Subjects for the Surgeons. A decent looking labouring man, brought up yesterday before Alderman S. Holy, charged on the following rather singular circumstances: The Chatham coach to London, which puts up at the Cross Keys-inn, Ford street, Cheapside, arrived yesterday morning extremely heavily loaded, not indeed with passengers but packages, and the coachman who is also the owner of the coach, was consulting himself of the nature of the former, by the increase of the latter; among the packages were two of more ordinary size, the one a hamper, addressed to Joseph Wright, 35 Old street, to be left till called for, and the other a heavy casket in a mat directed to William Simpson, No. 126 Oxford street.

the account given of them by a medical gentleman who had examined them did not appear that the subject of the package did any credence to the judgment of the agent in the country. The female body was that of an elderly woman, who he judged had died of consumption, it being wasted to a mere skeleton. The other corpse was that of a corpulent old man, who, from the external marks of blistering, & bleeding, he conjectured had died of inflammation of the lungs; this latter subject has but one arm, so that the corpse will probably be easily recognized. The medical gentleman was also of opinion that both the bodies had been disinterred. A coroner's inquest was expected to be held on the bodies last night, and Mr. Simpson undertook to make every necessary inquiry at Chatham, and to attend at the Justice room this day.

Salubrity, extent, and fertility, are the proper objects of a colony of the free people of colour shall consent to go; if the natives of Africa shall be willing to receive them; if the funds necessary to transport and settle them can be raised; and if the colonies can be accomplished.

A few remarks must suffice on these particulars, though volumes might be filled, without exhausting the subject. Salubrity, extent, and fertility, are the

Can the colony, if planted, be protected? Little protection will be needed.

The natives on the western coast of Africa, are remarkably timid, gentle, and disposed to peace. They would quickly see, were their superiority in the arts. They feel their own ignorance, and would gladly cultivate friendship, that they might receive instruction.

They are altogether different from the fierce, high minded, sagacious and warlike Indians, who opposed the first colonists of America.

There will be little or no danger from the natives; we propose to deal honestly & fairly with them, as did the venerable Wm. Penn, with the Aborigines of Pennsylvania. Nor will there be danger from any foreign power. All the late transactions of Europe will be a guarantee of their safety. Her united vengeance would descend upon that nation, which
