Frightful but true Statement.

The total amount due to the geperal government by the purchasers of public lands north west of the Ohio and in Alabama and Mississippi, is twelve millions and a half of dollars up to the 30th Sept. 1818. and it appears by Mr. Lowndes' speech last session of Congress, that Kentucky and Ohio were then in him. debted about six millions and a half of dollars to the bank of the United States—making together an aggregate sum of 19 millions. When (it has been frequently asked) will those debts be paid, and are they not now operating to undermine & sap the oundation of the federal compact? For man is prone when deeply indebted and embarrassed to look with an evil and discontented eye on his creditor; and this principle is still more powerfully felt when an extensive community be comes indebted to a government whom the debtor soon accustoms himself to consider, not in light of a common creditor, but as a rich inexorable oppressor-from these sentiments opposition soon grows up, and finally ripens into rebellion, ter-minating perhaps in a separation of the Union—the vige oned language held in reply to the ormands of the United States Bank of the government in certain quarters, indicate but too unequivocally the temper & disposition which this unfortunate state of debtor and creditor is calculated to promote. Let our legis. lators look to it in time, and avert the catastrophe, which without a timely remedy will too surely en-

Extract of a letter from Mess. Monteiros de la Tuelliere, dated Madeira, March 9, 1819, to a gentleman in this town.

"On the 2d of this month we felt a misfortune from a fire that burnt a great part of our stores of wines; but thank God, fortunate for us, the most considerable part of our wines were saved, the oldest and choicest included; so that we can have the pleasure to say that ou-friends' orders will continue to be fu filled with as much satisfaction as they liave been heretofore."

To those who have the pleasure of an acquaintance with the character and honour of the house of Monteiros, this declaration of the safety of their best and oldest wines, will be abundantly sufficient. To those who have not that pleasure, the most ample testimony can be afforded in favour of the accuracy of this statement. In Dec. 1817, a gentleman in this town received by the Haymaker, a chalf pipe of wine of a particular idenomination from the house of Monteros of the was thought by himself and friends of most excellent quality. The same person has lately received by the Boston, expt. Knowles, three half pipes of the same description, which were shipped after the fire, which was tried on the day of its landing by himself and a friend who had tasted the first, and pronounced to be clearly superior to that by the Haymakers and the second day after the landing, it, was tasted by some of the first judges in this plade, and determined to be wine of the very first excellence. From this it is wished it may be known, that this house has at least an equal addity as before the fire, of furnishing the first wines, and to those who have known wnat their wines have been, this is enough.

New Orleans, Aug. 4. The late hurricane-A despatch boat has arrived from the bay of St. Louis with letters from an officer in that place, addressed to Com. Patterson, describing the loss of the U. S. schr. Firebrand, at anchor off the Pass of Christian, on the night of Wednesday last, the 28th ult .--There were 45 persons on board at the time, all of whom are supposed to have perished, as no intelligence had been obtained of any one of them-and the dead bodies were driving ashore by the waves. The officers on board were lieut. Grey. Dr. Wardle, and Messrs. Perkins and-Adams, midshipmen.

The schr. Thomas Shield was also capsized at the bay of St. Louis, and all the hands lost. All the houses at the hay of SCL ours were seriously damaged, and host of them blown down; at the Pass, also, only three nouses were left standing; no lives, however, were lost at either place. The whole coast from the Regoulettes to Mobile, to which latter place only our intelligence reaches, is a scene of desolation, covered with fragments of vessels and houses, the bodies of human beings and carcases

DANDIES.

The Dandies, says a London news. paper, are bringing again into fashion feather had neck clothed to lary capes, and none of the addr delightfu creatures" can be seen out without stays, pinching the waist so tightly, that the unhappy wearer jesembles an hour glass in shape. Great coats, with a waist an inch and a half long, are all the go; and the shirt collars are long enough to go twice round the throat. In short, nothing can be too stiff at present; and every lad that goes into the world, must have his neck tied up almost as tight as some lads that go out of it!
