. Rass was killed. He was headed up in a hogshead of rum and sent home. Did a Lawyer kill him? No it was a plow boy. Was Washington a Lawyer? Nobut he was a great and good man. He was the morning star of the world; he illuminated as he went, and congealed his friends together. [Loud cheering.]

I wish you, my friends, to think for yourselves. We are all born infants, but by reading and thinking we become philosophers. My sentiments are the love of my country and the rights of man, and I wish you to pin this to your sleeve and not forget it. I am a republican, and I shall be so as long as I have brains as big as the head of a power is with us, the people; & our government is founded on the will of the people, and on merit. How did our President rise but by merit? And Crawford, by merit came forward without money or friends. The mechanic, the farmer and the merchant, are the watchmen and bulwark of our country. Look at the shoot of the cornstalk which nourishes the milch cow. Cherish the dairy maid, and do not let the republican milch cow go dry. Let us take the cream and the butter for ourselves, and give to our enemies the bonny clabber and whey. [Loud cheering.]

As to the compensation law, it is a serious affair; but it rests with the people. What is eight dollars a day? Give it if the people say so-but not otherwise. He that eats the meat, must eat the bone.-How did Dr. Hall vote on this question? Had I been there, I would have voted for $6 a day. This they can't do without; unless you say that like cattle, the members are made of horns and hoofs, and ought to go barefooted. [Loud and repeated huzzas.]

Let us now see how politics stand with the merchants. * 'Here is a 'Hiatus valde deflendus'-'a chasm much to be lamented;' for at this critical juncture, the eloquent speaker was most unluckily interrupted by the Sheriff's informing him that it was their worship's pleasure that court should be opened. He descended slowly and majestically, from the bench, not, however, without some evident marks of chagrin, and casting a 'longing, lingergering look behind.' But, when he came to the court hoose door, the In '76, my father stepped into audience determined to afford every him in a chair, and bore him off triumphantly on their shoulders. The novelty of his situation rendered it at first, somewhat difficult for him to preserve the centre of gravity, and prevent an exhibition of ground and lofty tumbling.' But, fortunately, the whole cavalcade arrived, without accident, at Woodley's Hotel, near the court house, where after partaking a few Ticklers of the 'Oh! be joyful,' and drinking some patriotic toasts, the candidate took a respectful leave; fully confident, that at the approaching election, he should receive the suffrage and interest of every voter present.

The grand jury, however, deemed it their duty, on the same day, to make a unanimous presentment, now on record, in which, although they did ample justice to the merit, talents, zeal and eloquence of Mr. Holland, and expressed great satisfaction at the entertainment and amusement afforded to them by the speech and the chair scene, yet lamented the interruption of the public business, and hoped that the next exhibition of Mr. Holland, might be at a time when no such inconvenience could occur.

AN AFFAIR OF "HONOUR."

Anecdote.-An apothecary having refused to resign his seat at the theatre to an officer's lady, the officer feeling himself much insulted, sent him a challenge. The apothecary was punctual to the meeting, but observed that not having been accustomed to fire, he had to propose a new way of settling the dispute. He then drew from his pocket a pillbox, and taking from thence two pills, thus addressed his antagonist. "As a man of honour, sir, you certainly would not wish to fight me on unequal terms, here are therefore two ills; one composed of the most deadly poison, the other perfectly harmless; we are therefore on equal ground, if we each swallow one; you shall take your choice and I promise faithfully to take that which you leave." It is needless to add that the affair was settled by a hearty laugh.

From the Jamaica Courant, May 19.

We understand, when Col. Rafer (who had retired into the Fort at Porto Bello, and defended it most courageously,) understood that Sir Gregor M'Gregor had got on board the brig Hero, he immediately dispatched a soldier, who was an expert swimmer, to that vessel, to ascertain his determination on the subject, and to learn what he deemed proper to be done. The soldier returned after a short absence, with directions from him to hold out to the last extremity, and that he would collect all the force of the squadron for their assistance. Col. Rafter, conceiving that he was justified after this answer, to perish in the defence of the place, defended himself as long as he was able, but to his mortification, he found that shortly after M'Gregor's answer, he had directed the Hero's cables to be cut, and sought his safety in flight, by putting to sea in that vessel.

New York, June 25.

About three years in Hats in this city put up a quantity of undressed fur Hats in a square bale, and shipped them by one of the line of packets and stages to Baltimore. The package reached Philadelphia in safety, but between that place and Baltimore, the contents were purloined by some person unknown, and when it reached Baltimore it was found to contain nothing but old linen wrappers, papers and stones. The owner of the hate brought a suit against the proprietor of the line for the recovery of the property, which was yesterday deciand before the Supreme Court now sitting in this city. After hearing of witnesses and counsel, the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff -damages 480 dollars.

A CURE FOR CORNS WITH-OUT PAIN.

Split a prickly pear (garden vegetable) flat, and about as large as a small tea saucer, cut out a piece large enough to cover the corn, and pick from its outside the thorns and lay the in, or mucusi side next the corn, bind it on with a cloth, change every night until the excrescence or corn is entirely extinct, which will take place in a week or less. The same process will cure warts. Experience has placed this remedy be-
